Boaters Offered Many Facilities

By Sara Gay Dammann

Charlevoix's Round Lake Harbor is the most famous cruising port on the Great Lakes, according to yachters.

The harbor's natural and man-made facilities coupled with the many commercial boating establishments, are part of Charlevoix's nautical atmosphere, attracting sailors and power boaters from all over the lakes and even the Atlantic Coast.

The 24 city docks in Round Lake are loaded with vessels by July, and remain so into August, giving rise to some complaints from passing cruisers that Charlevoix's too popular.

Horicane Hole

Gail Stebbins says, "In the south, Charlevoix would be called a 'Hurricane Hole', " referring to the well protected natural of the slips.

As other observers point out, Lake Charlevoix is a very attractive cruising lake, frequently safe when it is unwise to he out on Lake Michigan.

Therefore, Charlevoix draws an over abundance of boaters.

Mrs. Stebbins adds, "From a cruising point of view, Charlevoix couldn't be nicer. All the necessary facilities are within walking distance of the docks – laundry, post office, stores and restaurants."

The Wards

Immediately adjacent to the city docks, the third generation of Wards operate the family boating shop and gas docks.

Since the depression days, when Bernie Ward I began taking bass fishing charters into Lake Charlevoix, the Wards have focussed on fishing gear and fishing boats.

Bernie II runs three charter boats for parties of two to six, with the assistance of his two sons, Bernie III and Don.

Wards tackle and bait shop is one of the older establishments on Round Lake. Before Bernie I, now retired, acquired the building, it was used in the logging business. Railroad tracks, which still run from dockside into the building, were used to unload logging ships.

In addition to bait and tackle, Wards rents out 15 outboard runabouts, from rowboats to high powered ski boats, with hourly, daily and weekly rates.

They also lease Rebel sailboats and a 25 foot keel boat.

Ted McCutcheon

Bellinger holds a degree in Marine Engineering from the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

Bellinger's services all types of power and sail boats, as well as having some dock space and selling everything from fuel (including diesel) to parts and boating accessories.

Bellinger's, the Irish Boat Shop on Lake Charlevoix and Walkers Marina on Round Lake are the only marinas which have the equipment to launch and haul out larger boats.

Walker's, owned by Richard Hodgson, maintains slips at both Browes Marina, which Hodgson also owns, and the main Walker boat house.

Walkers specializes in larger in-board power boats. While they are a dealer for Century motors, they service all makes. Walkers like Bellinger's has a winter storage service for boaters and they carry boating necessities.

The condominium De Harve, on the site of Hamilton and Sons old marina, is striving to maintain a nautical atmosphere by renting slips and maintaining the marine railroad, for hauling out boats, and the A-frame, for stepping masts.

Dock Improvement

Jim Craig and Bob Collins, partners in the development of the condominium, say they plan to maintain and even improve their docks.

The classic 72' Yawl WINDIGO has been lured to their docks, just to enhance the atmosphere, according to Craig. (For slip information call 313–971–1140).

Next door to Le Havre, Fairport Marine Electronics is a retailer and wholesaler for all manner of boat electronic genr dealing from the Straits to Alpena, Manistee and Frankfort.

According to Dave Patrie, son of G.A. Patrie co-founder with Phil Lawrence, their business covers such boat gear as radio telephones, radar, automatic pilots and depth sounders.

As were all the marina operators, Patrie was interviewed on-the-run. He'd just finished a radar job as he talked lying under the dash board of a power cruiser.

"We do rent some dock space, but we try to keep our docks mostly for service," he explained.

Rod Stebbins, at Irish Boat Shop on Lake Charlevoix, just west of Round Lake, recalls being awakened at 11 p.m. one night last summer by a sailor desparate for space.

Irish's has 90 slips, most are rented by the season, but some are available on a daily free basis. With slip rental, water and power, pump out (for a fee), and shower facilities are the usual amenities.

The largest yard in the area, Irish's deals in everything from cotter pins to new boats, nautical cocktail glasses to marine electronics.

Brokers for nine makes sailboats plus Boston Whaler, according to Manager Walt Ward, Irish's can serve any type of boat and motor.

They also maintain a large charter fleet of sailboats, all of which are privately owned and can be leased by the weekend or longer. The charter boats range from a 22 foot Pierson to 41 foot Morgan Out Islander.

Ward savs the 30 ton travel lift is the only one north of Bay City, which can haul and lift a boat with the spars intact.

According to Ward the yard had 31,000 square feet for inside winter storage, plus outdoor yard space.

Slightly west of Irish's on Lake Charlevoix, Water's Edge Development has eight slips, plus more anchorage space. Water's Edge is frequently called upon to take the transient overflow from the city docks.

Mrs. George Plumm, wife of the manager, says people come out intending to move back into Charlevoix docks when space is available, but fall in love with the peace and quiet and stay on.

Custom Builder

McCutcheon's Boat Yard, between Irish's and the Round Lake entrance, does not have slips, but nnique services for Charlevoix's marine enthusiasts.

Double Ring Rites Held

CHARLEVOIX—St. Mary's church was the scene recently of the wedding of Esther Dhaseleer and C. Daniel W. Moore of Boyne City.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dhaseleer of Charlevoix and Mr. and Mrs. C. Ralph Moore of Boyne City.

The Rev. R. Dale Magoon officiated at the double ring service before an altar graced with arrangements of spring flowers. Mrs. Howard Otis, at of the organ, played a program of traditional music and the wedding marches and accompanied the soloist, Connie Dhaseleer, sister of the bride, who sang the "Lord's Prayer", "Ave Maria," "Wedding Song" and "We've Only Just Begun".

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride chose a gown of crystallized organza trimmed with Venise lace for her wedding. The gown was fashioned with a raised waist and a satin sash, fitted sleeves with lace cuffs, an illusion yoke, ring collar and full skirt with an attached chapel length train. A tiara secured her veil of bridal illusion. Her colonial bouquet was of pink sweetheart roses and stephanotis.

Mildred Otis, as her maid of honor, wore a gown of pastel print crepe with mint green satin trim and a mint green picture hat. Elaine and Beth Dhaseleer, sisters of the bride, and Susan Moore of Boyne City, twin sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaids, wore identical gowns of pastel print crepe with pink satin trim and pink picture hats. They carried bouquets of pink peonies and iris.

Walter Barkley of Boyne City assisted the bridegroom as best man. Groomsmen were Fred Moore, brother of the bridegroom, Ronald Gerbracht and Robert Peck, all of Boyne City. Allan Dhaseleer and Leslie Dhaseleer, brothers of the bride, seated the guests.

Mrs. Dhaseleer selected a street length dress of pastel blue knit complimented with a corsage of white carnations and pink roses for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Moore, mother of the bridegroom, wore a yellow street length dress. Her corsage was of yellow roses and white carnations.

A reception, hosted by the bride's parents, followed at the V.F.W. Post Home. Assisting were Mrs. David Babcock of Mt. Vernon, Ohio, Mrs. Carl Romanik of Dorr, and Carol Dhaseleer of Charlevoix, sisters of the bride, Mrs. Ronald Gerbracht of Boyne City, Mrs. Allan Dhaseleer, sister-in-law of the bride, and Valerie Peters of Charlevoix.

Following a wedding trip to Canada, the couple will be at home at 411 Terrace-st. Boyne City after June 22.

Wedding guests were present from several Michigan cities and Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore of Boyne City, parents of the bridegroom, hosted a rehearsal dinner at the V.F.W. Post Home Friday evening. (Photo by Carlton H. Smith, II)

He became a well-known artist and eventually a teacher of animal drawing at the Women's School of Applied Design. Dan Beard was an active outdoorsman and wrote many books for boys on camping, woodcraft and survival in the outdoors. In 1910, he organized the first Boy Scout society in America. Dan Beard died in 1941 but his name lives on because Mount Beard, a peak next to Mount Mckinley, is named after him.

COUNTRIES OF THE WORLD

CHILE

Overall, Chile is slightly larger than Texas. The capital and largest city is Santiago. Northern Chile is mainly arid deserts that contain large mineral deposits. Mining accounts for 70% of Chile's exports. Chile is also an important fishing and agricultural country.

Family Sets Sail Around World

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

When the bridge swung up at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday morning (June 24), it marked the beginning of one family's sailing Odyssey.

Black Dog, the 39.6 foot ferrous cement, gaff-rigged ketch, is now home for the six member Gig Stewart family.

Gig and Nancy Stewart, their sailing exploits and vessels are well known in Charlevoix. For several years in the mid-60's Gig chatter captained his ketch Cygnus out of Round Lake, and for one year he also captained the Charlevoix yawl Comet.

As one of the few licensed sailboat charter captains on the Great Lakes, Gig frequently assisted by Nancy, took charter parties all over the northern lakes. His cruises to Georgian Bay and the north channel were famous.

Not only is Gig admired by sailors who should know, like Bob Hamilton, his sailing expertise, but as Hamilton once remarked:

Gourmet Cook

Gig also adjusts compasses, teaches celestial navigation, plays string bass (began with the Cincinnati Symphony), helped found the Epsilon Jass Band and several other dance combos, plays most instruments in a band, was audio visual director and librarian for the Petoskey Public Schools, choir master for the Petoskey Presbyterian Church, and acted as musical director for most of the musicals in Petoskey.

But gourmet ebeffery and charter parties were the stepping stones in the fulfillment of a marriage-long dream shared by the Stewarts and their children, Beth 16, Patty 14, Mike 12 and Andy 10.

Gig's mother says it dates back to when Gig was at least 10.

Gig remembers "That's when I sailed my wagon down the street in Cincinnati."

A D-date was set for this June, after the house was sold, pets were farmed out, with one notable exception, and Black Dog was geared up.

Allotted Space

Each member of the family was allotted a cubicle of space, 18 inches by 18 by 12. Possessions were pared down to the most loved and most important:

For Gig, his string bass and books and tapes; Nancy, books, Beth, clarinet and painting equipment; Patty, a cornet; Mike, silver treasure box including fire crackers, and his sketch pad, and Andy two years bound volumes f Ranger Rick's Magazine and fishing lures.

The one pet allowed to join the crew was Maggie the male pigeon who thinks he's a falcon. Two dogs and two cats didn't qualify.

The Stewart odyssey has no set itinerary save for sitting out the Hurricane season in Chesepeake Bay and then headine south for Christmas. The next ports of call are indefinite. They depend on winds and whimsy. It may be Suez. It may be Panama.

School Board Renews Contract For Charlevoix Superintendent

By FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Board of Education, at its final meeting of the fiscal year, approved Supt. James A. McKimmy's contract for another two years.

The annual salary will be $23,500 with benefits and other conditions written into the contract which was approved by a vote of 5-2 with President Max Novak and Vice President Ms. Ardeth Wieland voting no.

The two board members made not public statement why they voted against the contract renewal.

While the compensation is the same as his present contract, there were adjustments relating to the payment of retirement, the use of a car and other considerations that represented an increase of approximately five percent.

The motion was amended, by the same vote to nullify existing contracts.

In other action, the board approved the borrowing of monies against anticipated taxes, hired a homemaking teacher and a business manager, approved the payment of debt retirement obligations and the purchase of Student Accident Insurance.

The bid of the Charlevoix County State Bank of an interest rate of 4.65 percent on a loan of $300,000, being the lowest of three bids, was accepted. Supt. McKimmy explained that the summer tax collection, of what are referred to as "winter taxes" enables the board to borrow approximately half the amount that has been necessary in the past.

Mrs. Mary Lou Smith, a resident of Charlevoix and wife of Steven G. Smith, was hired as Home Economics teacher to succeed Mrs. Janet Odmark who retired at the close of the school year. Mrs. Smith the former Mary Lou Veenendall, is a graduate of Wyoming Park High School and Western Michigan University in 1971 with a major in Home Economics and a minor in retailing. She has taught at Linden, Fowlerville and Indian River.

Vincent R. Olach, executive manager of the Chamber of Commerce for the past 18 months and a veteran of 27 years in the U.S. Army was hired as business manager at a salary of $12,500. Prior to his retirement from the U.S. Army, he was adjutent at Ford Monroe, Va., and, in this position, was in charge of personnel and purchasing. He will assume his position later this month.

Approval was given the transfer of $107,786 from the New Debt Retirement fund (the Elementary School) to the National Bank of Detroit and $52,573 from the Old Debt Retirement fund (the high school) to the City National Bank to pay principal, interest and fees due July 1, 1975.

For the first time since 1968, the Hot Lunch program in the school system was operated in the black. In fact, there was $5,000 in the fund which will be transferred to the General Fund. Supt. McKimmy said that since 1968, the board had been pouring money into the program. This, he said, would make it possible to keep prices the same unless there were major hikes in food prices.

Wood and Whitley Against the Move

Street Controversy Ends in Lease

A five-year squabble between LeHavre Condominiums owners and city officials came to an abrupt end Monday night.

Charlevoix City Council agreed to lease a 27-foot piece of property adjacent to the development on a 99-year lease for $500 a year.

The undeveloped strip of property, sometimes known as Alice Street, runs between Belvedere and Round Lake. The controversy over ownership at one time during the last five years had reached the court of appeals with no solution ever resolved.

In a split decision Monday, the council granted LeHavre use of the property with the city maintaining easement rights for utilities and storm sewer. LeHavre agreed to maintain existing sewers and improve the property.

Voting against the lease were Councilmen Ray Wood and Ivan Whitley.

"The people in my ward are not in favor," Wood argued during the 50-minute debate in council chambers.

Mayor Ed Hansen said the city has never used the property except for water and sewer.

He said the controversy was dropped at the Court of Appeals in 1972, when the developers agreed to drop the suit for a building permit.

"As far as I am concerned it is in the best interest of the city," the mayor continued.

Hansen said ownership of property includes care eustody and control, not of which had been done by the city.

"As a practieal manner the city has never used it," he said.

Wood said the practicality was in his opinion and that the people of Charlevoix don't want to give it up.

Whitley said the city should have had a public hearing before signing the lease.

"I'm frankly in favor, but I think it should be up the the public," McRae added.

In other business, council:

–Heard Dr. Walter Hoffmann inability to use the alley behind the Charlevoix Courier because people are using the area to park when going to the Pine River professional building owned by Don Berlage and John Michaels. Council agreed to visit the location.

–Heard William Ohle and Buetner of the Charlevoix Historical Society concerning the city Park Avenue property for use as a museum site.

–Referred an ordinance establishing procedure for allocating costs in the extension of utilities to committee.

County Delay Costs Taxpayers $1,210 in Fees

By PEG OHLE

Charlevoix County has lost approximately $1,210 in revenue from Soil Erosion and Sedimentation Control Act fees because the basic rules and fee schedule have been held up for over five months by the Health, Welfare and Planning Committee of the County Board of Commissioners.

The committee has now made some changes in the rules and fee schedule which will be presented to the Board of Commissioners at its next meeting, July 9.

The rules were prepared by the County Planning Commission at the request of the Board of Commissioners because it was felt that State rules were vague, according to County Planner Bill Mercer.

The Planning Commission first started discussing the rules and writing them last July. After completing the work, a two-hour public hearing was held in December and a final draft presented to the HW&P Committee in January.

Because the Soil Erosion and Sedimentation Control Act became effective January 1, persons making earth changes which fall within the Act have had to secure permits. However, they have been issued free by the Office of Building Inspection (the administrating agency) because there is no approved fee schedule.

Commissioner Oscar Ward, a member of the committee, told the Courier there were various reasons for the delay, including the change in committee personnel after the first of January.

Ward said the new committee members felt that the Drain Commission should be the administrating agency instead of the Department of Buidling Code Inspection. He also said that the wording in the rules needed revising, including that part referring to bond requirements which were "too loose".

According to Ward the committee also objected to having two agencies, the Department of Building Inspection and the Charlevoix Soil and Water Conservation District, given the authority to interpret the rules and grant variances. As re-written, only the Conservation District would now have this authority.

Several other changes have been made in the revised version, and the committee is happy with the version which will be submitted for approval by the Board of Commissioners, Ward added.

As to loss of revenue to the County as the result of delaying submission of the rules and fee schedule, Ward said the $1,210 figure was "grossly" exaggerated", particularly since it included $525 for a permit issued to a local contractor to dump and bulldoze dirt in a large area.

"He probably would not have needed a permit to do this," Ward said.

Aecording to the Soil Erosion and Sedimentation Act, "Any person who proposes an earth change which will disturb one or more acres of land or which is located within 500 feet of a surface watercourse within this County shall obtain a grading permit from the Office of Building Inspection prior to initiating the earth change."

The law has a five-fold purpose:

–To protect the health, welfare and general safety of the people of the County and to preserve natural resources.

–To eliminate the need for costly repairs to roads, embankments, ditches, streams, rivers and lakes.

–To protect and preserve the water quality and associated fish and wildlife resources.

–To outline land development procedures which will conform to established conservation practices.

The fee schedule which will be presented to the Board of Commissioners next week covers several categories, including transportation facilities, utilities, subdivisions, industrial and commercial developments, service facilities, recreation facilities, ponds, and residential.

July 4th

For the first time in many years, Charlevoix will have its own Fourth of July observance, a picnic at the Ferry Avenue Beach complete with a host of old-fashioned games.

The picnic will begin at 11 a.m. and continue until 4 p.m. Don Meggison's open grill barbecued chicken and all the fixins including potato salad, baked beans, rolls and a beverage will be available during this time. The price will be $3.50 for everyone except children under 12 years. The meal will be $2.00 for this age group.

There will be no admission for the games in which everyone is invited to participate. There'll be three-legged races, sack races, an egg throwing contest, pie eating contest and a watermelon seed spitting contest. Of course, you have to eat the pie and the watermelon to get the seeds in the latter two events, Olach said.

It all sounds like fun and you are invited to join in what promises to be a good old-fashioned observance of the Fourth of July.

Need Shuttle Service

Even though this isn't a big city, I think the Chamber of Commerce's proposal for a city bus is a good one. There are alot of people in Charlevoix who are either too old or too young to drive and could take advantage of the service. I think it should at least be tried out for several months.

A Waste of Money

You've got to be kidding me. Since when does a city the size of Charlevoix need a shuttle bus. You have to be out of your head. All the chamber does is think of fancy ways to spend our tax dollars. Do they think we are made of money? I'm tired of paying for freeloaders. If the Chamber thinks there is room for a bus, then why doesn't a private company come in and do it? You know why? Private companies see it's going to be a losing proposition.

Bus Service Costly

Maybe a bus for Charlevoix isn't such a bad idea. My question is, who is going to pay for it. Bob Clock spends more on food for his family than I do already, so where am I going to come up with the cash? (Editor's Note: Bob Clock, a Courier columnist reeently wrote he could feed his family on less than $30 a week)

Good for Kids

I think we should consider having a bus for the youngsters of our town. It would keep them from having to ride their bikes along dangerous roads in the city. A local bus would also be cheaper for parents who have to pay for gasoline to drive them to the beach and ball diamond. It wouldn't hurt the city to consider trying a bus for several months. It would make alot of parents happy and 1 for one would be able to watch the ball games without interruptions.

Waste of Time

A Charlevoix bus service is a waste of time. Why doesn't the Chamber start being more concerned with how to keep people in jobs. We are going through some serious economic problems and 1 just don't see how a city bus service can be started at this time. Instead of starting a bus service, why doesn't the city figure out how they can lower our taxes?

Alley Problem

When is someone going to do something about the parked cars in city alleys? I have tried to go to the bank and can never get through the alley. I think the cars parking in the alley are causing a serious fire hazard. Where are the police when you need them?

CETA Jobs Extended

Almost all persons employed under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) in Charlevoix County are having their jobs extended two or three months.

Funding for Title II of CETA, under which most persons are employed, ran out June 30. However, due to some fund-shuffling and an emergency grant, the jobs are being extended for 30 days.

The County had a surplus of $23,459 in Title VI funds which was transferred to Title II, and within the last few days they receeived an emergency grant of $22,755.

Most persons responsible for administering CETA funds believe that Congress will appropriate more money in the near future, although how much and for how long is a matter of conjecture.

Need a Summer Job?

There will be a few federally-financed summer jobs available to needy young people in the area this summer.

The sum of $55,000 has been allotted to Charlevoix County under Title III of the Comprehensive Employment and Traning Act (CETA).

The jobs will pay $2.10 an hour for a maximum of 28 hours a week. To be eligible, applicants must be between the ages of 14 and 22 (the 22nd birthday is cut-off period), residents of the County, and come from families whose income is at or below the poverty level.

The poverty level is described as $4,300 for a family of three, $5,000 for a family of four, $5,700 for a family of five, etc., adding $700 for each additional member.

Day Camp or Bust

There's nothing to it, she says. Well, it doesn't seem so frightening now that the week is over and 74 girls between 8 and 16-years-old are back home with mother and dad.

"I was really pleased," Mrs. Alger said in an interview held during the final hours of camp last Friday.

"I hope to remember to pass out the camp patches, the kids earned them."

After a previous week of rain and fog, the camp director said the weather couldn't have been any better for her first year on the volunteer job.

"The Social Services person was here yesterday and was impressed with our operation," she said proudly.

"Everything went according to plans."

The Charlevoix Brownie and Junior Scouts did every thing from crafts to gymnastics during their week-long visit at the camp located outside of Charlevoix near the Belvedere Golf Course.

Camp started everyday with flag ceremonies. From then until late morning, the girls were busy hearing camp guests speak on things such as camp survival and music.

Then the girls spent the remainder of the morning preparing to cook their lunches.

"A simple one-pot meal with a dessert took them about 1½ hours to cook," Mrs. Alger said.

The Charlevoix resident said she was glad that Charlevoix was able to conduct its own program.

She said last year they had to go to East Jordan because there were not enough leaders to hold a camp here.

"I've just gotten satisfaction out of seeing Charlevoix having its own camp," she continued.

"Everything is Boy Scouts and Little League in this town. I felt bad that Charlevoix might have to have a camp with East Jordan."

Until this summer, she said the Charlevoix day camp area had virtually stood empty for four years.

Charlevoix County Commission Hires New Building Inspector

Richard "Dick" Mayhew has been hired by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners to administer the Building Code.

Mayhew is a licensed builder with approximately 20 years of experience in the field. He started working with his father and after his father's death formed a corporation with his mother and brother. He was also employed by a local contractor and more recently was associated with Local 1461 of the carpenter's Union in Traverse City.

A native of Boyne City and a graduate of Boyne City High School, Mayhew still resides there with his wife and two children.

Talking about his job, Mayhew made the following request: "I want to work with the people of Charlevoix County, answer their questions and help in any way I can. Before they come in for a Building permit, they should have their zoning permit, Health Department permit and Soil Erusion and Sedimentation permit if they need one. They should also have two copies of their building plans and specifications.

Mayhew also suggested that it would be helpful and save time if persons desiring a permit would call his office, phone 547-4419, before coming in.

The Building Code, which went into effect last November, applies to all new buildings and structures, including municipal, county, state and private buildings except where such buildings are otherwise specifically provided for by statute.

The code also applies to any building repairs which include "the cutting away of any wall, partition or portion thereof, the removal or cutting of any structural beam or bearing support, or the removal or change of any required means of egress, or rearrangement of parts of a structure affecting the exitway requirements."

The code further applies to repairs which include "addition to, alteration of, replacement or relocation of any standpipe, water supply, sewer, drainage, drain leader, gas, soil, waste, vent or similar piping, electric wiring or mechaneical or other work affecting public health or general safety."

Consumers Power Tells Press

Big Rock Will Operate for Years

Consumers Power Company officials said last week that they expected Big Rock Point nuclear plant to continue in operation for years to come.

The announcement squelched speculation that the United States' third commercial nuclear reactor might be closed down because of constant pressure to meet new safety regulations and standards.

However, R.A. Lamley, Consumers vice president for bulk power operations, said even though the company will be ranking some design changes they are relatively happy with this plant.

He said the 70,000 kilowatt boiling water reactor is small compared to newer reactors, but still is a cheap producer of electricity. Big Rock began producing electricity since 1962.

"We expect to run this plant for many years to come," Lamley told newsmen at the plant site last week.

Lamley made his remarks during a briefing called by the company to explain why the plant was shutdown for nearly six months.

He said Consumers voluntarily closed the plant from January 16 to June 8, so that the company could evaluate certain plant safety components in the emergency core cooling system.

Most of the equipment in the back-up safety system, according to Lamley, met with only minor modification to level switches, replacement of pressure switches and relocations of some valves, motor starters and circuit breakers.

The affected equipment is used to automatically operate the core spray cooling system required in the highly unlikely event of a loss of coolant accident.

"All of the changes and qualifications met with the Nuclear Regulatory Commission approval," he added.

"We received word to go back in operation May 30."

Except for upgrading requirements demanded for all plants in operation, Lamley said Big Rock is completely licensed with no operational restrictions.

During a 40-minute question and answer period, Consumers officials fielded a variety of questions ranging from the use of plutonium to disposal of spent fuel.

Company spokesmen indicated that nuclear power may be the only alternative to the world's present energy crisis.

"If we are going to be self-sufficient in the U.S. in energy, uranium is a must," a spokesman said.

The company official said they have been studying alternative sources through their participation in the Electric Puwer Research Institute, but wind and solar sources look unfavorable at this point.

Although fossil fuel supplies such as coal and petroleum appear to be depleting, the spokesman said "uranium sources seem to be in good supply in the U.S.

Asked what effect proposed rail abandonment may have on Big Rock, who uses C&O trackage to transport spent fuel, the company said it would increase transportation costs. They estimated it would take 10 truckloads compared to two train trips made a year.

When asked about the danger of transporting the nuclear materials, the company said there was probably less risk to the public than shipments routinely made with chlorine and petroleum.

Officials indicated they were still exploring whether or not their license allows them to increase the amount of plutonium being used. If it is allowed to use plutonium as an energy source, they estimated a savings between one quarter of one million dollars a year.

When in operation, they said a nuclear plant can provide a kilowatt hour for only one-half cent compared to eight-tenths a cent for coal and 2½ cents for oil fired generating plants.

Strip-Mining Should Be Watched Very Closely

But as our area becomes more industrialized the people begin to migrate to Charlevoix to enjoy the wealth of the land, the once unnoticed strip-mining is becoming more apparent.

Unknown to most people, the strip-mining industry in Michigan is growing and the state is now fourth in the nation in the value of mining materials.

In Charlevoix County alone, there are hundreds of acres of scarred terrain, and piles of waste rock, as a part of the legacy of strip-mining and a stark reminder of the state's and county's failure to regulate exploitation of its resources.

Yet there is no guarantee that ugliness and destruction from mining of gravel and sand in the county will be repaired.

Many mining companies say that the devastation is temporary and that when mining is completed--perhaps in 100 years or more--the land will be reclaimed.

State officials say they have no ammunition to insure that will be the case. Local officials plead ignorance.

In Charlevoix County, there are presently 14 mining operations actively engaged in extracting sand, gravel or limestone, according to the U.S. Bureau of Mines.

State officials tell us there are no legislative guarantees that any reclamation will take place when miners leave.

The state Mine Reclamation Act passed in 1970, was only recently amended to include limestone and gypsum, and still does not cover mining of sand and gravel.

Robert Reed, supervisor of the Department of Natural Resources mining and environmental geology section, said they are presently working on administrative rules for enforcing the legislation, but sand and gravel are not included.

There is proposed state legislation to include sand gravel and another bill for dune mining, but nothing concrete has been done.

While admitting that strip-mining is unsightly, the state can only say at this point that they eventually hope to be able to require companies to submit reclamation plans that will have to be updated periodically.

However, we feel this is not enough.

Reclamation of open pit mines is new.

Only a few years ago, coal producing states began regulating mining areas. Michigan began regulating metalic iron ore and stone quaries.

Unfortunately, it was too late to stop those who opened the pits, mine them for money and get out.

Too often, mining companies dig their pits at such a steep grade, it is nearly impossible to stabilize them by growing trees and shrubs.

For the operations in Charlevoix County, the Hodgkiss and Douma operation near Bay Shore makes the greatest attempt to use gradual slopes for stabilization purposes.

Our concern is that many of these pits in Charlevoix County are made and left with such a steep grade that they could be dangerous to children, let alone adults.

The state's new Soil Erosion and Sedimentation Act also exempts mining, as well as logging and farming, from new regulations concerning earth removal.

About the only control local residents have is through local zoning ordinances, and those have no effect on already existing mines.

While we have to have these materials, we don't have to have the negative things that go along with them.

We must make sure that all local units of government through their zoning ordinances, focus on these problems.

Interest should also be started at the state level to amend the present Soil Erosion and Sedimentation act to include mining operations.

Ruppe Discusses Energy

Mr. Charles Baer, Jr.
210 Mason Street
Charlevoix Michigan 49720

Dear Mr. Baer:

Thank you for your telegram inquiring about the percentage of oil which the United States imports from foreign countries.

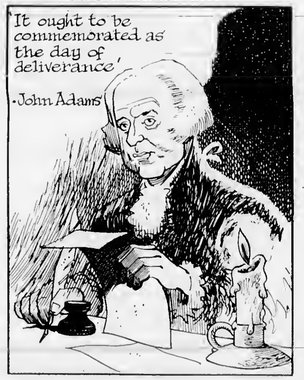
As the enclosed Federal Energy Administration Fact Sheets indicates, U.S. oil production peaked in 1970 while our expanding economy and expanding population have driven petroleum consumption up at a rate of approximately 5 percent per year. If we do not increase our domestic energy resources und conserve the energy we do have, we could wind up importing 50 percent of ur petroleum needs by 1980. Although there are certainly a variety of ways to accomplish both of these objectives, I am sure you would agree that they must be accomplished.

Thanks you again for your telegram. Please don't hesitate to get back in touch with me if you have further comments or questions about this subject.

With best wishes,

Sincerely,
Philip E. Ruppe
Member of Congress

INDEPENDENCE DAY



GOOD REASON TO CELEBRATE

Late one night in July, 1776, a young man from the Massachusetts colony, exhausted from the day's labors but too emotion-charged to sleep, took quill pen in hand. Writing to his wife Abigail by candle light from stifling boarding house quarters, he described a momentous event which had just taken place in Philadelphia. In years to come, he predicted, that day would be remembered as "the great anniversary Festival."

The man? John Adams.

The event? Adoption of the Declaration of Independence.

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

It looks as though the American people are going to have to put themselves through the wringer again over alleged CIA assassination plots, just as we did with Mr. Nixon and his crumby Watergate shenanigans.

In fact, I'm beginning to believe there is a strong masochistic streak that runs through us as a nation, making us revel in periodic purges of the body politic for shis real ur imagined.

Unfortunately at this point, it appears our punishment is just beginning if it turns out the CIA actually worked with the Mafia to eliminate the opposition.

Why, you might ask yourself, would anyone in a responsible government position have any truck with o card-carrying member of the Mafia? Of what possible use could a mafioso be in the conduct of governmental affairs?

Well, sir, there isn't, if those affairs are on the up-and-up. But when the ends are so desirable that the means are uninportant, then Uncle Sam will do business with anyone, appurently. Even the Mafia.

But even if our Senate probers come up with hard evidence pointing to a solid connection between the CIA, the Mafia and attempts on the life of Cubo's Fidel Castro, I hope the American people stop for a moment to remember the mood in America when Castro established his Marxist dictatorship 90 miles from the smiling avenues of Miami, Fla.

Thanks to the rantings of the liberal right during the 1950's, we had to come to expect such dreadful things of the communists that the very presence of a red-tinged government in the neighborhood caused pulses to race in the State Department. Sens. Richard Nixon and Joseph McCarthy had whipped us into such a lather over the evils of the "Red Tide" that we really couldn't think straight.

And although we were coming out of our paranoia to some degree by the early 1960's, the very word "communist" was enough to start the adrenalin flowing in most true-blue Americans.

Certainly, Castro as a political presence in North America was a hard pill to swallow. I doubt that very many Americans would have entertained serious compunctions about the propriety of rubbing him out even with the help of the Mafia—if we were given half a chance.

That was the mood back then, folks. And we had better face up to it.

Let the Senate probe continue. Let us uncover all the sordid little details, if they make us feel any better. But before the indictments are slgned, let us remember that "ex post facto" has been a part of our legal vocobulary since the country wns founded.

Would it be right to find a man guilty of a crime in 1975 which would nut have been considered a crime when it was committed almost a generation ago?

We went through something very similar over My Lai, and the courts have largely decided that circumstances alter situations. Folks can sometimes be excused for committing heinnus sins under proper circumstances, at least that's the way it appears today.

DID THE CIA play a role in domestic assassination plots? This, I believe is a question more vital to Americans than any cloak-and-dagger adventures our boys may have partieipated in overseas.

Was George Wallace actually gunned down by a crazed imbecile from Milwaukee acting alone? Or did someone pay hiru to pull the trigger?

Who paid Jack Ruby to take care of Lee Harvey Oswald in the basement of the Dallas jail two days after President Kennedy was assassinated? What did Oswald know that Ruby didn't wunt out? And wasn't it rather peculiar how short a time Ruby lived after the incident.

Did Sirhan Sirhan act olone when he murdered Bobby Kennedy?

In fact, have all of our major assassinntions and assassination attempts simply been the work of lame-brained dunderheads operating nu their own--or have the details been worked out carefully by someone else?

The very thought that American government officials may have been involved in assassination plots is chilling to most thinking citizens—since the rest of us are guilty by association. That is why a purge is necessary. But the purge must be complete, or the cunvalescence will be long and painful.

They have just come out with some guidelines regarding celebrities' endorsements of products which say if they claim they use a floor wax, a cold tablet, or a shampoo, they had better be telling the truth.

Golly, not for a minute did I ever suspect Joe Namath didn't wear pantyhose. I si him play against the Redskins and no one can tell me he was in pain with bad knees. That boy had his pantyhose on backwards or I don't know pain when I see it.

I have always believed Euell Gibbons grazed for lunch, Mrs. Olsen is on a caffeine trip, and if Janc Russell's eighteen-hour bra died, wouldn't we be the first to know?

The only one I can figure the FTC is after is Ann Blyth. Now, I've watched this beautiful little wispy creature for years....even before her performance in "Mildred Pierce," and if she ate a Twinkie, a cupcake or a fruit pie, we'd see it.

I never look at Ann Blyth but I don't think of my baby picture. I was exactly her size when Mother took a picture of me in the buff on a shag rug. I was three months old at the time.

It strikes me as very suspicious that Ann is stuffing her face with all that "freshness" and looks like a peneil while I am wedged in a wicker chair eating salads with imitation mayonnaise.

The answer to more truth in advertising is to do away with taped commercials. They're made once and sometimes run as long as two or three years.

If they were made "live" we'd have a completely different story. I suspect after three months, Ann would set a tray of goodies out and turn green at the sight of them. After six months, her face would break out. After a year, she would waddle down the terrace, call the children and pop a doughnut into her mouth whole. After two years of hustling freshness, the kids would roll Ann down the terrace and take turns flipping Twinkies into her mouth.

I know I'm being silly. It'll never happen. David Janssen will continue to get headaches. Betty White will push onward as a stain fighter. And Sir Laurence Olivier, the most unlikely amateur photographer in North America, will continue to take perfect pictures.

But wouldn't it give America a real shot of integrity to turn on the tube one day and hear the perfect wife say, "I take good care of myself. I exercise, diet, and take iron once a day," and have her husband chime in with, "And I'd keep her if her girdle hadn't rusted!"

Lawyers Should Advertise

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled unanimusly it is illegal for lawyers to fix their prices. That same week, most of the doctors in my favorite town, in concert, raised the price of office calls.

No honest lawyer (that's not redundant) will deny his profession has been violating the Sherman Anti-Trust Act. This act forbids frisbee manufacturers, for instance, from getting together at lunch and agreeing no frisbee shall be wholesaled fur less than $2 each, even if it costs only 25 cents each to make them. Thus price competition is effectively removed from the marketplace and a lot of kids are forced to smoke pot because they can't afford frisbees.

Since before Perry Mason, bar associations have established "minimum fees" to be charged by area lawyers. So much per divorce, so much per tax return, so much per rape, etc. It was OK tu charge more than the minimum, just so long as the total fee did not equal an amount twice the assessed valuation of the state in which the lawyer practiced.

But it was another thing for a greedy young lawyer to charge less than the amount suggested by his peers. The penalty varied from state to state. In some areas the offending lawyer was merely ostraeized by his local bar association, thus forcing him to play golf by himself and to show up for trial needlessly because no one would tell him his client died 2 years earlier.

The severest penalty on record was slapped on a lawyer who discounted a divorce fee simply because his client became a widow 10 minutes after she hired him. The poor guy's fellow lawyers ganged up and elected him district judge, thus cutting his income by 96 percent.

It is lovely that the Supreme Court has ruled this price fixing is illegal. But if the idea is to save the consumer money, the court must go further. Lawyers must be allowed to advertise. What's the sense in having a sale on zoning appeals if no oae knows about it? Lawyers should push their services the same way McDonald sells hamburgers. There is more than one way to give yourself a break today. Find yourself a drive-in lawyer who knows how to prepare wills ahead of time and keep them warm. All you need du is fill in the blanks, as easy as adding ketchup.

Bar Associations object to advertising because, they say, it is degrading to professional people. It is to laugh. Almost everyone convicted in the Watergate mess was a lawyer. Nixon and Agnew are lawyers. In my hometown, a lawyer admitted he hadn't filed his facome tax return for 10 years. A Mich. Supreme Court justice has stepped down while being investigated on bribery charges.

The members of the legal profession could hardly be further degraded if they advertised by sky writing over drive-ins showing porno movies. Lawyers would probably gain dignity through a series of TV commercials starring that saine guy who wants to say a few words about diarrhea.

When the Supreme Court is done with the lawyers, the justices should turn their attention to the doctors. I wouldn't accuse any medical society of fixing prices. Even if the doctors do share the printing costs for 2 million office signs aanouncing price hikes caused by "The Rising Cost of Malpractice Insurance" tra la la.

Surely there are some cut-rate tonsillectonies out there. But where? The doctors should niso be allowed to advertise. This shouldn't be too degrading for a profession that pickets hospitals.

Onward and Upward.

Meet Charlevoix
...Edward Beutner

Edward L. Buetner is the new president of the Charlevoix Historical Society. In this Bicentenatal year which has evoked a new cousciencness of local history the Courier talks with him about the past, present and future of the Snciety.

COURIER: How long has the Charlevoix Historicul Society been in existence?

BEUTNER: The Society was revived three years ago after a long period of inactivity.

COURIER: When was it first started?

COURIER: What did they do at their meetings?

BEUTNER: According to an article in "The Grand Traverse Region", published in 1884, the original plan for entertainment consisted uf monthly lectures, to be free to all. During the winter of 1879 and 1880 J. S. Dixon, O.F. Wisner, Rev. A.M. Parmenter and Rev. S. G. Blanchard lectured at the schooi house. The following winter, at the Buttars' residence, the first social parlor reading occurred and Bayard Taylor's works were chosen as a textbook for the winter.

COURIER: That's serious study.

BEUTNER: Yes, and during the years 1881 and 1882 "Green's History of England" was chosen for study.

COURIER: What have you done in your meetings in 1974?

BEUTNER: We always have a program of local interest. We have had talks on the old schools of Charlevoix, the old churches, early families, the history of the Belvedere Club, early timbering days, early railroads, and other subjects.

COURIER: What are some of the other activities of the Charlevoix Historleal Society?

BEUTNER: Our by-laws by the purpose of the Society is to bring together people interested in the history of the area and to protect and preserve articles of historic value within the area. Right now we are trying to find a site for a museum and a means of financing it. We have many articles of historic value which have been given to us but we have no place to display them. They are spread around in various homes and attics for safe-keeping.

COURIER: You need money then?

BEUTNER: Yes, we would like to increasc our membership, and of course any donations are welcome.

COURIER: When do you meet?

BEUTNER: The first Tuesday of every month at 8 o'clock in the Community Room of the First State Bank. Everyone is welcome.

COURIER: If a person wants to know more about the Society, or tu help it, who should they talk to?

BEUTNER: Any officer will be glad to furnish information. Robert C. Miles is the first vice-president; Albert Smith, second vice president; Mrs. Carl F. Kohler, secretary; John LaRue, treasurer; and William H. Ohle and Vincent Olach, directors.

Crooked Tree Arts Council Plans Dinner and Photo Show

Charlevoix residents will get a double treat if they attend this year's Crooked Tree Arts Council annual dinner Tuesday, July 15.

In addition to the dinner marking the opening of the third annual photography show, the arts council will pay a special bicentennial salute to early American explorers.

The photography exhibit and dinner will be at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey. The dinaer starts at 6:30 p.m. with tickets available at the door.

The photography show opens for public view on Wednesday, July 16, and continues through Friday on the campus. The hours are from l to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. with no admission charge.

Crooked Tree members say the Voyageur dinner has special significance for Charlevoix residents because the idea came from a poem written by William Ratigan of Charlevoix.

The author, educator and former network newsman wrote about the vuyageurs in his poem, "Manlton Michilimackinac."

MANITOU
MICHILIMACKINAC

Who passed this way one yesterday?
Ten voyageurs with Pere Marquette.
Ten thousand ghost canoes and phantom sails
Are passing yet.

Who passed this way aaother day?
Ahoy! Who goes there now?
The same brigades; the helmsman puts fresh
Lookouts at the bow.

We pass this way toward yesterday.
One dark tomorrow lookouts on the bridge and stream
May fail to sight us. Did we pass, or dream?

Then tell me, brother vuyageur,
As aur paddles dip in the stream,
If no maa marks the way we pass,
Did we pass, or do we dream?

William Ratigaa

Edith Gilbert of Charlevoix has been working with Wayne Klee, chef at North Central Michigan College, in preparing for the 14-foot buffet table that will be loaded with a variety of foods.

Among the unusual dishes to be offered will he Frog legs Cadillac, Mackinaw Tongue (Lake Trout), Rabbit Coureurs de Bois, and wild beaver.

She said the dishes were researched with the help of the American Heritage cookbook and Time-Life books.

Before the 6:30 p.m. dinner, entertainment will be provided by the Young Americans, a musical group performing throughout the summer at NCMC.

Cost of the dinner is $10.

Charlevoix Completes Channel 6 Fund Drive

Charlevoix County's quota for funds to construct the new northland public television station is now within 10 percent of being met.

Actual cost and pledges now total $27,048. The quota is slightly over $30,000.

Those wishing to contribute to the fund may do so by writing a check to Televisinn Station 6 and sending it to Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant, or to Mrs. Thomas D. Pointner, 401 Michigan Avenue, Charlevnix.

The station, expected to begin broadcast in September, is now under construction near Atlanta in Montmorency County.

Alger Named to Court

Charlevoix's Turi Alger was named to the National Cherry Queen's court at the annual Cherry Queen Pageant held Friday evening at Traverse City.

Turi, Charlevoix's 1974 Venetian Queen and a sophomore at Central Michigan University, was among the six beautes who will serve in the court of the National Cherry Queen, Dorinda Mae Murray of Reed City. She was among the 16 candidates for the National Cherry Queen title.

This is the first time that Charlevoix has been represented on the Queen's court since Barbara Smith was named in 1969.

Turi, a 5-4 blonde with hazel eyes, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Alger.

She will spend the week of July 6-12 at Traverse City where she will participate in the festivities of the National Cherry Festival which will be climaxed by the Cherry Royal Parade at 2 p.m. Friday, July 12.

Crooked Tree Plans Exciting Summer

The Crooked Tree Arts Council is asking everyone interested in the Arts to write their Representative and Senator in Lansing to approve the original appropriation for the Arts. According to the Council, a sub-committee is recommending a cut.

Appropriations Committee chairmen are Jerome T. Hart in the Senate and Dominic J. Jacobetti in the House.

"Many factors conspire to make this a difficult year for Arts funding," says a Council representative. She cited two recent local examples of how the legislative appropriations through the Michigan Council for the Arts helps other groups.

The Crooked Tree Arts Council has received a mini-grant to assist in the publication of a booklet dealing with the cultural heritage of the Charlevoix area. Also, the Harbor Springs Community Schools have been granted a sum toward a summer performing arts program and children's workshops.

This spring the Crooked Tree Arts Council brought the Hartford Ballet to the area. It also sponsored the Area Student Art Exhibit at North Central Michigan College. Another activity was the two-day bus trip to Detroit for the purpose of visiting several art exhibits.

In the tennis boom in Charlevoix beginning to slow down?

Two months ago I would have thought this to be a ridiculous idea. During the last few weeks, however, there have been signs which seem to indicate that the level of interest in tennis has subsided.

SUBSIDED.

I base my premise on three indicators. First, the city clinics conducted by instructor Drew Wachler still have plenty of open spots in them. Last year, Wachler's clinics were completly filled and enjoyed by all the participants.

Wachler believes part of the problem is that he has started the clinics earlier this summer. Nevertheless, not as many people enrolled in them as in 1974. Wachler is an excellent instructor and the aspiring tennis player should not miss the opportunity to take these clinics from him.

The second indicator is that this year's Charlevoix Closed Tournament for men and women did not have nearly the reception as last year's tournament. Entries were down at least 30 percent. Like the clinics, there is a partial explanation. The tournament was earlier this year and there was less promotion for it.

But this is not the answer. Anyone truly wanting to play in the tournament would have found it very easy to enter. One can only assume that the demand for tournament tennis is not as last year.

The final and most important indicator is that the public courts are only being used to about 60 percent capacity. When recreation director Ike Boss initiated the attendant system, he was under the impression that an attendant was necessary for the entire day.

Sure, during several periods of the day the courts are always full (between 6:00 and 9:00 P.M. on the weekdays, for instance). But every afternoon has lots of available court time.

Most surprising of all is the fact that the 5-6 hour is almost open. This is the period that the Charlevoix tennis team had its practices in April and May. At the time, many objections were voiced--that is the hour when everyone wants to play tennis.

The demand for the public courts has lessened for at least one solid reason. Kids wanting to play sometimes cannot afford the dollar it costs to

Don Pohl Takes Michigan Amateur

It is probably a little too early to call Dan Phol the next star of the PGA, but the new state amateur golf champion has some fans convinced he has a chance.

"He's the best looking kid I've seen here since Randy Erskine now u touring pro from Battle Creek won a couple of years ago," was the way Keith Bliss of the Golf Association of Michigan put it.

His assessment came after a gritty sudden death victory Saturday by Pohl over veteran Bud Stevens of Livonia in the finals of the 64th state amateur golfing championship.

The championship ended three days of head-to-head match play at the par 71 Belevedere Golf Club course. It marked the first time Pohl, a 20-year-old lean long hitter, from Mount Pleasant who made all-state as a high school baseball player but dropped the sport when he went to the University of Arizona on a golf scholarship.

He was beaten by Erskine in the semifinals two years ago and by Rod Sumpter in the semi's last year when Sumpter went on to win the title. Pohl wants to turn pro after graduation.

Pohl was leading Stevens, who won the amateur title in 1959, 1963 and 1965 and was appearing in his 19th consecutive championship, by one holes as the two teed off the 18th.

All Pohl needed to do was split the hale to win the title, but his tee shot landed behind a tree on the right side of the fairway, leaving him 160 yards from the green.

He ended with a bogey while Stevens, a 42-year old industrial tool salesman, parred the par-four hole to even the match. They made par on the 19th but on the 20th hole, Pohl landed within 12 feet of the cup on his second shot. Stevens was barely on the green, but his 50-foot putt rolled by the hole, leaving him with a three-footer.

He missed it. His ball rolled around the hole and spun out.

Pohl stepped up and tapped his putt in for the victory.

For Stevens, it marked the end of a remarkable string of putts and chip shots that saved him time after time over the final round.

"I hated to lose it like that," said Stevens. "I hit a good putt, but I played it to break and it didn't."

The two men gained the finals earlier Saturday with Stevens going 17 holes to down Jim Turner of St. Clair Shores 2-1 while Pohl brushed by Al Dimavlculs of Grand Rapids, 7-6.

It was the 25th time the Belvedere course had been the site of the tournament. Both Stevens and Pohl said they will return next year if they can.

We will be closed Friday, July 4th

Two Wheel Traveler

by Jon Hendra

When you buy u new motorcycle you are responsible for breaking it in properly. What you do in the first miles of a bike's life determines forever its reliability and efficiency.

The best guide to follow is your owner's manual. Because of differences in design and manufacture bikes vary in their break-in requirements.

In any bike, the break-in is no more than the wearing down of contacting parts to their final and exact tolerances. If done improperly the tolerance become inexact and the machine as a whole suffers.

–Oil and filter should be changed as often as possible. Oil cools, lubricates, and carries away particles. Every 500 miles during the first 1000 is not too often to chance.

–Warm your bike before you ride. This brings it up to the temperature it was designed to operate at and will break-in parts with the greatest precision. Start to ride when the cylinder heads are warm to the touch.

–Avoid heavy loads. They cause extra strain and heat at an important time in a bike's life. Have your passenger wait till its broken in.

–Don't over or under rev the engine. Follow the manufacture's specs. And after the break-in build slowly to the maxinum.

–Tune-up the bike when its due. The first tune-up is the most important. A machine during break-in is constantly changing and will get put out of tune quickly. If left untuned it can wear-in improperly.

Treat it gently and with respect. It will pay great dividends in the long run.

My own preference is to break-in a bike with long runs on cool days. Three hundred miles of hills and curves at about 50 degrees F is perfect, with a complete oil change immediately following. This subjects the engine to a wide variety of speeds, revs in gears, and heat ranges.

Beyond this I try to avoid heavy stop-and go traffic with a lot of idling time as well as short trips of under five miles.

So break it in easy and your machine will serve you well. If not you may find yourself stranded some day: in a nice place, like the Mojave Desert.

Horton Bay

--Yesterday

By WILLIAM H. OHLE

You can approach Horton Bay Michigan, by water, by land, or by air if you have a seaplane But don't blink or you'll miss an unspoiled little village now entering its centennial year Horton Bay hasn't changed much in the last ninety-nine years and its charm traces to the fact that it has been left alone

Samuel Horton, the first white settler, arrived with his family, via Charlevoix, in August, 1856, aboard his boat, the "Rover" However, the accepted date of the beginning of Horton Bay village is 1876, when Alonzo Stroud and William Ohle, brothers-in-law and Civil War veterans, pooled their slender resources and started a sawmill by the foot of the hill below the Dilworth and Stroud homes.

Stroud put his $250 into sawmill machinery; Ohle put his like amount into timber land - the one hundred and sixty acres that compasses almost all of the Bay area. It was a prime location because of the water access it provided to lumber-hungry markets around the great lakes, and because of its rich stand of Cedar and Hemlock and Pine and Maple handy to the mill to get the business going.

Boom starts

The mill and the village boomed from the start. Sturdy old-country and Canadian families seeking both religious freedom and opportunity were pouring into the north, as the whole nation sprawled in every direction following the war between the states.

The "company store" with its "high false front" was built, and the houses around it. Then, he built the inn for lumberjacks which soon served travelers as an oasis on the hot dusty road between Boyne City and Charlevoix, the building which almost fifty years later became the "Red Fox Inn."

Jim Dilworth's blacksmith shop was part of the building boom, as was the "Stroud House," later the "Waffle Shop" run by Wesley and Kathryn Dilworth, and the present Ira Davis home which started as "Pinehurst", the elder Dilworth's home, which was later their famous restaurant and summer lodge. "Mr. Stroud's house" is now owned by Margaret and Jon Hartwell. "The Ohle House" became "The West House" and "The Vollie Fox house" among others and, is presently, the "Vard Chellis" house. The blacksmith shop is gone, but "The Del Ford" store which started as "Con Schneider's store" and then became "The Odd Fellows Hall;" now the Bay Township Hall. Up at the other end of town, toward Vlos, were the watering trough, "The Con Schneider House", now the parsonage, "The Joe Shaw house", "The Neumann House" and what may have been, originally, a Horton home.

"Tramway"

For a quarter of a century, the Stroud & Ohle, (Then Stroud & Dilworth) Mill flourished. There was even a horse-drawn "Tramway" railroad to move the logs from Bear (Walloon) Lake to Pine Lake (Charlevoix) for some years. Winter and summer the Bay echoed with the sights and sounds of straining horses and men and the whirling saw in the mill.

Then, quiet suddenly, the trees were gone, and with them the picturesque three masters and steam vessels that moved the finished lumber. Jobs, too, were gone. No more could men make their 30 cents per hour working in the mill, and 40 cents per hour "dock-walloping" lumber Times were tough.

Ingenuity took over soon nlter, when Elizabeth Dilworth opened her Cottage for summer guests, and pioneered the first of three world-famous restaurants which for a time all operated at once.

"Dilworth's", "The Red Fox Inn" and "The Waffle Shop" run by Wesley and Kathryn Dilworth hardly competed; they were needed to accommodate demand as the fame of Horton Bay cookery spread. There is no way to compare the relative merits of the three, but there are people in Charlevoix in summer quarters at this moment who can tell you about the delights of Bay Township "scratch" cookery.

It is unlikely that there is another community of fifty or so people in this country that can be so proud af not one, or two, but three unbelievable good restaurants.

"The Point"

A happy event of the post world-war one period was the purchase by the Goldman family of St. Louis, Mo., and Charlevoix of "The Point", which forms the finest natural harbor on Lake Charlevoix. The Goldman's molded the wild second-growth tract and its creek into a show-place, greatly enhancing its natural drama. They also gave enrly impetus to the chicken-dinner legend that grew and grew. Soon there was no keeping track of the exotic makes and models of motor cars that turned up in quantity every summer evening in the village, chauffeured by liveried drivers.

There was another category of summer feasting in the old days in Horton Bay, too, unknown to the Charlevoix contingent. The "in" group consisted largely of Horton Bay natives and a few selected summer people, all mates of all ages. They would rally, usually on signal from Vollie Fox, to a hill on the "old Call Place" far up the Horton Creek valley.

Soon the valley would ring to clear barbershop harmony. On a still, moonlit night, with cares far away, this was hard to beat.

The piece-de-resistance, meanwhile, would simmer slowly in a boiler over an open fire; lake trout boiled (not broiled) until fork-tender, surrounded by potatoes and carrots and onions, skillfully seasoned with salt and pepper and country butter. Soon the feast would be ready, able to compete with any eastern shore-dinner going. These occasions were seldom scheduled more than a few hours ahead, and not too many people were included, but those who remember "Vollie's Shack" share rich memories.

Increasingly, people come to Horton Bay to sense the sights and sounds of Nick Adams. The perceptive ones are not disappointed. If you open your pores and listen to the whispers of the old buildings you can feel the past. They, and quite a few of the people who lived in them long ago have survived financial collapse, a half dozen major wars and as many depressions. Longevity, in buildings and in people makes a special blessing of The Bay, and people here treasure the eighty and ninety and nearly one hundred year old persons and things around the neighborhood.

Horton Bay is different, and its people know it. Three famous authors, one a Pulitzer prize-winner, have found inspiration here; one was married in Horton Bay more than a half-century ago and the memory of that September day still lingers, although the church and the man are gone.

Come, and if you really listen, this century-old village will talk to you of lumbering days and the good times and hard times and slow times. It has learned to live with them all.

THIS IS "Pinehurst"...and to the right appears "Shangri-la": home and dining room and lodge respectively, where Elizabeth and Jim Dilworth founded the Horton Bay tradition of superb dining and warm hospitality.

"THE HARTLEY WHITE HOUSE", on the hill opposite the schoolhouse; no date, but very nearly a century old. Now the residence of Miss Eleanor Sadowski.

How do People Beat the Heat in Charlevoix?

By JIM BERLAGE

The first day of summer came through Charlevoix last week like a flash of lightning shooting temperatures up into the high eighties.

Summer officially came to town on Saturday, June 21, and as luck would have it on the longest day of the year, the temperature reached a muggy 88 degrees.

On the second day of summer, some 20 Michigan counties were under a tornado watch, which brought "welcome" winds of up to 32 miles per hour.

After having just packed away winter coats, Charlevoixans seem to have their own home-made remedies for beating the heat.

Curly Hartzell, dockmaster on the Round Lake Basin, said, "You don't beat the heat, it eventually gets to you."

Carl Soblaskey, chief operator of Charlevoix's drawbridge is even more pessimistic, saying he doesn't beat it, but just suffers.

On the other hand, the younger generation seems more optimistic and thinks one of the best ways is to take a dip in one of Charlevoix's swimming holes.

Jeanne Bertrand, a summer resident from Bay City and an employe at The Lodge, says "I jump in Lake Michigan and it cools you off in a hurry."

While high school junior Mary LeVasseur is swimming and jumping off the pier, CHS counselor Gayle Kaczynski may be found sitting in her inner-tube, paddling off into a beautiful sunset on Lake Michigan.

Downing a cold drink was mentioned by Joe Thomure who favors n nice cold coke, while Mary Ann Cudd prefers sitting out in the backyard drinking Lite Beer.

Denise Boss, waitress at the Village Inn keeps her cool by eating popsicles and she said perhaps somewhat "If I were a little kid I would run through sprinklers."

Mary Beth Wallick, Charlevoix Public Librarian says you don't beat the heat, "you learn to endure it, and when you're lucky and get a day off, you can go down to Lake Michigan and freeze."

Perhaps with some four years of high school percussion experience still on his mind, CHS graduate Jim Marshall offered a unique if not ridiculous solution by suggesting you beat the heat—with drumsticks.

Pat Doan offered the most natural way of beating the heat.

Being meter man in charge of all parking meters in downtown Charlevoix, Pat said, "I sweat n lot and go through four uniforms a week," which I think is only fair, since Pat's duties can sometimes raise everyone's "personal thermometer" several degrees after receiving his or her sixth parking violation of the summer, which you remember just officially began only 11 days ago.

In closing I would just like to quote a short poem by an unknown author which says:

"Spring has sprung,
Fall has fell,
It's summer in Charlevoix,
And hotter-than usual."

Jeanne Bertrand

"I jump in Lake Michigan and it cools you off in a hurry."

Patricia Cross and Daniel Gillespie Married

Patricia Cross became the bride of Daniel Gillespie at a double ring service solemnized at St. Mary's church on Saturday, June 22.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. John H. Cross, Jr., of Charlevoix and Mr. and Mrs. Jewell F. Gillespie of St. James, Beaver Island.

The Rev. R. Dale Magoon officiated at the service witnessed by more than 450 guests. Arrangements of majestic daisies and pink gladioli graced the altar. Mrs. Frank Oleksy, at the organ, played a program of traditional music and accompanied the vocalists, Mr. and Mrs. Barry Pischner of Grand Rapids. Cheryl Coppens was the guitarist.

Mr. Cross escorted his daughter to the altar past pews marked with baby's breath and leatherleaf fern tied with satin bows in pastel shades. Her gown of polyester crystalon was fashioned with an empire waist that was accented at the front waistline with French imported Chantilly lace and seedpearls, lace yoke edged in a flair ruffle, high lace neckline and tapered sleeves with wide lace cuffs. The A-line skirt extended into a chapel train with lace and wide flounced bottom. A Dior bow offered back interest. A Juliet cap of lace secured the floor length imported illusion veil and an elbow length veil edged with Chantilly lace. She carried a cascade arrangement of white sweetheart roses and daisies.

Kellie Cross served as her sister's maid of honor and Mrs. Vance Wood of Cadillac and Mary and Julie Gillespie of St. James, sisters of the bridegroom, as bridesmaids. They were identical gowns of daeron polyester organza fashioned with empire waists, square necklines and short puffed sleeves accented with venise lace and A-line skirts with ruffles at the hemline. The honor attendant wore pastel blue and the bridesmaids pink, mint and maize. They wore floral headdresses that matched their colonial bouquets of pastel daisies that matched their gowns.

Robert Gillespie of St. James assisted his brother as best man. Ritchie Gillespie, brother of the bridegroom, and Tony Connaghan of St. James and Joseph McDonough of Saginaw were groomsmen. Donald Potter, Kevin McDonough and John H. Cross III seated the guests.

Mrs. Cross, mother of the bride, selected a pink floor length gown of quiana nylon with a high neckline, long tapered sleeves and A-line skirt. Mrs. Gillespie, mother of the bridegroom, wore a light blue crepe gown with matching lace jacket. Their corsages were of pink sweetheart roses. Mrs. Cross, Sr., grandmother of the bride, wore a peach knit gown and a white rose corsage.

A dinner and reception, hosted by the bride's parents, followed at the American Legion post home. Mr. and Mrs. Paul N. Steptum served as host and hostess. Mrs. Donald Parsel was in charge of the guest book and Mrs. Stanley Towsley cut the cake. Music for dancing was by the Music Makers of Gaylord.

Wedding guests were present from Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Ohio, Alaska, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, New York, Minnesota and Timmons and Sarnia, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. Gillespie hosted a rehearsal dinner Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gabriel Campbell who, with Mrs. John Gillespie, assisted.

Morris and Baldwin Exchange Vows

A woodland glade on her parents property near Deer Lake was chosen by Deborah Alice Morris of Boyne City and Gary R. Baldwin of Charlevoix as the site of their early morning wedding on Sunday, June 22.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Morris of Charlevoix and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Baldwin of Adrian.

The Rev. David Graham of Adrian and the Rev. Fr. David Gemund of St. Thomas Aquinas church of Elmira officiated at the double ring service at 6:30 a.m. in the presence of their immediate families and close friends. Music was by Cyndy Perry on the dulcimer and David Deis on the guitar, both of Ypsilanti. They played "You Are So Beautiful" as the processional, "You are my Sunshine" as the recessional, "The Wedding Song" and the hymn "When two or more or more of us are gathered together, there is love." The latter was a solo by Mr. Deis.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore an ivory quiana gown she had designed and made for her wedding. The gown and her cathedral length veil was trimmed with lace that had been in the family for more than four generations. Both grandmothers sewed the lace on her veil. She carried a bouquet of roses, Japanese iris, bachelor buttons and yellow and white daisies.

Her sisters served as her attendants, Pamela Morris as maid of honor and Cheryl Mae, Theresa Louise and Carol Elizabeth Morris as bridesmaids. They wore identical princess gowns of flowered chintz fashioned with sheer sleeves and ruffles at the hemline and natural picture hats with streamers to match the pastel shades of the flowers in their gowns. They carried bouquets similar to the bride's.

David Clixby of Ypsilanti assisted the bridegroom as best man Kevin, Ronald and Brad Baldwin of Adrian, brothers of the bridegroom, were groomsmen and seated the guests.

Charlevoix Police Get Auxiliary Assistance

They come in the form of a volunteer four-man police auxiliary intended to assist Charlevoix's police department.

Already in full operation, the auxiliary is designed to add strength to the existing force by riding as an extra person on patrol duty as well as helping with crowd control during athletic events and during Charlevoix's many summer activities.

"They're another head with arms and legs to work, with the certified officer," Mol said.

During its five-month training period, the auxiliary went through an intensive program covering everything from police work to surveillance.

They also studied how to conduct traffic stops and their rolls when a police car must answer a complaint.

Mol emphasized that the auxiliary isn't replacing the city police force.

While they are carrying firearms, Mol said certified police make arrests and issue traffic citations.

The Charlevoix police chief said the group was needed because other law enforcement agencies who used to help with large crowds were no longer available because of their own mounting work loads.

Mol says Charlevoix will have better protection and that it will also double the manpower.

Uniforms for the auxiliary were donated by Charlevoix County Bank, First State Bank, Freedman Arteraft and Medusa Cement Plant.

Charlevoix joins East Jordan, who has had a volunteer force for several years.

Mol said he was taking applications for those who may wish to join the force. He can be contacted at Charlevoix City Hall.

HERE'S WHAT Charlevoix's new police auxiliary looks like.

County Divorce Rate Lower than U.S.

What is Charlevoix County's record with respect to divorce? Do marital splitups occur more often or less often locally than in other places?

As in most other parts of the country, there has been a great increase in recent years in the proportion of marriages that have been ending in divorce.

Back in 1958, the Census Bureau's figures show, the number of divorces in the United States was at a low level–368,000 for the year. Since then the trend has been sharply upward, reaching a high of 970,000 last year.

Related to the number of marriages that took place in 1974, estimates at 2,230,000 by the National Center for Health Statistics, it appears that there was 1 divorce for every 2.3 marriages.

The proportion was higher than usual, it is explained, due to the fact that there were fewer marriages than would normally have taken place. The recession caused many prospective couples to postpone their weddings.

In Charlevoix County, according to the latest survey by the Department of Commerce, the ratio of divorces and separations is somewhat smaller than in most communities.

Its figures show that for every 1,000 men and women of marriageable age in the local area there are 31 who are divorced or separated.

For the United States as a whole, the rate is 53 per 1,000. In the East North Central States it is 50 per 1,000 and in the State of Michigan, 52.

In actual numbers, the latest official tabulation shows 360 local residents to be divorced or separated. This does not include those who have remarried after having been divorced. There are an estimated 900 in that category.

The trend in many sections of the country is in the direction of easier divorces. A number of states have liberalized their divorce laws in the last few years.

In some states, for example, a couple may obtain a divorce if they signify before a judge that irreconcilable differences exist between them. In other areas dissolution of a marriage is permitted if a man and wife have been apart for a lengthy period.

Local Horse Show Planned for July

The Charlevoix Wranglers 4-H Saddle Club will hold its fourth annual 4-H and Open horse show next Saturday, July 5, at the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club on Highway 30 north of Charlevoix.

Admission to the show is $1.00 per person with the exception of Senior Citizens and children under 12, who will be admitted free. Also, those buying raffle tickets for the grand prize, a $50 gift certificate from Oleson Food Store, will be admitted by showing a raffle ticket.

There will be 29 classes in four age groups in the show. The classes are Halter-Mares, Halter-Geldings, Halter-Stallions, Fitting and Showmanship, Western Pleasure, Western Horsemanship, Versatility, English Pleasure, English Equitation, Jumping, Cloverleaf, and Speed and Action.

Participants will perform in the "Pony" age group, 13 and under group, 14 through 18 group and 19 and over group.

There will be ribbon awards for first through fifth place and a high point trophy for each age group.

Further information about the show may be obtained from Mrs. Lavonia DeYoung, 547-9448, or Miss Valerie Peters, 547-9477.

Dona Bellows Gets State Spot

OLIVET – Dona Bellows of Charlevoix was elected to the County Board of Commissioners representing Mastenbrook County at the 35th annual American Legion Auxiliary Girls State, June 14-21 at Olivet College.

She was among 500 high school juniors from throughout Michigan taking part in the program designed to give high school girls experience in the practical exercise of politics.

During the week-long program, delegates elected city and county officers, state officials and state legislators. They heard advice on the various aspects of politics from Ms. N. Hansen Becomes Mayor

With a fourth of his term behind him, Edward P. Hansen was officially proclaimed mayor of Charlevoix following action taken Friday by the Charlevoix County Board of Canvassers.

In proclaiming Hansen the winner in the General Election on April 7, the board approved the following motion: Due to the lack of evidence pretaining to the allegations in the recount and that Edward P. Hansen received 635 votes and Ralph McRae received 623 votes that the Board of Canvassers certify Edward P. Hansen as Mayor of Charlevoix.

Lois Wasoski, Doris Saunders, Abna Swanson and Beth Genelt, as members of the board, gave their approval to the motion.

McRae had called for the recount, listing numerous irregularities in the General Election, after losing to Hansen in the General Election by 12 votes. McRae had defeated Hansen by 44 votes in the Primary Election in February. Hansen ran as a sticker candidate in the General Election.

Westenbroek Appointed

Roger Westenbroek of Charlevoix, general manager of Top O' Michigan Rural Electric Company, was recently appointed by Gov. William G. Milliken to a high-level Advisory Commission on Electric Power Alternatives.

The Commission, created by Executive Order and announced in Milliken's 1975 State of the State message, is to recommend state actions aimed at guaranteeing that Michigan will have enough electric power to meet the likely future needs of residential, commercial and industrial customers. Specifically, the Commission will study ways to finance the construction of new generating capacity.

"I am particularly hopeful that this Commission will recommend to me a program of financial assistance for new generating capacity that will slow down the increases in the price of electricity," Milliken said in announcing Commission appointments.

JEWELRY and SKIN ALLERGIES?
(Final part of a 3 part series)

John Reusch

And what is the treatment for the rash which is not only ugly but also uncomfortable? "One can minimize the problem by wearing the jewelry loosely and by applying talcum powder between the jewelry and the skin. Or the jewelry can be temporarily coated with a plastic spray which will last for a few hours. If the rash persists, one should see a dermatologist," Dr. Bystryn answers.

The jeweler should also know that stainless steel is safe because of the manner way in which it contains nickel. When piercing ears, always use studs of pure gold or stainless steel. Dr. Bystryn advises, because when cheap metal is in contact with damaged skin, there is a great frequency of an allergy forming.

In summarizing his observations on skin and jewelry, Dr. Bystryn had these encouraging words, "In general, I can safely say that the better the jewelry, the less likely it is to induce an allergic reaction."

SOME 22 members of the Michigan Chapter of the Submarine Veterans of World War II were in Charlevoix last weekend for their annual summer convention.

U.S. Submarine Veterans Visit Local Memorial

Twenty-two members of the Michigan Chapter of the Submarine Veterans of World War II and an equal number of auxillary members gathered here for their annual summer convention.

Col. George L. Halverson, Director of the Michigan State Police, as the guest speaker, spoke on the need of civilians to become involved in law enforcement by showing an interest and respect for those involved in law enforcement.

At the Memorial Service held in East Park Sunday morning, the names of the 52 submarines "still on patrol" were named by the retiring commander Ralph Waru-strom of Swartz Creek as a bell tolled and a red carnation for each vessel was tossed on the waters of Round Lake. A salute was fired by a firing squad from the U.S.Air Force and taps sounded by Kevin Gallagher with Kay Currey playing the echo.

play. Because the kids are not around as much, the courts are open more. This is great for the adults but bad for Junior development.

Tennis in Charlevoix is going through growing pains. The new system initiated by Boss is a way to cope with these pains. The coming of the attendant system represented the end of the chaos at the public courts.

Despite a leveling off in interest, tennis will always be a popular sport in Charlevoix. It is fun as well as great exercise. Also, it, is the least expensive of all individual sports.

Congratulations to Ike Boss for a successful first month as Charlevoix's recreation director. His enthusiasm for getting things done (i.e. the new attendant system and the improved softball fields are two examples) is quite refreshing.

Cause Anguish to Hundreds

PBB Effects Linger on 1½-Years Later

By PEG OHLE

It's been over a year and a half since the accident happened but its effects linger on, causing anguish to hundreds of Michigan farmers.

Some time in the fall of 1973 a batch of an industrial chemical, polybrominated bi-phenyl (PBB) was supplied to Farm Bureau Services, Inc. instead of a feed supplement that had been ordered. The PBB was mixed with feed and wound up on Michigan farms.

It took several months to determine what was causing sickness and death to thousands of cattle and chickens and other farm animals. When the culprit PBB was discovered, the Department of Agriculture started to quarantine the sick animals and bury the dead. They also set up standards for the sale of milk and meat from PBB contaminated animals.

Today, in Charlevoix and Antrim Counties, many farmers are still waiting for financial settlements from Farm Bureau Services and the Michigan Chemical Company (which supplied the PBB) to cover their loss of livelihood. Others are concerned about their large quantities of PBB contaminated meat, milk and eggs had on their bodies? If PBB causes sickness, deformities and death to animals, what about humans?

Local Families

The Courier recently talked with some of these families.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Grace of South Arm Township got their claim for damages in early and have been re-imbursed for all losses they could "put a dollar value on" but nothing for a whole year without income and the worry that took a year out of their lives, as Mrs. Grace puts it. The Graces lost 20 head of beef cattle and a bull from PBB poisoning. They have had tissue and blood samples taken, both of which show traces of PBB in their bodies.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Burks of East Jordan are still waiting for settlement covering the 145 head of cattle they lost. Burks borrowed money at ten percent interest to have his barns and lots steam-cleaned to remove PBB traces, and to get his crops started.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Langs of Bellaire received a "small" settlement for their flock of chickens, but nothing for the building they had to burn down because of contaminntion. Their tissue and bluod tests show a high percentage of PBB in the flesh and traces in the blood. Results of tests on their three children have not been received, but Mrs. Lange is worried. Their eight year old daughter had been suffering with stomach pains and running a fever. "At first I thought it was rheumatic fever," Mrs. Langs said, "but the doctor has ruled that out. He doesn't know what it is." She also said she and her husband have had "joint problems."

Fair Settlement

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Conant of Central Lake have received a settlement they "thought fair" from Farm Bureau Services and Michigan Chemical. In all, they lost 145 cows and calves from PBB poisoning. The Conants are now in the process of re-building their herd.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Britton of Charlevoix have not yet received a settlement for their 53 cattle which were quarantined last December. Since then 18 have died and the Brittons are feeding the rest "just to keep them alive" until they die on the farm or are taken away for slaughter and burial. Britton says his claim number is 403 and Farm Bureau Services is now processing those in the 300's."

Mr. and Mrs. LaVern Hart of East Jordan are also waiting for settlement of their claim for the loss of 60 head of cattle which were removed from their farm, salgathered and buried because of PBB. "We can't do anything until we receive the money," Hart says.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Warner of Charlevoix lost over 200 head of cattle to PBB. They agreed to a settlement last month but have not yet received any money. They are not happy with the settlement but decided to take it so they could start building a new herd. They, too, are worried about their health because tests reveal PBB in their bodies. "I wouldn't think about having children now," says the young Mrs. Warner.

Study PBB

The herds of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reidel of Boyne City and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Nemecek of East Jordan are in a different category. They have not been quarantined because their PBB tests are below the three-tenths parts per million deemed by the Department of Agriculture as safe. They are still selling their milk.

How PBB affects dairy cows was told recently by four researchers from Michigan State University. Their study reveals that cows with high concentrations of PBB produce 50 percent less milk and have a high incidence of stillborn calves. Uterine infections, retained placentas and stiff tendons in newborn calves also were noted.

"Another interesting fact is that the levels of PBB in the feces indicated a significant recycling of PBB..." the researchers said.

Some calves born of contaminated cows, did not grow normally, some had chronic pneumonia, one had an overshot jaw and some showed no abnormalities.

The chemical's effect on humans is not known at this time but the Michigan Department of Public Health has repeatedly stated it hasn't been able to find any conclusive evidence of human sicknesses caused by PBB. A scientific study by the Department concludes that "no disease or symptom that occurred consistently" could be isolated. The Department also suggests that the large economic losses suffered by farmers due to PBB has been an unusually heavy nervous strain on them, which could cause some of the illnesses.

Health Study

The Michigan Department of Public Health in conjunction with the Federal government, has set up plans for a long-term study of the affects of PBB obn humans, but its results will not be known for many years.

As to the financial side of the problem, Farm Bureau Services has settled 323 claims of the 575 filed. This represents some 23,000 head of cattle and thousands of other farm animals and fowl. Also, the State Legislature has passed a bill to permit the state to grant three and a half percent loans to farmers whose livestock was destroyed as a result of PBB poisoning. The bill is now in committee in the Senate.

Dr. Carl Leupnitz, Petoskey veterinarian who handled many of the early cases of PBB poisoning, says it has been some time since he heard of a new case. "In fact, I haven't drawn a smple for a long time," he continues.

With PBB poisoning apparently under control, Dr. Leupnitz believes that "perhaps we have over-reacted to the whole thing."

PRESIDENT FORD will join a long list of famous people who have visited the stately Grand Hotel when he makes a visit to the resort Saturday.

President Ford Joins Mackinac Royalty

MACKINAC ISLAND--From the day in 1634 when Jean Nicolet paddled his canoe into Mackinac Island harbor searching for the coast of China--to the nuclear age of the seventies--Mackinac Island has played a key role in Michigan and American History.

President Ford's trip to the island Saturday, July 12, marks the visit of another world dignitary to the historic island.

The President is expected to arrive here late Saturday and spend the night at the summer residence of Gov. William G. Milliken as a guest of the governor after playing in a Traverse City benefit golf tournament and attending a concert at Interlochen Arts Academy.

On Sunday, Ford will address an 8:30 a.m. breakfast meeting of the Sixth Circuit Conference of Federal District and Circuit Judges at the Grand Hotel on the Island.

Horses still clip-clop past the resting gentry on the porches of the white houses and hotels dotting the island.

They beat our a rhythm that helped calm the nerves of Grover Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt, William Howard Taft and Franklin D. Roosevelt. Not to mention such regulars as Marshall Field, Mark Twain, William Waldorf Astor and George Eastman.

Filled with pictures and newspaper accounts, the salon walls of the Grand Hotel reveal a wealth of information about these visitors and the island's rich past.

Several early accounts tell how the Indians worshipped this Island--to them it was the home of their Great Spirit, Gitchie Manitou, who allegedly entered the island through Arch Rock and dwelt in his large wigwam--Sugar Loaf Rock.

The Indians called it Michilimackinac--which means "The Great Turtle"--believing that it had arisen from the Straits through supernatural means.

The French first controlled this area through their mission and fort at St. Ignace, according to another account. They later transferred the fort to Mackinaw City. Then in 1763, the British seized control of the Mackinac Area by treaty after the French-Indian War.

The American flag was finally hoisted in 1796 under terms of the Jay Treaty. Hopelessly outnumbered, Americans were forced to surrender after the British started the War of 1812 with a surprise attack on the island.

Americans were unable to unseat the British until the summer residents who America's first corporation was established here in 1796, when John Jacob Astor opened the American Fur Company. By 1820, Mackinac Island had captured 95 percent of the Northwest fur market.

Near the historic fur company is the Biddle House, first home built on Mackinac and the Retail Store, where Dr. William Beaumont was called one day in June, 1822, to do what he could for a man who shot himself through the stomach. Resulting experiments into the digestive system made medical history.

By the 1830's, fur business declined and islanders began looking in other directions for sources of income.

John Oliver Plank, from a sleepy little Ohio town, came to the Great Lakes in 1886 and began construction of Plank's Grand Hotel. He completed the world's largest summer resort hotel in 86 days.

The island became a national park in 1875 and was eventually ceded back to the state in 1895. Three-quarters, or 1,700 acres of the island are under the jurisdiction of the Mackinac Island Park Commission.

Pictures along the hotel gallon walls show early summer residents who

Indians Scare Local Campers

Joe and Pat Yats may think twice before camping out again on the Fourth of July.

The Charlevoix couple were told a large band of Indians were coming to take over Bell's Bay state forest Campground, located just south of here, and didn't stick around to confirm the rumor.

The couple were some of an estimated 60 campers who were asked to leave after a car carrying Indians raced through the area Wednesday night shouting they planned to seize the park over the weekend.

"I guess it was around supper time when that car full of Indians came whipping through the park," Mrs. Yats recalled in an interview Thursday morning.

"They were tooting and yelling they wanted to talk to the man of the house."

She said that the Indians told her and husband to get out of the park if they want their children to be alive.

Mrs. Yats said other neighboring campers told her that they were given similar messages.

"About midnight, a conservation officer came to the trailer and told us the Indians were going to try to come and take over the park.

"They didn't tell we had to leave, but suggested we consider it."

Mrs. Yats said two different cars stopped to make sure her family was all right.

"We just packed the trailer and kids and went home," she said.

"We would rather be safe than sorry."

The Charlevoix resident said her family will camp again, but it gives her the jitters to think about it.

DNR officials said the campgrounds was never officially closed and that the disturbance was no different than others that have taken place in campgrounds across the state.

Michigan State Police said they had no disturbance reports from its patrol that made a routine check at 12:15 a.m. Thursday.

No Male Lifeguards

I have enjoyed reading past issues of the Courier, especially that which concerns lifeguards at our beaches. However, I do notice that the four lifeguards who are portrayed this week are very lovely young ladies. Where are the men lifeguards? I feel that in the coming season perhaps the jobs that are going on should be allowed as they are, but next season there should be at least an equal amount of men lifeguards to lady lifeguards. I think that this is somewhat of a sex discrimination in reverse. I have been a lifeguard myself, and I understand some of the situation that goes on, but, I feel, again, this is sex discrimination in reverse and there should be some men lifeguards. Please edit this.

Lost and Found

How in the world do I get to the Courier office to place a lost and found ad? That's all I want to know. (Editor's Note: The Courier office is still in the same location on Bridge St., near the bridge, and is open from 8:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, holidays excepted. Our phone number is 547-6558, and someone will answer during that time.)

Shuttle Service

I think the shuttle bus service would be great. It would be a lot cheaper than the taxi cab I have to take to work, six days a week. The taxi cab driver makes more money than I do in my job. Thank you.

Thanks Police

I want to thank all the law enforcement officers for their help in giving us a safe Fourth of July. We have had a lot of people in the area and the police were extremely helpful in making it a safe place to be. Thanks again to our area police.

Bridge Closing

I don't know who called the bomb scare in last weekend to the Charlevoix bridge tender, but I didn't think it was a bit funny. I hope the person who made the call realizes the problems he caused. What would have happened if an emergency vehicle was trying to go across the bridge? Unfortunately many people were inconvenienced and it's a shame.

Campground Problem

I have been hearing a lot about the problems at Bell's Bay Campgrounds. Is there something we can do to stop all the hippies from disturbing those who like to camp? Maybe we need to have a full-time ranger living on the grounds.

Channel Work Continues

The banks of the Pine River channel from Lake Michigan to the bridge will look like a park when work for landscaping, sodding, lighting and sidewalks planned by the U.S. Corps of Engineers is completed.

Detailed plans show that there will be 53 plantings of shrubs, evergreens and trees, mostly of the flowering variety, across 50 foot strips of land on both sides of the channel.

Digging and leveling for the sidewalk along the north side of the channel was begun last week by the Corps and a spokesman in their Grand Haven office told the Courier that the Corps' work is scheduled for November completion.

Landscaping for the project will be sub-contracted by the Durocher Construction Company of Cheboygan, the prime contractor, the spokesman said.

Illegal Immigration: What Can We Do About it?

John Tanton Discusses U.S. Population Problem

PETOSKEY--Dr. John Tanton is waging a war against problems he can't see.

Each year he flights thousands of people who cross the U.S. border illegally and journey nameleissly to different parts of the country.

An estimated one million of these modern day wetbacks sneak illegally into the United States every year from Mexico alone to get a job and earn ten times more than they could in their home country.

Named recently as President of Zero Population Growth, Tanton travels across the country telling about the woes of overpopulation and illegal immigration.

Around Northern Michigan, the self-styled population expert hits the mash potato and gravy service club circuit, but he's also been before Congressional hearings doing what he can to solve the illegal immigration.

Currently, the National Population Chairman of the Sierra Club, he has served as a member of the Michigan Wilderness and Natural Areas Gubernatorial Advisory Board and as President of the Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood Association.

"My interest in the population problem got started in the late 1950's and towards the end of the 1960's, I began doing a good deal of speaking on the nation's problem," Tanton said.

"I began to look at what might be done about the population growth in this country and broke it down into several categories."

One category that has drawn his attention is immigration.

Tanton said the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service estimates there are between 650,000 and one million illegal immigrants annually, with some 1,200,000 people added to the U.S. population in 1974 as a result of births in excess of deaths. Also included are 400,000 legal immigrants.

"The sizable number of illegal immigrants came as a surprise to me and I find it has been a surprise to most," he said.

"As far as illegal immigration is concerned, it has been building up over the last ten years and promises to swamp us if solutions are not soon found.

As far as convincing people that something must be done about illegal immigration, Tanton says it's no problem. The problem is what to do about it.

"It's having some major impact on the job market and when you look to the potential in the future, it's a fairly frightening thing."

Tanton says there has been a lot of interest in illegal immigration for many years and that ZPG is riding the crest of the wave there.

"The thing we try to contribute to, especially in immigration, is its demographic aspects to let people know that our projection is that illegal immigration could add 40 million persons to our country by the year 2,000," he said.

"That's two more Californias made up of persons from other countries with no education or skills."

The ZPG president says that while handling the problem is difficult, there are a number of things that can be done.

"The U.S. is one of the world's wealthiest nations and yet it strips away the scarce intellectual resources in the less developed nations," he said.

"These countries lose engineers and other skilled persons, which impairs efforts for development and give rise to illegal immigration."

Tanton suggests that the U.S. close down almost all of the slots for immigration of skilled persons because he says it is damaging to countries of origin.

"We should ask ourselves what effect this is having on some of the countries that these people are coming from."

The Petoskey physician says the U.S. needs to establish a basic population policy and just how big it wants to become.

"Right now, it's just not being done at all," he said.

"It's just been allowed to happen."

Tanton says the work has to be done by Congress, who will have to assign a committee that has the greatest capacity to something about population growth.

Tanton conceives a U.S. population policy having three components that includes control of illegal immigration, reduction of legal Immigration and a public information outlet to inform people about the population growth and its implications on them.

Once a demographic policy is made, Tanton says the U.S. will be able to take illegal immigration much more seriously.

Youth Theatre Troupe Sets Area Stage

There is a new theater group in Petoskey sponsored by North Central Michigan College and made up of high school and college students.

It is Torch Light Theatre, and this summer, working with the nationally known "The Young Americans' group it will present five performances, six nights each.

Members of the Torch Light Theatre group were seleeted by auditions in Los Angeles, Detroit, Lansing and Petoskey. Thousands tried out but there was room for only 50 performers, 18 orchestra members and 16 staff members.

Three Petoskey students were successful in the auditions, Paul Huybrechts and Lara Briggs, seniors at Petoskey High School and Lori Mackie, a junior at the high school.

The Young Americans group is headquartered in Los Angeles and directed by Milton C. Anderson, who has a summer home on Crooked Lake and hopes to make Petoskey summer headquarters for the group. Anderson started The Young Americans in 1962 as a non-profit organization. They travel all over the country, performing for enjoyment, not money. "We don't want to go professional because that loses the group feeling for the enjoyment of music," Amy Grove, a member of the group says.

There are 31 members of The Young Americans group in Petoskey this summer to add their experience and talents to the younger Torch Light Theatre.

The first show will be "Young Americans in Concert", which includes music, dancing and comedy routines from the 1920's to 1970's–something for everybody. There will be performances on

In Question About VA Money?

Lois M. Wasoski, Charlevoix County Veterans Counselor, has announced new hours for her office in the County Building.

The office will be open Mooday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Mrs. Wososki has also furnished the following information of interest to veterans.

Schools

Veterans who plan to attend school for the first time under the GI Bill this fall must act promptly if they want advance payment of educational checks.

The VA says a veteran who plans to enter school should first make certain he has a certificate of eligibility. These may be obtained from the nearest VA office.

The certificate must be presented to the sheool of the veteran's choice. The school, if it accepts the veteran, will forward it and the enrollment certification on the reverse said to the VA.

Officials explained if the agency receives this information at least 30 days before registration, veterans who train half time or more may pick up their first check when they register. The first check will cover training allowances for the first two months, or one month and a portion of a month, depending on the registration date.

Under current rates, a single veteran in school full time receives $270 monthly. Veterans with one dependent draw $321; two dependents $366, and with three or more dependents, an additional $22 is added for each dependent over two.

Half time rates are $135 monthly for a single veteran; with one dependent $160, and for two dependents $182. Veterans with three or more dependents receive an additional $11 monthly for each dependent.

Life Insurance

Veterans who were discharged between April 3, 1970, and August 1, 1974, have only until August 1, 1975, to apply for Veterans Group Life Insurance (VGLI). $20,000 for a monthly premium of only $3.40 for veterans under age 35, and $6.80 for those over 35. It is a five-year, nonrenewable term insurance policy, designed as interim protection during readjustment to civilian life.

The veteran will be insured for a period of five years (60 months) less the time elapsing between the termination of his SGLI coverage (the insurance he had while in service) and August 1, 1974, the date the VGLI program became effective. For example, if he was separated on January 1, 1973, and had SGLI in force, the coverage would have terminated on May 1, 1973, (120 days after separation). The period from May 1, 1973, to August 1, 1974 is 15 months. The 15 months subtracted from 60 months (that the five-year term period) gives him 45 months of eligible VGLI coverage.

By taking out VGLI, the veteran also reinstates his right to convert his servicemen's Group Life Insurance policy (GGLI) in an individual policy at standard rates regardless of his health or physaeal condition. Normally, this privilage terminates 120 days after discharge. Those covered by VGLI can convert on termination of the five-year VGLI policy.

Application by veterans separated before August 1, 1974, is made on VA Form 29-8715, "Application for Veterans Group Life Insurance." Veterans separated on or after just apply within 120 days after separation. They will have received the application form (numbered 29-8714) automatically on discharge. Certain retirement reservists are also eligible for VGLI, at rates ranging up to $10 per month for $20,000 of coverage.

County Map Space Being Sold

Carlton (Mick) Smith, working with the Little Traverse Printing Company of Petoskey, is calling on Chambers of Commerce and business and recreational establishments in the county to solicit advertising for the Charlevoix County Courtesy Guide.

The use of advertising in the Guide is saving the county several thousands of dollars in printing costs.

Contained within the Guide will be a map of the county, notations on camping sites, skiing areas, golf courses and other recreation facilities, along with advertisements from various sources. Thirty-five thousand copies of the guide will be distributed during late summer and fall.

Illegal Immigration Everyone's Problem

Each year thousands of people cross the United States border illegally and journey to different parts of the country.

While the illegal immigrants are not bad people, they do cause a serious problem.

In an interview with the Charlevoix Courier this week, Dr. John Tanton, an area ophthalmologist, discusses the need for the United States to find a solution to the problem.

Named recently as President of Zero Population Growth, Tanton travels across the country telling about the woes of overpopulation and illegal immigration.

Leonard F. Chapman, Jr., Commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Services, says the illegal immigration problem has grown dramatically.

In 1961, Chapman said the service apprehended a mere 29,000 illegal aliens in the United States and removed them.

In fiscal 1974, the Immigration Service apprehended 800,000 and expects it to run into 1 million this year.

By far the largest number, some 90 per cent, come from Mexico. Others come from Central and South American countries, such as the Dominican Republic, Jamaica, Guatemala and Costa Rica.

The increasing number of illegal immigrations into the United States is drawing considerable attention from both government and labor leaders searching ways to curb the nation's high unemployment level.

The Immigration Service has estimated that it could open up one million new jobs this year--simply by removing illegal aliens holding those jobs if they were able to receive an additional $50 million and 2,200 new employees.

Under a proposed new enforcement effort, federal officials say they would remove from the country illegal aliens who now hold at least 364,000 jobs in industry, nearly that many in agriculture and some 300,000 in service trades.

While the problem continues to be particularly bad along the 2,000 mile border that stretches from San Diego to Brownsville, illegal immigration is growing more complex.

In the forties and fifties, the problem appeared to be primarily with agricultural labor overstaying their alloted time to pick fruit and vegetables.

But now, Immigration Service officials say there is a shift toward moving into industrialized areas. They estimate some 15,000 to 20,000 work illegally in Chicago industry alone.

Immigration officials say the question now is whether or not Americans really want these jobs.

They say there are certain menial jobs that many, because of their education levels, don't want.

But, someone coming from another country might be quick to take the job because he can make more in a month than he could previously have made in a year.

Besides occupying badly needed jobs, a Congressional subcommittee in a report on its investigation of the Immigration and Naturalization Service estimated that roughly $115 million is lost annually in tax revenue to federal and state governments on the income of aliens who are in the country illegally.

U.S. Attorney General William Saxbe late last year in a speech to a Texas Bar Association said that illegal immigrants pose a direct threat to those in lowest economic groups.

In many instances, illegal immigrants hold jobs that legal immigrants from Mexico or the citizens of Mexican descent could otherwise have.

The Attorney General said many employers contribute greatly to the problem by knowingly hiring illegal aliens--happy to impose low pay and bad working conditions at little risk.

He said the illegal immigrants not only take jobs from citizens, but in the process tend to depress pay scales and undermine labor unions.

James F. Greene, Deputy Commissioner of the U.S. Immigration Service, adds that illegal immigrants contribute to health problems because they do not have proper vaccinations.

Like Dr. Tanton, we do not feel that the illegal immigrants are bad people. We are simply concerned about the problems they cause the United States.

We need to look at the problem very closely and come up with a solution that will be equitable to our country and people wanting to migrate to the United States.

It is people like Dr. Tanton who will help us in finding that solution.

Beach Problems?

Dear Mr. Editor,

We are writing to you about the sand on the Charlevoix Beach.

A lot of people who go to the Charlevoix Beach complain there is not enough sand on the beach.

Last summer our friend put up a new house. They had 2 or 3 truck loads of sand, and it all went to Mt. McSauba Beach. We feel that Mt. McSauba Beach didn't need the sand and it should have gone to the Charlevoix Beach.

We have also heard complaints about the prickers (pine needles). When people go to the concession stand, they get prickers in their feet.

We feel something should be done about the sand at the Charlevoix Beach.

Scouts Say Thanks

Dear Mr. Winter,

I would like to thank all the people of Charlevoix who volunteered their time to make the Charlevoix Girl Scout Camp a huge success.

Without the help of women who baked cookies, drove in car-pools and spent time getting hot and dirty at camp, we could not have had 75 scouts from Charlevoix go to day camp this year.

A special thank you goes to the people who gave up five days to dedicate themselves to girls and the outdoors; Evelyn Eake, Elgie Weisler, Nancy Fowler, Gail Levengood, Paula Thomas, Beth Strawbridge, Leisa Slone, Sandi Speiles, Louise Everts, and Eileen Nunemaker, Ellen Smith, our purchaser took her vacation to buy, sort and distribute groceries, household supplies, and craft projects. It is people like this who boost the support of Girl Scouting in our area.

I also wish to thank publically the Lions Club, the Kiwanis Club, and the Senior Citizens for their donations of money which enabled us to buy shade canopies and to equip a first aide center. Other donations were received from David Fowler and Freida Novotney.

It is impossible to name all who helped before and during camp but we'd like to mention also all the program consultants and nurses. They helped us have a safe and varied program, quite a feat for a camp of ages 6-14.

It is the sincere hope of all who were involved in the Charlevoix Girl Scout Day Camp that next year will be even bigger and better than this year. It will be if we can get these dedicated people and more like them to come to camp next year.

Sincerely,
Georgene Alger, director

Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

The Clocks have just returned from a holiday weekend visit to Detroit more confused than ever about the fate of Michigan's largest city.

In truth, there is a soap-opera quality about what is happening in the southeastern part of the state that would do credit to Lever Brothers.

Will Detroit ever be able to win back lost residents now living in the suburbs and thereby save itself from total extinction?

Will the Renaissance Center on the waterfront ever attract any tenants, while other downtown business property is standing vacant?

What about the suburbs if Detroit effects a resurrection? Is there really a need in southeastern Michigan for a dozen different metropolitan areas?

As a native Detroiter, a trip home is always a traumatic experience, with the degree of shock depending on the length of intervals between visits. This trip was our first in two years, and the amount of new commercial construction underway or completed in both Detroit and the suburbs is astounding.

The City of Southfield, which lies just north of Detroit, has become a gigantic office-apartment complex with literally hundreds of high-rises destroying the bucolic vistas of yesteryear. The area is rapidly losing its countrified air, since Southfield is one of the major retreats of former Detroiters seeking a haven from the spectre of interracial busing. It is "close in", well connected with the city via expressways, yet it lies beyond Eight Mile-rd. and the jurisdiction of the Detroit Board of Education.

Yet despite its swollen affluence, I am told that more than a million square feet of office space in Southfield is going begging --while millions of additional square feet already are completed or under construction in downtown Detroit.

There is a battle shaping up here that could be of monstrous proportions and disastrous consequences to either Detroit or the suburbs — depending on where the next generation decides to live.

Detroit, like so many cities, has been the victim of urban renewal — an idiotic scheme to pull down the good old buildings which served as the heart of the city for so many years and replace them with public housing. I guess that must be the idea, because public housing predominates in areas of the central city already razed. However, much more land stands fallow, a sprawling wilderness of vacant lots where old Detroit neighborhoods once stood.

Although Detroit is generally regarded as the crime capital of North America, with some 803 murders on the books last year alone, I was curious about the downtown section after an absence of many years. My sister, who lives and works in Plymouth, assured me that the downtown section was virtually as safe for white visitors today as it was when we were kids. The vast majority of murderers and murderees are black.

"There were some sections we wouldn't go into in the 30's. And you still don't go into them today," she said matter-of-factly.

To prove her point, she accompanied the Clock family on a shopping trip to "Hudson's Downtown." I was shocked to find on a Saturday afternoon that there were so few people on the streets. Saturday pedestrian traffic on Woodward-ave. used to be elbow to elbow in the good old days.

We found plenty of empty spaces in a parking structure east of Woodward and were soon pushing our way through the revolving doors into the cool recesses of the J.L. Hudson Co. "the largest department store in the world" when I was a kid. (It may still be, for all I know.)

The store was just as posh as ever, although some of the fancy old display cases have been replaced with chromium racks in keeping with 20th century merchandising. But I noticed as we rode up the escalator that floor after floor was virtually deserted, compared to the crowds who used to jam Hudson's every day.

Hudson's has always prided itself on its sales staff, which in years past was made up largely of super-efficient, white professional career women who knew their merchandise inside and out. You had to be pretty sharp to get a sales job at Hudson's.

I am happy to report that the sales staff hasn't changed. I think I recognized some of the faces from when I was a kid. But something new has been added. About half the sales staff is now black--and the newcomers are super-efficient, professional career women who know their merchandise inside and out.

Needless to say, most of the customers also are black: Tidy grandmothers poking through racks of children's clothes; weary mothers trying to keep their broods together on the escalators; black fathers pinching the toes of children's corduroys in the shoe department to see where the toes come, just like white fathers.

I didn't feel threatened with bodily injury once while shopping at Hudsons. And I can't help but wonder what is going to become of all the high rises in Southfield if Detroiters suddenly rediscover how charming their inner city can be.

Erma Bombeck — Money Can't Buy Happiness

The other night my husband was squinting over a book when he said, "How big is the lightbulb in this lamp?"

"I think it is 40 watts," I said.

"You have a bigger one in your sewing machine. How much would a 150-watt lightbulb cost?"

"About 89 cents."

He recorded 89 cents on a slip of paper. "And how about salt and pepper shakers for the table? I've heard of some families that have one set for the stove and one for the table. How much would an extra set cost?"

He scribbled down $1 and continued, "What are pencils selling for these days? The little wooden ones that you put by the phone and write down messages when someone calls?"

"I think pencils are still a dime or 15 cents. What are you doing?"

"I see. And what about a simple comb? One that I could have for my very own without hair in it that doesn't match mine. Are they out of sight?"

"A comb costs about 29 cents."

"Very good. Now, what about a whole newspaper?"

"A what?"

"A whole newspaper. One that hasn't been turned inside out, clipped, folded, bent, spindled, mutilated and littered all over the bathroom before I get to read it?"

"Fifteen cents," I said tiredly.

"Incredible?" he said touching a ballpoint pen to his tongue. "Are they still selling those little woven cushions for the car seat? The ones that are new and don't have metal springs ripping into your leg everytime you slide into the seat?"

"Write down $3.98," I said.

"Oh, and what about those little tables that some people put their forks and tongs on when they cook out of doors instead of using a garbage can lid?"

"They would run you about $5.95."

Busily, he tallied up the total. "Can you believe it? $12.41 would not only buy me happiness, it would buy me ecstacy!"

That's the recession for you. There was a time when $12.41 would have bought hysteria!

If it Fitz by Jim Fitzgerald — The Spartans Are Pure

A sad prediction is that Michigan State may play in the Rose Bowl next Jnn. I if the game site can be switched from Pasndena to San Quentin.

MSU, my old alma mater, has got trouble. I knew it for sure when I received a letter from Clifton Wharton Jr., university president. He addressed me as a "Spartan Supporter" which sounds like something to prevent a hernia. But nevertheless, it was flattering to be thought of during these parlous times.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) is investigating charges that MSU is guilty of recruiting violations. Already it has been revealed that at least one football player was buying goodies with a credit card belonging to a wealthy MSU alumnus who is a big jock fan and who lives next door to an MSU executive. None of which would seem suspicious except the alumnus is a lawyer.

It isn't yet known what other sins the MSU football staff may or may not have committed. The snoopy newspapers have hinted at all sorts of dastardly deeds, thus arousing many Spartan Supporters who wondered about why their university didn't deny everything or at least say the whole thing was an accident caused by a 4th string cheerleader who has since been traded to Indinna for a bag of dirty towels. Essentially, that's why President Wharton wrote to us supporters. He wanted to explain why he has ordered all MSU employees to make "no comment" to nosy reporters.

As an educator, President Wharton is naturally inclined to write such things as: "The tendency of the media to report the allegations and conduct their own investigation undermines a procedure designed to protect the rights of persons charged and the objectivity of the investigation." Translated, that means the lousy newsmen are trying to report news instead of performing a responsible journalistic function, such as selling shoes.

But President Wharton doesn't have to explain to me. I know his coaches wouldn't do anything illegal to attract great football players to MSU. Goodness.

Just because great football players can fill 80,000 stadium seats, at $7 per fanny...Just because great football players win games and coaches must win or get fired...Just because a university's prestige is measured by its won-lost record and 1 million drunken alumni get vicious when their prestige suffers...Just because a competing university is offering $250 per yard gained plus an IBM directorship for quarterbacks.....Just because public streets aren't safe for the childen of a losing coach...Just because winning coaches get their own TV shows and phone calls from the White House...Just because great football players make millions of dollars for universities, so why shouldn't they get a bigger hunk of the action than free books and dormitory food?...

Just because of those little facts, why should a coach be tempted? As I said, goodness. In fact, goodness gracious.

Obviously, President Wharton is somewhat dismayed by dumb newsmen who don't seem to understand the built-in purity of big-time college football. A solution to this problem may have been found at Georgia Tech. It was recently revealed that Tech awarded an athletic scholarship to a young man who is not an athlete. But he is the son of Furman Bisher, sports editor of the Atlanta Journal.

Some clods were crass enough to suggest the university might have had a smelly motive for being kind to Mr. Bisher. Again, goodness. Everyone knows newsmen are at least as pure as coaches.

My son graduates from high school next year. President Wharton. He would love to become a Spartan Supporter, even if he isn't a jock.

Meet Charlevoix

Meet Mrs. Withers

With summer officially here, tourists begin flocking to the land of fun in the sun, and a popular place to cool off and get a bite to eat is in one of Charlevoix's many restaurants. This week the Courier talked to Zelma Withers, owner and manager of Mont's Restaurant.

The restaurant, located downtown across from East Park was opened some 55 years ago with a partnership existing between Mont Withers and a second party. Mont later bought out the second party and the Withers have been in the restaurant business ever since.

COURIER: How long have you been in the restaurant business and how did you get your start?

MRS. WITHERS: I grew up in Erie, Pennsylvania, married Mont Withers, and moved to Charlevoix. She claims to be only 32-years-old, she's been in the restuarant business for 55 years. She started out waiting tables at Harbor Point and Wequetonsing. Later she waited tables at Mont's, but was mostly cashier doing managerial work.

COURIER: With the business only open the three months of July, August and September, how do you spend your winter months?

MRS. WITHERS: I spend the winters either in Palm Beach, Florida or in Beverly Hills with my two sisters."

COURIER: Over the many years you've been in Charlevoix what are some of the changes you've seen occur?

MRS. WITHERS: All kinds of changes, Charlevoix is nothing like it used to be. The area is more general now, Charlevoix is sadly lacking in summer hotels for the resorters. All you get now are the tourists.

COURIER: Although only serving breakfast and lunch now, Mrs. Withers recalls when they served meals 24 hours a day.

MRS. WITHERS: Charlevoix used to be a good resort business when all the summer hotels were open, and we got a lot of business from the hotels and Cook's (the gambling casino recently razed on Mesch Street).

Mrs. Withers also recalled when East Park did not exist and you couldn't even see Round Lake because of the many old buildings. Now there are no buildings and the city of Charlevoix has a beautiful park through the efforts and monetary contributions made many years ago by Bridge Street businesses.

COURIER: What gives you the incentive to keep going, and why are you so active?

MRS. WITHERS: Because I'm not a rocking chair individual! I like to be active, to keep busy, and meet people, instead of sitting around. I hate sitting around doing nothing. I can't stand it!"

L.J. FORD of Charlevoix recently won the Michigan Zone 3 Trap Shooting singles Championship for shooting 198 out of 200 clay birds. He was also named zone championship team that will be competing in Lansing in state competition. He won the trophy pictured on June 29 in Gaylord. He is the owner of Fox and Hounds Gun and Train Shoppe in Charlevoix.

Health Licenses Needed Before Selling Food

Persons selling food to the public at reereational activities this summer are reminded by the District Health Department that they must obtain a "Temporary Food Service License."

A "Temporary Food Service Establishment" means any food service establishment which operates at a fixed location for a temporary period of time, not to exeeed two weeks, on connection with a carnival, horse show, public exhibition or similar transitory gathering.

The license requirements include indentification of food stand operator, protection or perishable foods, construction of equipment, water supplies, disposal facilities, and other health related areas.

For further information about temporary food service licenses, contact the District Health Department in Charlevoix.

Oldest U.S. Service

Charlevoix Coast Guard Stands Prepared

By FRAN MARTIN

This country's oldest seagoing service, the U.S. Coast Guard came into being in 1790 when this nation was only 15 years old.

Some 99 years, in 1889, the U.S. Coast Guard, at that time known as the U.S. Lifesaving Service on the Great Lakes, came to Charlevoix.

Since then Charlevoix has been a "Coast Guard town" as this service has expanded its operations in the area.

From 1889 until the present Lifeboat Station was opened in 1961, the U.S. Lifesaving Service which was to beome a part of the U.S. Coast Guard in 1914, was housed in the structure near the mouth of the Pine River channel which was its first home.

While the Lifesaving Service remained on Palmer st., a second structure built as a depot for the U.S. Lighthouse Service, was constructed on the upper channel between Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix and became known as the buoy depot where buoys were stored and repaired during the winter months.

In the beginning the crew at the Lifesaving Station was composed of a few dedicated men who lived at the station or only a short distance away and were on call 24 hours a day.

However, when the U.S. Coast Guard 'absorbed' this small service the crew was enlarged some. However, Coast Guard activities were still confined to this Pine River area where men and their equipment were housed.

In 1939, another service became a part of tahe U.S. Coast Guard... the U.S. Lighthouse Service. At that time, Charlevoix became the site of a group office in charge of all former Lighthouse Service operations from Northport on Lake Michigan to Alpena on Lake Huron including the Straits of Mackinac.

As time went on, light stations were automated until today only three in northern Lake Michigan are manned. Eventually, as funds become available, these, also, will be automated.

In 1958, Coast Guard activities here were expanded even with more with the transfer of the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Sundew to Charlevoix from Sturgeon Bay, Wis. Until them, all light stations and aids to navigation were serviced by ships stationed in Wisconsn, first Milwaukee and later Sturgeon Bay.

With the arrival of the ship, the Coast Guard personnel stationed here was tripled.

Until then personnel had included a compliment of 21 officers and enlisted men at the Lifeboat Station and another four at the Group office.

In 1971, the Coast Guard decided to consolidate various operations and moved the Group office to Sault Ste Marie where the Soo Base assumed jurisdiction over all operations on northern Lake Michigan and Lake Huron and Lake Superior west to the Keewanaw Peninsula

However, this had little affect on Coast Guard operations here as the units here carry out the prime missions of the service...the protection of life and property at sea.

These missions of the Coast Guard here continue to range from aids to navigation and ice breaking to search and reseue, marine law enforcement and pollution control.

With the extension of the navigation season from a nine months operation to a year-around operation for the first time in the history of Great Lakes shipping, the Coast Guard service must now gear its operations to more icebreaking then ever before and revise their schedule for other duties to compensate for the added load.

In fact, it looks as though Charlevoix, by virtue of its natural harbor and its location of the Great Lakes, may remain a Coast Guard town for some time ..perhaps until the nation's oldest sea-going service celebrates its 200th anniversary or even longer.

JULY

Detroit Team Takes July 4th Tournament

By FRAN MARTIN

Twelve teams batted it out here during the second annual July Fourth Slo-pitch in a series of games that showed strong and impressive competition before Johnson Sports of St. Clair Shores emerged the victors.

Over the course of the three-day tourney, a record 223 home runs were blasted out of the park with the two top teams, Johnson Sports and Lookout Bar of Manton, accounting for approximately 50 percent of them, Terry Blissett, Tournament manager, reported.

Johnson's Sport Shop won the tournament title by coming through the loser's bracket after dropping their first game to Traverse City 15-9. It took a determined team effort and six straight wins, including five on Sunday, along with some long ball hitting and fine defensive play to twice defeat the undefeated Lookout Bar of Manton to win the tournament Sunday afternoon.

In the finals of the winner's bracket the game between Lookout Bar and Maison-Pierce of Traverse City proved to be one of the most exciting games of the meet with the lead changing almost every inning. Some great defensive plays and again the long ball hitting kept the game close until the last inning when Maison-Pierce went out in front 24-19. However, Manton came back with four home runs including the winning one by Mike Humphrey, a three run shot over the center field fence to give Manton a 27-24 win.

Courier Sports

In the final game of the tournament, Johnson Sports led until the seventh inning when Manton took the lead 18-16. This time Manton fell victim to a seventh inning rally by Johnson Sports as they blasted two home runs with the seventh inning rally by Johnson Sports, as they blasted two home runs with the second a two-run shot by Doug Richardson to give his team a 19-18 win and the tournament title.

Top tournament honors went to Ron Randolph of St. Clair Shores, the home run champion with a total of 13; Sam Lopiccolo of Johnson Sports, voted the M.V.P., with 10 home runs and a .725 batting average and Cliff Wilder of Manton, the batting champion with a .770 average.

Petoskey Side Door-Merchants won two games in the tournament beating Holm Auto Sales of Charlevoix 15-4 and the Air Force-Coast Guard, 23-9. They then lost to Manton 27-15 and to the eventual Tourney winners 23-2.

Koboski-Redi-Mix went out in two games losing to Topside Lounge 10-7 and to St. Clair Shores 11-2. Topside won three games, beating Koboski, then Big Rapids, 19-11 and Mt. Pleasant 25-12 while losing to Maison-Pierce 14-3 and to St. Clair Shores 11-4. Holm Auto lost two straight, falling to Side Door-Mchts. and Madison Heights 8-6.

Tennis Talk

By CHUCK WRIGHT

The one thing that is impossible to teach in tennis or any other sport is concentration. Without it, it is impossible to excel. With it, individual improvement has nn limit.

Concentration is merely the ability to keep your mind on the game. The old adage "Watch the ball" requires the utmost concentration. Your mind should focus on the ball and watch it as the racquet makes contact.

But there is more to concentration than watching the ball. While playing a game of tennis, the player has to learn the best strategies to employ against a particular opponent. He then has to effectively use these strategies to win. Regardless of how well you can hit all the strokes, you cannot play winning tennis without good concentration.

It has often been said that Arthur Ashe and Evonne Goolagong are individuals who could be the number one players in the world in the men's and women's divisions. They each have a tremendous amount of natural ability.

According to the experts, Ashe and Goolagong have not played up to their potential because the concentration is sporadic. And during long tournaments one cannot afford lapses in concentration.

Ashe's mental lapses are somewhat explainable. Being a longtime proponent of Zen Tennis (I wrote about Zen Tennis a few weeks ago), he tries to employ the basic elements in his tournament matches.

Subsequently, Ashe sometimes gets wrapped up in playing "beautiful" tennis and forgets to concentrate on winning points. He tends to admire one of his shots while his opponent is chasing it down and returning it past Ashe.

Sustaining concentration for an entire match is extremely difficult. While it is impossible to teach total concentration, a few tips can be fairly helpful.

If you find that your mind is tending to wander from the game at hand, try watching the seams of the ball. At the very least, this will enable you to get your mind back to watching the ball. Concentration on the total game will usually follow.

Another little trick to regaining concentration is trying to eliminate your mistakes. Concentrating on not making an error helps you regain your rhythm, timing and consistency.

Too often, the player with a short attention span is very impatient. He will tend to try for winning shots when he is not really in good position. For every one of these that is successful, four will be errors. That is losing tennis.

The secret to Jimmy Connors' fantastic success the last couple of years has been his ability to sustain an incredibly high level of concentration at all times. He never loses a match because of a lack of concentration.

If Connors gets ahead of an opponent, he will not let up. His "killer instinct" forces him to concentrate until the last point is won. He is not satisfied with winning a few games convincingly. He has to win the match convincingly.

This kind of intense concentration is hard to maintain tournament after tournament. Therefore, Connors does not play in as many tournaments as his peers. He is unwilling to let this intense concentration burn itself out.

Some criticize Connors for not playing in more tournaments, but I can only admire him. When Jimmy Connors enters a tennis tournament, you know he will be at his best physical and mental form. Many of his peers get so physically and mentally drained that they tend to simply go through the motions in some tournaments.

Tennis is like any other sport. It demands the utmost in concentration for best individual results.

Two Wheel Traveler

by Jon Hendra

Those of you planning to do long distance touring or ride in other than fair weather should consider a fairing for your bike.

Fairings are fiber-glass windbreakers that protect you from the elements; rocks bugs, rain, and wind.

Fairings differ in size, construction, and method of mounting. The larger the fairing the greater the protection for you and your bike.

Construction short cuts aren't visible in the finished product, so buy a reputable name brand. Poor construction is only noticed after miles of use or the first fall.

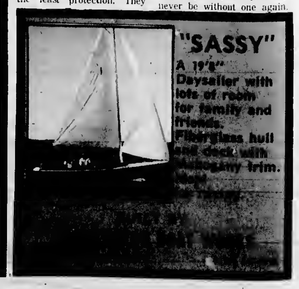
Mounting is done at either the frame or the handle bars, depending on the size and style of the fairing.

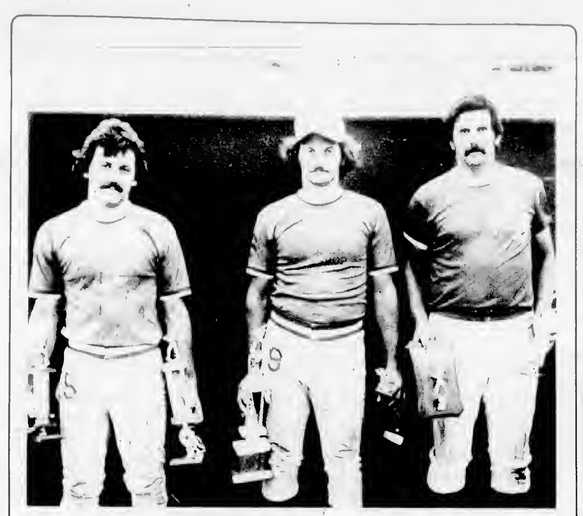
Bar mounted fairings are the least expensive and give the least protection. They offer no protection to the machine in a fall. Their design transmits wind buffeting directly to the front wheel often causing high speed wobble and other handling problems.

I prefer the frame mounted models. They provide the most protection to rider and bike while improving handling and gas milage because of their more aerodynamic design.

Rider comfort is the primary benefit of using any style fairing. Instead of constantly bracing yourself against a 60 mph headwind you can sit erect and get the full benefits of your spine's natural shock absorbing properties.

A fairing lets you travel more miles per day in greater safety and comfort with far less fatigue. Once you've tried one on the long tour or the 35 degree jaunt you'll probably never be without one again.





RON RANDOLPH of Johnson Sports of St. Clair Shores hit 13 home runs during the recent July Fourth held here last weekend. leammale Sam Lopiccolo was named the most valuable player in the tournament and Cliff Wilder of Lookout Bar of Manton was the batting champion, coming out of the tournament with a .770 average.

SILVER TOYS KEPT ENGLISH CHILDREN HAPPY

The English children of Queen Anne's day could find their toy chests filled with silver toys. In those days, toys meant anything tiny or miniature, so silver toys were reproductions of tea sets, doll houses, furniture, carriages, soldiers, falcons, monkeys. Many noted silversmiths made toys, although generally toys were made by the silversmith who manufactured small articles. These tiny toys even carried the silversmith's hallmark. And luckily, silver toys did not meet the same fate as standard-sized silver, which was so readily confiscated in periods of war and financial stress.

COUNCIL MINUTES — JUNE 16, 1975 — 8:00 p.m.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Hansen presiding. Aldermen present: Wood, McRae, Plumm, Selph, Timms, and Whitley. Absent: None.

Moved by Alderman Whitley and supported by Alderman Plumm that the following corrections be made and approved to the Council Minutes of June 2, 1975:

1. "The awarding of the bid for two police cars to Erber Oil Company be corrected to read $7158."

2. The Resolution regarding the salary of Chief of Police be corrected to read: "The Finance Committee restudied the salary set for Chief Mol."

The motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, McRae, Plumm, Selph, Timms, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: None. Council reconvened and roll call was taken with all members present.

Bids for salt were opened and tabulated as follows:

Bidder	Minimum truck loan	Price
Diamond Crystal Salt Co.	45 Ton bulk	$18.35 F.O.B.
Morton Salt Co.	45 Ton bulk	19.75 F.O.B.

Motion was made by Alderman Selph, supported by Alderman Wood that the City accept the bid of Diamond Crystal Salt Company at $18.35 per ton, their bid being the lowest. The motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, McRae, Plumm, Selph, Timms, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Polle VerWys was present to report on the alley running south from Park Avenue to Clinton Street. She claimed traffic is flowing both ways on a very narrow alley and that there is considerable parking on both sides of the alley; so that she is fearful that if a fire truck was needed in the area, they might not be able to get through between parked cars. The matter was referred to committee. Council agreed that this alley is for service and not parking and suggested the policy should be checked out.

Bill Graves, manager of the Golf Course was present to get some authority from Council to stop the amateur golfers, during the time they are in Charlevoix for the tournament, from using the City Course for practice sessions, without paying. He claimed they practice at any spot on the course they choose and sometimes are destructive. Council advised him to call the police and let them check it out in the evenings.

Jim Cruthers asked the opinion of Council on his operating a "Good Humor" ice cream truck in Charlevoix. He was told he must get a vendors license. The attorney advised Council that hours of operation should be spelled out.

Mr. Pace, representing the Chamber of Commerce explained that the Chamber proposed an intra-city bus system, sponsored by the City and tentatively administered by the Chamber. He presented their plan and asked permission to publish a questionnare; obtain firm questions and make a feasibility study. The matter was referred to the Committee as a Whole and the Attorney for evaluation.

Lee Bullion was present to request the City to close Clinton Street from Grant to Park Avenue, for a neighborhood block party on July 4th from 2:00 to 7:00 p.m. He stated neighbors had been contacted and that there is no objection. Motion was made by Alderman McRae and supported by Alderman Timms that permission be given for his request, due to traffic coming off park onto Clinton Street. The motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, McRae, Plumm, Selph, Timms, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Mr. Adams addressed Council stating it is a renewal of the same thing the Commission approved last year, stating that he must make re-application of Class "C" Resort License. He told Council that on the suggestion of the Liquor Commission he had found a Class "C" license in Northern Michigan which he purchased and was transferring it to Charlevoix with the Commission's approval.

After considerable discussion, Mayor Hansen put the matter into Committee as a Whole to meet June 23, 1975 for further evaluation. However, Mr. Adams insisted the question of operating his restaurant successfully, depended entirely on whether he got his license to sell wine to compliment his meals. Mayor Hansen told Mr. Adams that after other business was taken care of, they would be willing to discuss it further with him.

The request of Richard and Hilma Hull to split Parcel 2-453 on West Lincoln was discussed and put into committee.

Mr. Steele of Charlevoix properties submitted documents and requested the rezoning of Parcel 1-458-2, Lots 9 and 10 on Meech Street from R-1 to R-4. Attorney Berlage told Mr. Steele if he was requesting this change he must submit a development plan. Mr. Steele then stated he would like to submit his request for "R-2" zoning of his property. Again, Mr. Berlage advised him this was not necessary to rezone to "R-2" since he already has a "non-conforming use" with the three apartments in the house. Mr. Steele said he definitely wanted the parcel rezoned to "R-2."

Mayor Hansen said to go ahead with the advertising for a Public Hearing for July 24, 1975.

BE IT RESOLVED, that the City of Charlevoix enter into Agreement No. 75-A, dated June 16, 1975 with The Boat Company and that the Mayor be authorized to sign the Agreement on behalf of the City of Charlevoix. The Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, McRae, Selph, Timms, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Motion was made by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Timms that the name of Joseph A. McPhillips Flying Service on his fixed base operation contract with the City of Charlevoix be changed to read Joseph A. McPhillips, Inc.

Attorney Berlage advised Council of the effect of this upon the fixed base contract which exists between the City and McPhillips Flying Service.

BOARD OF APPEALS — JUNE 16, 1975 — 8: 15 p.m.

The Board of Appeals met on the above date and time with Mayor Hansen presiding. Aldermen present: Wood, McRae, Plumm, Selph, Timms, and Whitley.

The request of Frederick Dodge for a setback variance of 120 E. Hurlbut Avenue to allow for a 20' x 28' addition to an existing garage was discussed. Motion was made by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Whitley that practical difficulty of undue hardship was not established as there is room to construct without the need of a variance. Undue hardship was not established as it is not in the best interest of the citizens of Charlevoix to extend the adverse use of the existing building in the City. Therefore the request for the variance is denied. The motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, McRae, Plumm, Selph, Timms, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The request for Curtis Thompson for a variance to construct a 24' x 30' deck on the rear of his house at 204 Park Row, required a setback from twenty-five feet to fifteen feet at the northeast corner of the proposed deck was discussed. Motion was made by Alderman Timms and supported by Alderman Whitley that unnecessary hardship was not proven. Practical difficulty has been established due to the particular shape of the lot; therefore, that the variance be allowed to build the deck not to exceed three feet above the floor level of the house and not closer than fifteen feet from the side boundary and fifteen feet from the back yard boundary. The motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen McRae, Plumm, Selph, Timms, and Whitley. Nays: Alderman Wood. Absent: None.

The Board of Appeals adjourned to the Council Meeting.

MICHAEL AND ELIZABETH Ford (above) show some of their father's trains. L.J. Ford (below) has many railroad antiques around his home in Charlevoix.

Railroads Are Well and Alive Here

By PEG OBLE

Now, five years and some 75 train sets later, one wonders. Watching the twinkle in Ford's eyes and listening to the enthusiasm in his voice as he describes his collection, one might reach the conclusion that perhaps he bought it for himself.

"It's a great father-son hobby, one that can be started at an early age," Ford said.

It all started when Ford procured the Lionel franchise in the area and started selling new toy trains. Then he began taking old train sets in on trade and the collector's fever took on. At one time he had as many as 100 sets made from 1917 on.

The Ford's present set-up arranged so that ten sets can be run at one time. To make room for all the equipment they have transformed a closet, linen enboard and part of an attic into a railroad yard. Stream-lined modern models are lined up along those made years ago. Future plans call for a multi-level arrangement.

Ford has customers from as far away as Nebraska and Virginia for his duplicate engines, cars, transformers, switches and track. Where does he pick up these toys of yesterday? "Almost everywhere," he says "at garage sales, flea markets, from advertisements."

Many pieces of equipment do not work when Ford buys them, and though he says he is the least mechanical person in the world, working with the old pieces has taught him a lot. Son Michael has also learned about the inner workings of an engine, according to Ford.

Toy trains have a fascination for people of all ages, and not just boys and men, Ford has found out. Many older people find that puttering with and running trains is a relaxing hobby. Girls like them, too. Ford's daughter, Elizabeth, has a shiny new set and has begun to add other pieces to her collection.

'It's a great father-son hobby, one that can be started at an early age,' Ford Says.

And some babies have toy trains waiting for them when the are born, bought by doting parents or grandparents who undoubtedly want to have a few years to play with them themselves.

As with all hobbies, Ford has expanded to train-related items. He has a complete set of Lionel train catalogs from 1942 to 1975. He also has a collection of operating instrument booklets.

In the real train category, Ford has a collection of train lanterns, locks and engine other pots. He also has a wind-up telephone from a railroad depot, a railroad watch, railroad company calendars, Railway Express Association items and many other articles and many other articles of railroad history. To make it all real, the Ford family took a train travel trip two years ago.

Collecting toy trains must be a great hobby but it does take a wife who doesn't mind giving up her closets, cupboards and other storage space to a railroad yard.

Family Planning Axed in Fund Cut

Physicians referrals through the Family Planning Program of the District Health Department have been discontinued because of lack of funds.

However, other parts of the Family Planning Program will continue. The Health Department nursing staff will continue to offer counseling services in general areas of family planning, and the Birth Control Clinic is operated in cooperation with the Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood Association in Petoskey.

The Health Department will also continue working with the county offices of the Michigan Department of Social Services to resolve problems related to Medicaid billings for family planning services since this is now a covered service.

Creation Program Starts Thursday

A two-night lecture on Biblical creation and its scientific validity will be held at the Charlevoix Elementary School on Thursday and Friday, July 10 and 11, at 8 p.m.

Using twin projectors and screens, Pastor Marvin L. Lubenow of the First Baptist Church of Wayne, Michigan will make a dramatic pictoral presentation of Genesis centering on the six days of creation (Thursday).

On Friday, he will graphically illustrate the history of the early earth from the Fall to the Flood.

Rev. Lubenow is a senior pastor at the Wayne Church and has had a lifetime interest in the relationship of the Bible to the natural sciences, especially as they relate to the Biblical Doctrine of Creation.

He holds a bachelor's degree from Bob Jones University and a master of theology from Dallas Theological Seminary.

Biggest Event of Summer

Hobby Craft Show Set for Weekend

Charlevoix's seventh annual Lakeside Hobbycraft Fair is fast becoming one of the community's major summer attractions Vincent R. Olaeli, executive secretary of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the event, reports.

He backs up his statement with the fact that 97 entries have been received and several others anticipated before the Fair scheduled for Saturday, July 12.

Crafts are the "in" things and many people are enjoying the hobby which has grown to include a wide range of crafts, Olaeli added.

The Lakeside Hobbycraft has attracted entries from as far away as Florida and Arizona and other out-of-state areas and from 20 Michigan communities not including Charlevoix which boasts many hobbyists.

The types of hobbies are as varied as the areas represented and include art in beaded flowers, wood sculpture, leather craft, macrame, scrimshaw, the art of miniature carvings from ivory, engraving and wood carving, Petoskey stones, military miniatures, china painting, hand-crafted pewter, driftwood, beeswax candles, sculpturing with candles.

Others include ceramics, pottery, metal sculpture, photography, jewelry, the faking of tin-type pictures, apple dolls, pictures made from watch parts, decoupe', hand-crafted dolls, Christmas ornaments and items ... manic it if it's a craft item, and you'll likely find it at the seventh annual Lakeside Hobbycraft Fair.

A limited number of entries will be accepted this week, Olaeli said. If you are planning to participate and have been putting it off, now's the time to call the Chamber of Commerce and enter, Olaeli warned.

Rock Concert Draws Township Objections

By Sara Gay Dammann

Rock concerts in Bay Shore may not continue, as a result of complaints brought to the Hayes Township Board of Trustees by some local residents.

On Saturday, July 5, some 900 people gathered at Victor Martinchek's farm's natural ampitheatre in the hills above Bay Shore, to hear five bands play a variety of music, from folk and rock, to jazz and classical.

Despite the characterization of the crowd as "considerate and well-behaved," by Martinchek, and co-ordinator Bill Hammond of Petoskey, several Bay Shore area residents complained of noise and individual behavior which they found offensive.

Charlevoix County Sheriff, Phil Sumner reported he received about "15 to 20 telephone calls about noise, people wandering all over the place and indecent acts – urinating and vomitting in public."

As a result of the complaints, the sheriff requested Region 10 Detective Wallace Brown to attend Monday's (July 7) regular monthly meeting of the Hayes Township Trustees.

Object to Concert

Detective Brown, a Hayes Township resident, conveyed the Sheriff's message that the Sheriff's department "was not in favor of the way the concert was conducted" and that they "need to work between the township and sheriff's department to see that the concert lives up to its agreement."

Lee Sneathen, Hayes Township Supervisor, reported the Board took no action, but listened to Brown and the complaints of citizens such as Dick Zipp and Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Green, neighbors of the Martinchek farm.

"There will be no action until there is another request for a permit," Sneathen explained, suggesting future requests would not be granted.

Sneathen and Mrs. Daryl Summerville, Township Clerk, said no one attended the township meeting representing a positive view of the concerts.

Martinchek said he was not aware that the issue was going to be raised at the meeting. He said the Township Clerk had informed him he did not need to attend Monday's meeting in person to obtain a permit for a concert planned for mid-August. The subject was not raised at the meeting.

All persons involved with organizing and directing the concert expressed surprise and shock at the complaints.

"I'd be a fool to deny that some incident did not take place," Hammond remarked. "I couldn't be everywhere at once; but I never saw nor heard of anything like these things."

Good Time

Hammond said, "I wish these people would have come to the concert and had a good time with us. I'm sorry people have these feelings.

"As far as I'm concerned it was a smooth concert and I don't think anybody infringed on the rights of others," Hammond stated.

Specific complaints registered with the township were: dangerous traffic, including late night speeding through the area; that the concert went beyond permitted time, which is an hour after dark; one incident of a local resident's car being "pounded on" by some young people; a case of a dog being hurt by a hit and run driver; and incidents of public urinating and vomitting, according to the township clerk.

Concert goers and organizers, contacted by THE COURIER, countered the allegations.

Ms. Kathy Beishlag of Bay Shore argued that traffic is a constant problem in the area, saying her own dog was hit and run the previous week, probably during shift change at the Radar Tracking Station, a constant source of speeding traffic, Ms. Beishlag argued.

"People are scared by large crowds," Ms. Beishlag said, "but those who complained are chronic complainers and these incidents were a few isolate occurences.

Late Music

"It's a shame none of us attended that meeting," she observed.

Property owner Martinchek acknowledged the music may have run over the permitted time.

"However, it was all finished by 11:30, at most an half hour late," Martinchek asserts.

As for the "indecent exposure," Martinchek could only say, "this could happen anywhere, there were only a couple of cases out of 900 people.

"I personally observed no rawdiness," he said.

Martinchek reported he was upset by the complaints and hopes somehow to persuade the township to see the other point of view.

Several groups have tentative plans for fund raising concerts at the site, according to Martinchek: The Petoskey Speed Skaters, the East Jordan Spanish Club, and the Grain Train Food Coop.

Last week's concert was a private affair, which helped Martinchek allay expenses such as electrical hook-ups, staging facilities, with "a bit toward property taxes," he said.

Neighborhood Demands Property Hearing

The efforts of a 29-year-old newspaperman forced Charlevoix Council to hold a public hearing before leasing city property to a condominium.

Council decided Monday night to hold a hearing on leasing a 27-foot wide strip of property, commonly known as Alice Street, to Le Harve Condominiums after a group of neighboring property owners made the request.

Two weeks ago, the Council agreed to lease the undeveloped strip of property to the development on a 99-year lease for $500 a year.

In a split decision, the council granted LeHarve use of the property with the city maintaining easement rights for utilities and storm sewer. However, Council has not yet signed the agreement.

After learning about the Council's decision, reporter Mike Ready of Charlevoix and about 15 of his neighbors hired a lawyer to help them in getting the action before public hearing.

Ready said many of the neighbors used the property and hated to see the city lose an access to Round Lake.

"Personally, I think the city is being pressured by the condominiums," he continued.

"I was extremely upset that it wasn't even on the agenda."

Attorney Michael Gibbons told Council during the meeting that the group was not trying to challenge the status of the property.

The question of whether the property is a legal road or even belongs to the city has been in and out of court during the last five years with apparent decision made.

ILLEGAL IMMIGRANTS

Regarding your editorial on the illegal immigrants – I lived near the border for four years, and feel the key to the problem is enforcement of a law requiring a work permit for entry. People knowingly hire illegal immigrants for less money, with a threat of turning them in if they complain. The cotton and lettuce growers should be gotten after by the authorities for hiring these people. It is impossible to check every car that crosses the border from Mexico, but if they would get after the growers in California and Texas, they would stop a lot of the illegals from getting in or at least staying.

Bicentennial Entertainment

For the bicentennial year I believe we should have some entertainment, have some polka or maybe some jazz or maybe even a pop group such as Smiles with Jim Greenway, I think they're very good band.

Thanks Band

I think it would be an act of appreciation for the many hours of free entertainment our City band have given us over the years for the City to make an all out effort to complete our band shell, it is very hard for the musicians to read music facing the sun and not have any protection from the wind. The original plan calls for a top on our stage which was never completed.

Venetian Entries

It is not too early to make plans for entering your boat in the 45th Venetian Festival Yacht Parade. Entry blanks may be picked up at the Harbor Masters, Irish Boat Works, Captain's Corner, and the Chamber of Commerce office and must be returned by 6:00 p.m. Saturday, July 26. Strings of lights can be rented from Captain's Corners. There will be a 1st, 2nd, and 3rd prize, donated by the following merchants of the Market: Neff's Bird Nest, Charlevoix Branch of Petoskey Floral & Artvaark.

Mrs. Heise

City Clerk Retires

Mrs. Ida A. Heise who has served as Charlevoix's City Clerk since December 1971, has resigned the position effective in August.

Her resignation was contained in a letter addressed to Mayor Edward P. Hansen and the City Council.

Mrs. Heise has been with the office of City Clerk for the past 10 years, first as Deputy City Clerk a position she filled until her appointment as City Clerk following the retirement of Hugh Mayne. She was elected to the position four times without opposition following the appointment.

Mrs Heise said she was retiring so that she could spend some time in the east with her son and daughter-in-law.

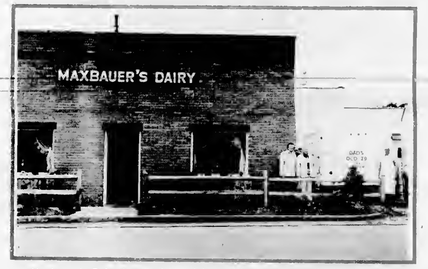
On Saturday, our Opening Day, we will be giving away our cones, and selling our dairy products and bulk ice cream. Monday we will be open to serve our Complete Line of Sodas, Sundaes, Malts, Cones & Sandwiches.



Maxbauer's Dairy is one of two dairys still operating north of a line from Muskegon to Bay City in the lower peninsula. The other dairy is Inverness Dairy of Cheboygan. We process and bottle area milk and put out only the finest products. No cut rate quality, as you can see it is important we keep quality high. That's why we're still here!

This is our new retail outlet & ice cream parlor, located at 1207 S. Bridge St., Charlevoix. Our store is open from 8 A.M. to 11 P.M., 6 days a week. Our ice cream parlor and walk-up window, will serve you from 11 A.M. to 11 P.M.

In order to bring you the very best quality ice cream that money can buy, it was necessary to buy a new Emery Thompson batch freezer, identical to the one dad used in making ice cream in 1929. He made this on Clinton Street, where the library is now located. This is the only manufacturer in the world where we could obtain this machine. You cannot make old fashioned ice cream with anything but a batch type freezer. This is comparable to the type used in your home.

Pictured here is the vat we used to manufacture the ice cream mix in. This is made with our cream and the finest flavorings & ingredients we can buy. We are using real vanilla at $38 a gallon, rather than imitation, which could be bought for $7 a gallon. If you want 1929 ice cream, you have to use the real thing. Substitutes will not do. The world is full of substitutes.

Our pasteurizer for our bottled milk products is a modern electronic type, which would work for our ice cream, but there again, we wanted the real McCoy, so we had to go out and buy a 1947 batch vat in order to do it. Some places claim they make their own ice cream, but they buy their mix. We make ours from scratch, according to dads' 1929 recipe.

All our sodas, sundaes and malts will be like they were in 1929. No short change on quality or quantity. All our ice cream cones will be the way an ice cream cone should be...and that's big!

We also serve hamburgers & hot dogs & ham sandwiches all from the finest meats available. You can count on that!

Our cokes will be 20 cents and 25 cents and you will be happy with the size. We have seating capacity inside for 55, and outside in our picnic table area, under the trees, for 80, plus window service.

SENIOR CITIZENS - We want to show our appreciation to you, so all of our menu items everyday are discounted to you.

Two doctors whose specialty is Internal Medicine have joined the medical staff of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Richard Krueger, hospital administrator, has announced.

They are James A. Gels, M.D., and Reed K. Freidinger, M.D., who completed residencies in their chosen field at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak, July 1.

They will open offices next month in the new professional Building now under construction at 724 Park ave. Meanwhile, they will participate in the Emergency coverage program at the hospital, thus making it possible to give more complete coverage during the busy summer months.

Dr. Gels is a 1972 graduate of the School of Medicine of Ohio State University and interned at Oakwood Hospital in Dearborn before serving a residency at Beaumont Hospital from 1973-75. He is a native of Celina, Ohio. He and his wife, Carol, reside at 711 E. Dixon ave.

Dr. Freidinger, a native of Saginaw, is a 1971 graduate of the Medical School at Wake Forest University, Salem, N.C. and served a year's internship at Swedish Hospital in Seattle, Wash., before beginning a three year residency in Internal Medicine at Beaumont Hospital.

He and his wife, Janet, reside on Sequanota Rd.

With the arrival of Dr. Gels and Dr. Freidinger, the medical staff has been enlarged to 13 members. They are Dennis Joy, a University of Michigan graduate, who came to Charlevoix a year ago after completing a residency in Family Practice at the University of Minnesota; Dr. M.O. Plagge, who came here last fall from Pontiac General Hospital where he was the director of the Residency Program in General Surgery; H.R. Custer, M.D., Surgeon; G.B. Saltonstall, M.D., Surgeon and General Practice; John H. Lignell, M.D., Robert G. Martin, M.D., R.W. Mansfield, D.O., of Boyne City, J.H. Savory, M.D., of East Jordan and J. VanDellen, M.D., of Ellsworth, General Practice; J.A. Foehtman, M.D., of Petoskey, Obstetrics and Gynecology and D.M. Roebuck, M.D., Radiologist.

In addition to the staff named above, the hospital has a consulting staff of four members, a courtesy medical staff of three members and a dental staff of two including J.L. Porter, D.D.S., and Robert C. Tollas, D.D.S., both of Charlevoix.

Dr. Joy was named Chief of Staff for the year beginning July 1; Dr. Plagge, Vice Chief of Staff; Dr. Gels, Secretary-Treasurer, and Freidinger, Member-at-large of the Professional Activities committee. Dr. Joy succeeds Dr. Roebuck as Chief of Staff.

Supporting the medical staff in the operation of the hospital are the following heads of departments including the number of persons in each department: Ms. Kathryn Boss, Nursing (51); Ms. Otelia Bulart, Dietary (21); Robert Egler, X-Ray (4); James Hooper, Laboratory (2); Tim Couts, Inhalation Therapy (4); Ms. Joan Gigg, Physical Therapy (1); David Thurston, Accounting and Business Office (13); Ms. Marguerite Bems, Medical Records (4); Ms. Donna White, Pharmacy (1); Claude Pearsall, Maintenance (5); Ms. Jeanne Ramsdell, Housekeeping (5); and Laundry (3).

The Charlevoix Area Hospital which is 'home base' for the medical and operational staffs mentioned above was constructed in 1953-54 and opened in August 31, 1953, as a 42 bed institution.

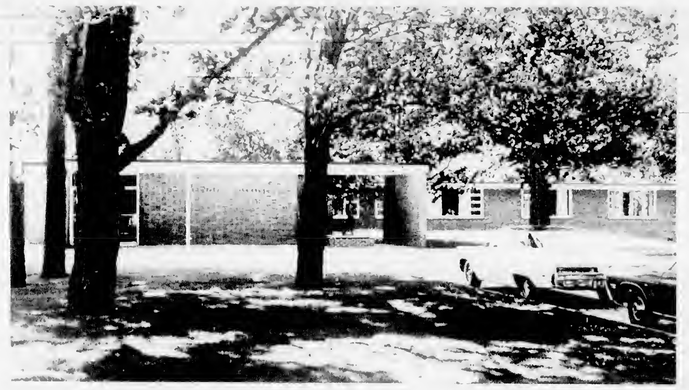
Since then various additions and remodeling projects have made it the finest smaller hospital in northern Michigan.

A Ford Foundation Grant was used to underwrite the cost of the 28 x 42 foot solarium in 1957 making it possible to convert the room to a six-bed ward in an emergency; an expansion program in 1963 resulted in the addition of a physical therapy department, a larger x-ray viewing room and enlargements of the laboratory, cafeteria and storage area, an addition to the Pediatrics Ward to accommodate five children in 1967; the construction of the Coronary Care Intensive Care unit which also included remodeling and improvements to provide a recovery room for surgical patients and the additional of two patients' room in 1973 and, in 1974-75, the renovation and remodeling of the hospital ventilation system. This included the complete replacement of the air-conditioning equipment for the operating rooms, delivery room, nursery and emergency room and the installation of a second air handling unit located on the roof to provide a fresh air supply for most other areas of the hospital. The latter project is nearing completion.

While the construction, remodeling and renovation of the hospital is going on, various other construction in the area was underway. The first was a garage constructed in 1955 and now utilized as a storage area; the first of two Professional Buildings housing four offices was started in 1966 and a second, designed to house offices for six doctors, was started earlier this year and is scheduled for completion in mid-August.

The present hospital was built to replace the community's first hospital, opened in 1918 at 306 W. Hurlbut ave and now the site of Hillcrest Apartments.

The Charlevoix Area Hospital, which was financed by contributions by the public and by special grants and some federal funds, and which continues to require this support is administered by a Board of Directors presently headed by Jack Grubaugh.



CHARLEVOIX RESIDENTS are fortunate to have their hospital to meet the needs of the community. In the near future, the hospital will complete its construction of additional professional facilities.

East Jordan Hosts Concert

EAST JORDAN—Boating enthusiasts who enjoy symphony will have the opportunity to join landlubbers strolling or seated on the grounds at East Jordan's Portside Art Center for a summer afternoon concert.

Elm Point Estate on Lake Charlevoix was recently toured by Gideon Grau, Conductor of the Delta Summer Festival Orchestra, checking for outdoor acoustics. He declared them "almost perfect" for the presentation on Saturday, June 19 from 4 to 6 p.m.

The free symphony concert (donations will be accepted) will be made possible by much local cooperation. Joe Gerlach, Boyne City will loan and operate his sound equipment, East Jordan fire chief Bernard Hammond will help prepare an orchestra backdrop, talented percussionist-composer Jim Katowich, East Jordan, home for the summer from Boston's Berklee College of Music will assist.

Trio-sponsors of the symphony are the Elm Point Commission, Portside Arts Fair Committee and the Michigan Council for the Arts.

Conductor Grau and his thirty-six piece orchestra will be joined by trumpet soloist Dr. Paul Willwerth who conducts the University Symphony Orchestra and the Central Michigan Chamber Orchestra, for the Portside Concert.

The Delta Festival Orchestra has been called one of the finest small orchestral ensembles in the Midwest and it's performances during the annual Saginaw Summer Festival for the Arts at Delta College have brought rave reviews from Arts critics.

The talent and musically experienced Gideon Grau has appeared throughout the United States and Canada as conductor, concertmaster, violin soloist and chamber-music performer. Since 1966 he has conducted the Festival Orchestra and also directs the Saginaw Choral Society and the Delta College Summer Arts Festival.

CENTRAL MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY'S Gideon Grau will conduct a special concert in East Jordan this summer at the city's Elm Point Estate located between East Jordan and Charlevoix on M-66.

Chicago Artist Offers Dance Lessons

Charlevoix area residents have an unusual opportunity this summer to participate in a local dance program.

Classes in modern dance technique and ballet are being taught Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons and Monday and Wednesday evenings. There are groups for children aged six and seven, aged eight and nine, aged ten and 11, and aged 12 and 13. There are separate groups for teenagers and adults during the evenings.

The Portside Art Center, located in the Elm Point estate, is a beautiful spot in which to give and take dancing lessons, Miss Bartoszek says. "The floor is beautiful, we have lots of space, there is a large picture window and outside is a swimming beach on lake Charlevoix."

The classes cost $2.00 each of $15.00 for eight. Children's classes are of one-hour duration and adult's classes last longer. Those needing transportation to Elm Point from Charlevoix may participate in a car pool by calling Fran Tollas at 547-9479.

Further information about the program may also be obtained from Mrs. Tollas, or from Miss Bartoszek at 536-7514.

In defining the modern dance as compared to the ballet, Miss Bartoszek says: "Ballet has a set vocabulary, torso is held, movements are airy, with an ethereal quality.

"Modern dance is not a system but a point of view, although it has characteristics that distinguish it. Movement stems from the center of the torso. Modern dance recognizes that the body, as an instrument for the dance, is very complex.

U.S. Offers Alternative To Nuclear Power

A reeent federal announcement that the United States would begin pushing the development of solar energy and downgrading atomie power has come as a welcomed relief for many.

In a recent statement, federal energy offieials rejected the controversial nuclear breeder reaetor as a key power source for this century and elevated solar energy research to unprecendented prominenee.

The shift in position eaught many people off guard because atomic energy has been billed for years as the future's most promising energy source.

From the surface, the shift in emphasis would look like a victory for anti-nuclear power plant forees.

Having a power plant in our own back yard, growing opposition toward the use and eonstruction of nuclear reactors is nothing new to Charlevoixans.

However, federal energy offieials are simply saying that the United States should never again plaee all its energy eggs in one basket as it had done with coal and then with oil.

Instead, the Energy Research and Development Administration said the United States should work toward rclianee on a more balanced mixture of three potentially inexhaustible power sources—sunlight, the breeder reactor and nuclear fusion.

They say the nation will have to keep importing oil until at least 1995 if it relies solely on conservation and technologieal efforts to solve the energy shortage. But, they said, changes in government policy and American lifestyles coupled with technology could make energy independence a reality by 1985.

ERDA chief Dr. Robert C. Seamans told Congress recently that the President called for a $63 million increase in his ageney's original $1.7 billion budget request for fiscal year 1976.

He said the additional money would allow stepped up research on eoal utilization, conservation and improved oil prodeution as short term solutions to energy problems and faster development of solar electrical prodeution and advaneed energy systems for the long run.

At the same time, Seamans said the breeder reactor demonstration program is being slowed by one or two years for the addition of new environmental safeguards, ineluding a "eore catcher" to protect against failure of the reactor eore.

In part, Seamans said, more information also is needed about potential medical effeets of plutonium—the deadly fuel the breeder uses and produces.

Consumers Power officials, in a recent press conference at Big Rock, told us that plutonium is still being used along with the conventional uranium fuel and that plans are being made to inerease the use of plutonium at the plant.

Nuclear power is by no means a dead issue in Charlevoix or across our nation. Those supporting its use present an impressive reason why nuclear reaetors should continue to be used.

Dr. Wayne Jens, associate manager of the Engineering and Construction Department at Detroit Edison Company, says that nuclear power is safe and bases its statement on nuclear power plant safety records.

He says no other industry can eite such an accident-free history.

The internationally reeognized expert said the chanees of a member of the public being injured or killed in a nuclear power plant accident are about the same as his chances of being hit by a meteor.

Jens, like others, says that with our energy needs growing daily it would be tragic if we did not exploit to its ultimate this important source of power.

Even if we assume no growth in the U.S. economy, Jens says much more elcctricity will be needed in the future in this country.

Some experts have predicted that electric power will account for 50 per ecnt of all the energy consumed in this country by the year 2000.

We think the Energy Researeh and Development Administration has taken the proper position in insisting that a broader base approaeh be taken in our search for alternative energy sources.

Unlike Jens and other experts, we are not convineed that nuclear energy is our only power source for years to come.

BEWARE OF AN OVERDOSE!

MICHELE E. JANISSE
County Historian
"Saluting the Past, Charlevoix Looks to the Future"

I hope everyone has as much fun on the Fourth of July as I did. By the results of the work and effort that people contributed, I'll bet that they did. There was so much happening that there was no possible way that I could cuver everything, but, I did manage to hit the highlights.

Boyne City started the day with their parade at 10 a.m. Immediately following, we raced to Horton Bay to catch their first parade in over 50 years. What a pleasant surprise! All the entries consisted of local people who had constructed their own costumes and floats. There were over 70 entries, and every one of them was very ingenious and clever. The town hall was done up to beat all with a big fancy bow welcoming all the people to join in the family picnic.

Next on the agenda was the Lion's Club party in Charlevoix. They were serving their well-known barbecued chicken and then organized all the traditional picnic games. I set out to be a champion egg tosser, but shortly received the sticky end of it.

Five o'clock found us in East Jordan to watch their parade with a flag dedication ceremony afterwards by the Petoskey Drum and Bugle Corps. Having always been involved in marching bands, I have not been a spectator to very many parades. I sure got my share on the Fourth, and every minute was enjoyable.

We returned to Boyne City by 7:30 to catch the performance of the Boyne City Choir. The concert was so good the crowd simply would not let them quit singing, which tickled them pink. During the concert, the Boyne City Bicentennial Committee sponsored an Ice Cream Social in the park. Then, the whole evening was topped off by a beautiful fireworks display over the harbor.

On Sunday, July 6, I attended East Jordan's Bicentennial Ecumenical Church Service in their Memorial Park. I think this was a very nice gesture on Reverend Dan Minor's behalf and a very special way to complete the most memorable Fourth of July I have ever spent. I hope next year's celebrations will be every bit as festive.

On Tuesday, August 5, the Charlevoix Area Historical Society will provide its members and any interested citizens with the chance to display and tell a little history on some treasured item of theirs. This Show-and-Tell idea was enthusiastically adopted when Bill Ohle, of Horton Bay, suggested the theme at the last meeting. Go dig in your attics and closets. If you find anything you think might be interesting come to the next Historical Society meeting at 8 p.m. in the Community Room of the State Bank. Remember, Opportunity knocks only once!

Another project the Historical Society will be sponsoring will be a skit contest this fall. The topic of the skits will center around some event or character important in the history of Charlevoix. The whole community is invited to participate. There will be no restrictions as to age or occupation. Creativity is encouraged, but is expected to be kept within historical reason.

The winning skits will then be selected and used to produce a pageant during the Venetian Festival 1976. The proceeds from this pageant will be donated to the Historical Society for their museum fund.

So start thinking how you would portray a Charlevoixan character. These kinds of 'thinks' need time to germinate before you actually sit down to write.

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

I was a little sad last week when I read about all the hoopla attending President Ford's trip home to Michigan for the weekend. I am awfully afraid that we are making fools out of our presidents, and they certainly must not like it any more than we do.

For one thing, the cost of President Ford's weekend on home turf must have totaled—I'm not very good with figures—literally hundreds of thousands of dollars. Maybe millions, for all I know. I'm not very good with figures.

Long before anyone in the White House admitted the President was planning a trip back to Michigan, we received reliable reports that his plane, Air Force I, had touched down at the Emmet County Airport at Pellston and the Traverse City Airport to determine if an aircraft of that size would have any problems with our one-horse runways. President Ford wasn't aboard, of course.

Then we heard talk of Secret Service men canvassing parade routes and public buildings.

Finally it was official: The President would be coming to Michigan to act as grand marshal of the Cherry Festival parade in Traverse City on Friday. That night he had to buzz down to Chicago for a little public business, but he was back in T.C. on Saturday for the Walter Hagen golf tournament, banquet and trophy presentation, followed by an overnight visit on Mackinae Island with his buddy, Gov. William Milliken. Sunday he talked to 300 visiting judges in convention on the island and Sunday afternoon he flew back to Washington.

Admittedly, Ford's weekend holiday in Michigan was a little different from yours and mine (I personally speak to only one judge at a time), but did it have to be all that different?

I read that the federal government installed something like 10 tons of communications gear on Mackinac Island in preparation for the President's visit. Holy Moses! That's a lot of telephones.

Furthermore, the official White House party required 50 hotel rooms on the island, plus whatever space was available at the Grand Hotel after the judges checked in, and at Milliken's summer home. And this does not include accommodations for the press corps which dogs the President's footsteps wherever he travels. Fortunately, the island didn't have rooms for all of the newsmen covering the trip. If it had the island would have sunk under the added weight. (Or it would have been wafted right out of the Straits by all of that hot air.)

Just when did the U.S. President become some sort of deity? Not too many years ago our presidents prided themselves on springing from the common ground, as many of them have.

The change – and I'm sure there has been one – has taken place since the days of Franklin Roosevelt. Although FDR himself was high-born, I can't recall that his trips were attended by the upruar that we have come to associate with presidential travels. Of course, most of FDR's domestic junketeering was one by train. And there wasn't very much of it beeause Roosevelt wasn't much of a gad-about. His wife was, but he wasn't.

Truman, of course, couldn't much abide ceremony of any kind. And if he came calling he wouldn't want people to fuss. He was that kind of fellow. He even pooh-poohed the kind of security precautions that we have come to consider as "normal" for a president. Secret Service men had a hard time keeping up with him when he took his brisk walks through downtown Washington every morning.

And, if I recall correctly, he drove Bess back to Independence–alone–in the family jalopy when their years of public life were over.

Presidential puffery expanded under President Eisenhower, accustomed he was to his retinue of military aides and attaches. It grew even worse under Kennedy, who was accustomed to living in the grand manner and carried his style with him into the White House.

Although President Johnson was a simple cowpoke at heart, he probably was accorded more security during his travels than any president before him, following as he did in the fateful steps of President Kennedy.

Nixon relished presidential pomp and it was under his administration that the comings and goings of the chief executive were heralded by costumed tin soldiers blowing on six-foot long trumpets.

President Ford has done away with that nonsense, thank goodness.

But it's a pity he and Betty couldn't have run up to Mackinaw City in the family car and taken the Shepler ferry over to the island. Did they really have to drag half of Washington behind them?

I'm sure the Fords would have enjoyed their trip more. Even the fudge would have tasted better.

There are few things in this world more satisfying than having your son teach you how to play tennis, unless it is having a semi-truck run over your foot.

It is almost as if he is paying you back for letting him fall off the dryer when he was a baby and you were bathing him. . . for putting him to bed on his fifth birthday when he threw ice cream into the fan . . . fur bailing out of the car when he was 16 and you were teaching him how to drive. All the hostilities come out the moment you walk onto the court together.

"We're going to continue with our instruction on how to pick up the ball," he said.

"I know how to pick up the ball," I said.

"I've told you before, we do not pick up the ball like a gorilla going for a banana. There is the professional way and there are several approaches. You can see the western forehand grip, lean over gently and tap the ball with your racket until it bounces."

Several minutes later as I was on my knees pounding the racket into the optic yellow ball, he leaned over and said, "It is not a snake you are beating to death. It is a tennis ball. Let's try the ball-against-the-foot method."

I stood up exhausted. "How does that work again?"

"You grip your racket against the ball and firmly force it to the inside of your left foot. Bending your knee, you lift the ball to about six inches off the ground and drop it. When it bounces, you continue bouncing it with your racket until you can pluck it off the ground and into your hand."

Gripping the raeket, I forced the ball to the inside of my foot where it rolled over the foot and toward the net.

I cornered it and started inching the ball up my leg, but lost my balance and fell into the net.

Approaching the ball once more I accidentally kicked it with my foot and chased it in a crouched position to the corner of the court, slamming my body into the fence.

For the next 15 minutes, the illusive little ball moved all over the court like it had a motor in it.

Finally, I leaned over, gratbed it with my hand, placed it on my leg and supported it with the racket.

"Okay," I shouted. "I picked up the ball."

"That'll be all for today," he said. "We'll spend a few more weeks on this before moving along to hitting the ball."

I put my arm over his shoulder, "Now, let me tell you how to pick up towels off the bathroom floor. You simply bend your body in the middle, grasp the towel firmly between...."

Ordain the Bartender

Tavern owners in Milwaukee are currently upset because 8 Catholic churches have applied for unlimited licenses to sell beer. Which naturally reminds me of a flip-side time when a group of young sons wanted to get their favorite bartender ordained a priest.

The Wisconsin Tavernkeepers' Assoc. has filed suit against the city, the churches and the Archbishop, seeking to block the beer licenses. "We don't mind if the churches want to tap a keg 25 times a year for their bingo games," said Carl Schetter, executive director of the tavernkeepers' association. "But with these unlimited licenses, they can open up every night. . . what's to keep the church from starting little clubs where guys stop in for a beer after work? I can just see it now. flight below the sign that says St. Sebastian's there will be a flashing neon beer sign...it's unfair competition."

My sympathies go out to the tavernkeepers. It is a threat to the American system of free enterprise to put a potential sinner and the tempting sauce so near to the confessional. The middleman faces elimination. I wish the tavern people well with their lawsuit. But if it fails. I suggest they try another line of attack–the Alibi Scheme.

The Alibi Scheme was formulated at the close of World War 2 by about 10 young Catholic veterans who had trouble getting to Mass on Sundays. Please recall that this was 30 years ago when it was still n moral sin to miss Mass on Sunday.

Today you call the church and ask what time Mass is and the priest asks what time can you get there. If you can't get to church by 5 p.m. Sunday, don't worry about it. For people like you they now have Sunday Mass on Saturday afternoon. The theologian who devised this miracle of the calendar used to be circulation manager for the Saturday Evening Post which came out on Wednesdays.

But in 1945, if you missed Sunday Mass you face eternal burning in hell. Ever worse, you mother might find out.

Many mothers quizzed their sons at Sunday dinner. "What was the sermon about?" "Did your cousin sing a solo?" "Did Father McCormick announce when the K of C picnic will be?" "What color of sox were the altar boys wearing?!"

These were hard questions to answer if, for medical reasons, the son had been forced to skip Mass and limp to the Alibi Bar. But never fear, John the bartender was there. He always went to Mass and he had a marvelous memory. John could recite the sermon and sing the anthem. He knew whose uncle took up the collecton and whose aunt fainted from the heat. John's recitations saved the skins of many son who took notes on the inside of matchbook covers.

However, there came a time when the sons sickened of the Sunday sham. They tired of living a lie. They decided they should really attend Mass. John should become a priest! A collection was taken up to send him to the seminary and a glorious "Goodbye Father John" party was organized. There was even a pilgrimage to neighboring shrines. It seemed like a marvelous idea at the time.

It was sometime the following Monday that it was discovered all the seminary money had been spent on beer. Back behind the bar, John. Back to the sham.

As you must have guessed, this story of the Alibi Scheme was told to me by a friend. I wasn't there myself (honest, Mother). And I never say any reason to repeat the tale until now, when I feel duty bound to share it with the Meet Charlevoix ...Suzanne Wickert

Suzanne Wickert recently joined the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services as Special Services Coordinator. A graduate of Michigan State University with a degree in Sociology and Psychology, she came to Charlevoix from Grafton County where she worked with the county Social Services Department in adult services. This week the Courier talks with her about her job.

COURIER: What are your duties as Special Services Coordinator?

WICKERT: The position is very flexible within the county department. Basically, it follows the department's philosophy of assisting clients in attaining and maintaining maximum personal and economic independence. Specifically, the job entails, (1) Recruiting and developing in-service training for volunteers, (2) Developing and coordinating group service activities and volunteer activities, (3) Initiating, developing and coordinating programs with reference to specific client needs, (4) Serving as a liaison person between the Social Services Department and community at large, (5) Acting as an information and referral source for the entire county.

COURIER: Although you have been on the job only a short time, have you initiated any programs?

WICKERT: Yes, starting July 22 we will be running a General Education Development Preparedness Training Program for those clients of ours who need assistance in taking the GED exam. We were very fortunate to find Mrs. Emma Beaver to instruct the course for five weeks. She is a retired school teacher who has had extensive experience in this field.

We also have started an Adult Outreach Program. The purpose is to locate those adults over 60 who would be eligible for the services and programs of the Commission on Aging, and to encourage their participation in these programs. Inherent in an attempt like this is to eliminate any barriers or problems that may be preventing these adults from participating, whether it be lack of transportation or just plain shyness.

We have been working with Tom Miller, Mental Retardation Coordinator of the Act 54 Board, in trying to develop an Adult Basic Education Program for the mentally retarded who are over 25. This is an age group that has almost been ignored by society. When they were young, specific special education programs did not exist, now they are too old to fall under the Montadory Special Education Act. There is no reason why they should be denied the opportunity to participate in an Adult Basic Education Course.

Of course, I am always trying to recruit volunteers to work on a one-to-one basis in such programs as Parent Aides and the Visually Impaired Handicraft Program.

COURIER: Tell us about the Visually Impaired Handicraft Program.

WICKERT: The program has been in operation for about a year. It serves those people who are certified as being "visually impaired" by providing them with supplies and guidance to make a variety of handicraft items, which range from plastic flowers and Indian neckinces to toy poodles and macrame. A booth donated by the Association for the Blind provided space for the handicraft articles sold at the last Hobby Craft Show. Currently we are trying to involve more visually impaired persons in the program. This, of course, necessitates finding more volunteers to transport and teach handicrafts.

COURIER: Do you find it easy to recruit good volunteers?

WICKERT: Definitely not. We live in a very complacent society, and to find someone who is willing to give freely of their tune and talents for no financial gain is rare indeed. Most people are satisfied with volunteering on a one-shot basis. By that I mean people who decide to feed or clothe a needy family at Christmas time. I don't mean to downgrade this "Lady Bountiful" approach; these people are fulfilling definite needs, but when it comes to finding a volunteer to work on an on-going basis with, say, a juvenile delinquent, you really have to dig.

COURIER: Do you have any plans for the future?

WICKERT: I always have plans. The problem lies in materializing what's on the blueprint. Hopefully, by next year, we will have a formalized training program for volunteers. Also, I feel it is important for the department to openly recognize the contributions of our active volunteers, so in keeping with this we will have an Annual Volunteer Recognition Dinner. I really would like to put together a media presentation on volunteerism to show to interested service and fraternal organizations. Speeches are fine, but a message on film with music has a greater impact on individuals.

If by the end of 1976 the above is accomplished, along with the other programs I mentioned, I guess one could say, "It was a very good year." By the way did I hear you say that you might want to volunteer? I can be reached at 547-4471.

County Publishing Bill Killed

LANSING—Propused state legislation that may have jeopardized the public's "right to know" appears doomed in a Michigan Senate committee.

State Senator Robert Davis of Gaylord predicted this week that House Bill 4378 would die in committee.

If the bill had been passed by the Senate and signed by the governor, county boards of commissioners in lower populated counties would only have had to publish the minutes of their meetings.

Passed earlier this year by the Michigan House, the bill would no longer require counties to publish county expenditures and receipts by boards of commissioners in local newspapers.

Once passed in the House, the bill was sent to the Senate Committee on Municipalities and Elections.

Both the Petoskey News-Review and Charlevoix Courier had expressed editorial opposition to the proposed legislation.

"As far as I am concerned the bill will not pass the Senate," Davis told the Courier. He said the bill is expected to die in committee.

The Michigan Senate minority leader said he had received no pressure to support the bill

Charlevoix Area Little League Goes to Petoskey Tournament

CHARLEVOIX LITTLE Leaguers played their last game of the season last week before getting involved in area tournaments.

By FRAN MARTIN

Charlevoix's Little League All-Tournament team will go into the area tournament at Petoskey Sunday when it meets Boyne City in the opening game at 1 p.m.

The winner of this game will clash with Petoskey at 6 p.m. July 21. The finals will be held at 6 p.m. July 22. The North Emmet-East Jordan winner will play in the finals.

The winner of this tournament will go to Sault Ste. Marie.

On the local scene, the play off games for the Little League title opened Monday with Parsel Olds and Round Lake Lodge meeting in the first of the best two out of three games.

The second game in the series will be played at 6 p.m. Wednesday. If a third game is necessary it will likely be played after the tournament.

Round Lake Lodge muffed its chance to win the title without a play-off when the team lost to Parsel's by a score of 2-1 in a real pitcher's battle last week.

As the regular season ended, the Major League standings were as follows:

Team	W	L
Parsel's Olds	7	1
Round Lake Lodge	7	1
Smith's Roofers	4	4
Klooster John Deere	3	5

Tennis Talk

By CHUCK WRIGHT

Anyone who saw the men's and women's singles finals at Wimbeledon last week witnessed tennis at its best. Arthur Ashes and Billie Jean King, two great sentimental champions, played some of their best tennis in their respective careers.

Ashe, the first black man ever to win at Wimbledon, has always been known as the perennial bridesmaid. Until 1975, he has never been able to play his best in the major tournaments. This year, however, Ashe has emphatically changed roles.

In the World Championship Tennis finals, he defeated Born Borg decisively to win the $50,000 first prize. But the Wimbledon championship was his greatest win.

Scouting Jimmy Connors' every match, Ashe developed a strategy which he vowed he would not alter. Rather than trying to overpower Connors, Ashe determined that softer deep approach shots could throw Conners off his game enough to allow him (Ashe) to get to the net for the winning putaway.

This choice of strategy was quite a change for Ashe. Known primarily as an unperturbable serve and volley man, he proved that he could adapt his game to the situation. He played magnificently. Almost every shot he attempted was successful especially his usually weak forehand volley, and although Conors fought back bravely, Ashe was always in command.

Ashe's victory over Connors was a mental as well as a physical win.

Both men displayed real class in their analysis of the match. Connurs, refusing to blame his loss on his bad leg which he had injured earlier in the tournament, gave Ashe full credit and acknowledged his full superiority in the match.

While Ashe and Connors have had their differences in the past, Ashe refused to gloat over his upset. Ashe insisted that the Wimbledon finals was not a grudge match. He even went so far to say tht he thought Connors was basically a nice kid who is being ruined by his manager, Bill Riordan. He also said that in his opinion, Connurs in undeniably the number player in the world.

Billie Jean King climaxed her amazing career with her record sixth Wimbledon championship over Evonne Goolagong Cawley. Billie Jean says that this was her last singles appearance at Wimbledon.

King has played in very few tournaments this year and the fact that she was able to regain top championship form is another tribute to her burning desire to win.

She actually won the title in the semi-finals when she came back from a 0-3 deficit in the third set to overcome Chris Evert. After that win, her finals victory was almost anticlimatic.

Billie Jean King's success comes from her ability to constantly keep the pressure on her opponents. Much like Connors in her style, King is always attacking while managing to play consistently. Make one mistake, one easy return, and King will pounce on it for a winner.

Cut your peak winter heating bills as much as 45%.

Join our 12-Month Budget Payment Plan now.

Our 12-Month Budget Payment Plan has never made more sense than it does now.

We know it's tough to budget for monthly Gas bills that can be as much as six times higher in the cold winter months than in these hot summer ones. The 12-Month Budget Payment Plan lets you even out your Gas bills for the year ahead with 12 monthly installments.

Here's how the Plan works. First, we determine how much Gas you used last year and calculate its total cost at today's rates. Then we divide that total cost by 12 to give you the budget amount you can expect each month from August of this year through July of next year, no matter how cold it might get during the winter.

Results? Your mid-winter budget bills can be as much as 45% below what your normal peak heating payments would otherwise have been.

Of course, if you saved Gas last year by installing ceiling insulation, storm doors and windows or permanently dialed down your thermostat, your monthly budget bills will be even lower than if you hadn't taken these energy conservation measures.

If any adjustments need to be made to your budget payment amount during the year, we'll notify you. Or, if you overpay or underpay a bit for the budget year, we'll make the necessary adjustment on your August 1976 bill.

To enroll, just return the postage paid card we're sending you. Or if you've misplaced it, call us, and we'll sign you up over the phone.

Our Gas is still your lowest cost fuel. And our 12-Month Budget Payment Plan will make it a lot more convenient to pay for.

STATE FARM MUTUAL

Two Wheel Traveler by Jon Hendra

Long distance rides are either a dream or a nightmare. The difference is in how you adapt yourself to the limitations of your bike, the weather, and your physical condition.

Exceeding limitations is dangerous and foolhardy. It causes riders to never arrive at their destination or at least make them wish they were home in bed.

Since all but the limitations of weather are self imposed good judgment is the key to a successful long distance ride.

A big touring bike will take the strain of a long day's ride better than its smaller counterparts. It will also make less demands on your physical condition. So, don't try and make a 500 mile run in one day on a 175cc thumper, at 75 mph. It will destroy you both.

The only thing you can do with bad weather is put up with it. This means reduce your speed but keep on plug in. It's more of a strain, so you'll need longer, more frequent rests. Reduce your projected distance for a good day by half and you should have a tolerable days ride in foul weather.

Your physical state determines your alertness. Alertness is the key to your survival. Being well rested is the best way to start any days ride. Staying that way is your goal. Stopping for a break is the only way to get it all together again. How often you stop is a personal matter but don't wait till it's absolutely necessary. Stop before you've got the cramps and the aches and exercise. Stretch, bend, and walk.

While you're at it, check the bike. It may need more attention than you do. Check tires, wheels, chain, brakes, and the load.

While in the saddle you can get temporary relief by changing positions. Sliding back and forth in the seat and moving your feet to the rear pegs or forward helps provide resting intervals while traveling. These changes are only temporary and shouldn't be used for extended periods. In any but a normal posture you're in a poor position to react in an emergency.

It may take several long rides before you find the style and tempo that suits you and your machine. So stay flexible in your expectations. Check your machine, check the weather, and check yourself. Don't over do and the long tour will be a good one. Good and safe.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Elliot

Elizabeth Currie Marries Ronald Elliot in Park

Elizabeth Ann Currie became the bride of Ronald Dean Elliot in a double ring ceremony performed in the park overlooking Lake Michigan in front of the home of the bride's mother at Charlevoix July 5.

The morning wedding was officiated by the Rev. Raymond H. Giffin of the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. George D. Currie and the late George D. Currie of Charlevoix. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Carl Elliott of West Mansfield, Ohio.

The bride wore a long white eyelet gown with smocked bodice and long full sleeves finished with smocking. Her veil was a mantilla of French lace. She carried a bouquet of mixed flowers.

Mrs. Mark Hepler of Lexington, Ky., assisted the bride as matron of honor. She wore a long gown of floral cotton. Her headpiece was a crown of bronze mums and she carried a bouquet of multi-colored flowers.

David Gordon of Dayton, Ohio, was the best man and also provided the music. He sang "Morning Has Broken", "In My Life" and "A Song for Baby", accompanying himself on the guitar.

The bride's mother wore a beige jersey dress with matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother chose a peach knit dress with matching jacket. Both mothers had white rosebud corsages.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's mother. Punch and coffee were served by Gretchen Olsen and Mrs. Timothy Doan, cousins of the bride. Mrs. Gregory Gardner, sister of the bride, cut the cake.

The couple will make their home in Columbus, Ohio, where the bridegroom is a student of Veterinary Medicine at Ohio State University.

Wedding guests were present from Ohio, Connecticut, Kentucky and Michigan cities.

Couple Celebrates Fiftieth

Mr. and Mrs. Louiselle

Mr. and Mrs. Niley Louiselle were honored recently at a surprise golden anniversary party held at the American Legion Post home.

The party, which required much long distance planning, was hosted by the couple's children, Mrs. Bud (Louise) Wexstaff of Sardis, Miss., Mrs. Ralph (Barbara) Kennedy of Pontiac, Mrs. Robert (Jacqueline) Benson of Anatheim, Calif., N. Allen of Springfield, Mo., and Richard of Charlevoix.

When Mr. and Mrs. Louiselle left their home Saturday evening, they were under the impression that they were going to a family dinner at a local restaurant. They were taken instead to the Post Hume where a host of relatives and friends had gathered for a dinner and dancing. Mr. Louiselle and the former Louise Krulik were married here on July 9, 1925, and have always resided here. Mr. Louiselle was a stone mason by trade. Mrs. Louiselle was employed at Art Dry Cleaners for more than 20 years prior to her retirement. They attend the Community Church of God.

Mr. Louiselle was born in Missouri and came to the Charlevoix area with his parents 65 years ago. Mrs. Louiselle is a native of Charlevoix.

The couple also has 13 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

President Gerald Ford Comes North

Islanders Not Ruffled

PRESIDENT GERALD FORD made a grand sweep of Northern Michigan last weekend. Sunday morning he spoke to the Sixth U.S. Judicial Circuit judges at the Grand Hotel. Friday he greeted some 250,000 people at the Traverse City Cherry Festival Parade. (Photos by Ken Winter and John Broder)

By KEN WINTER

MACKINAC ISLAND—You would think the residents of this 300-year-old garrison would have been excited about President Ford's arrival here last weekend.

But, many of those who prepared for the first visit of a U.S. president to this historic island seemed unruffled.

Employees at the majestic Grand Hotel, where Ford spoke to federal judges Sunday morning, said they had been shining for over a week to spruce things up.

"They've really been pushing us here," says one employee, who helps cleans all the hotel roads and sidewalks.

"I usually only have to clean streets, but this week I've had to clean the curbs and gutters."

The employee said he was not particularly excited about the President's arrival, but felt badly because no one at the hotel would be able to see Ford because they would be busy doing their chores.

The Grand Hotel golf course bartender, where Ford played golf, got a chuckle over all the fuss being made for the President.

"They've even painted all the fire hydrants red, white and blue this week," he laughed.

Most of the elegant hotel's wrought iron fencing had acquired a new coat of yellow paint last week, while hotel bellhops were busily scrubbing down hotel walls and windows.

Even Lansing played a role in the president's island visit. Some 15 Lansingites worked as security guards last weekend.

"I'm really enjoying it," he said while standing behind the Grand in his blue security uniform Saturday.

"We're being paid to come here and see the President."

Norman Word, a Lansing community college security guard thought much the same.

While those who came to help out just for the weekend thought the President's visit was exciting, others who work here all summer thought differently.

"It's no different for me," said one Grand Hotel mail clerk.

"I'll never see him."

Loaded with an armful of mail, the clerk said it would be the same for him if the president was here or not.

A village street sweeper, who cleans up what the horsey island leaves behind, said he had heard the President was coming.

"I see him on the t.v. all the time," he said while scooping up a shovelful of road apples.

"Someone said he was supposed to be here today, but I don't know." Actually, Ford had arrived the night before.

A University of Wisconsin student working as a waitress at Brocato's Food Restaurant on Main Street thought only the older people cared about his visit.

"It's a symbol of patriotism to them," she said.

At Fort Mackinac, where Ford was a member of the first governor's Eagle Scout honor guard in 1929, employees said they had been getting pushed around by Secret Service agents all week.

A maintenance man said he didn't have to do too much extra work, but that the Secret Service had been walking around as though they owned the place.

He pointed to the second floor of the fort's soldier's barracks.

Behind a window propped up with a Pepsi can he said security people had been hovering over three teletypes they brought in earlier this week.

"This morning I had to go down to the dock and get Mrs. Ford's bouquet" he said.

"I don't have any feelings one way or the other about his visit."

Another fort employee said he had to scrounge up an empty 55-gallon oil drum so the Secret Service could burn their trash before leaving next week.

On the other hand, Brian Dickerson of Lansing's Troop 23 who served last week as a Fort honor guard asked his sister to drive up from Lansing so he could stay for the President's visit. The remaining 26 Lansing Boy Scouts went home Saturday.

He and his sister, Cindy, a Lansing Community College sophomore, had planned to sleep overnight in their car in Mackinaw City and come back there Sunday morning in time to see the President. There were no hotel rooms available here on the island.

"These are Mr. Ford's old stomping grounds!"

'Mud Act' Fees Established Here

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week adopted rules and fees for administering the Soil Erosion and Sedimentation Control Act, crammonly known as the "Mud Act."

The Board also appointed Ron Geer as a deputy in the Department of Building Inspection. He will be responsible for inspections under the Act.

The "Mud Act" became effective state-wide last January. It prvides that "Any person who proposes an earth change which will disturb one or more acres of land or which is located within 500 feet of a surface watercourse within this County shall obtain a grading permit from the Office of Building Inspection prior to initiating the earth change."

The fee schedule for grading permits adopted by the Board of Commissioners appears as follows:

The Vanity of Men

Until 1437 diamonds were worn by men only. Then a young girl in the court of Charles VII undertook to catch the king's eye, and invented the diamond necklace. Her daring made Mademoiselle Agnes Sorel the favorite of a king. It also made Paris the center of the fashion world, and diamonds the center of fashion. Both remain so today.

Of course they all drowned.
But then, another 55,600 Americans were killed in motor-vehicle accidents. And 17,600 died from falling. Fire claimed another 6,300 lives.
The figures go on and on. But maybe you get the point.
Don't let us hear about you by accident.

Local Merchants Expect Good Summer Economy

Despite earlier gloomy economic forecasts, Charlevoix business appears to be rising with the mercury.

No one's quite sure why business seems to be up, but area businessmen are predicting a brighter summer than last year.

Most seem to indicate that tight money and higher gas prices are causing many people to stay closer to home to spend their two or three weeks' vacation instead of going out west or to some exotic island.

Others say people are just realizing that areas like Charlevoix have as much to offer as most other places in the world–except it costs less to come up North.

For whatever reason, Charlevoix's economy seems to be pulsating.

Although Charlevoix doesn't have any fancy economic barometers or indexes, the steady stream of summer visitors gives some indications that things are shaping up.

"Right now we are way ahead in number of tourists than we have been in other years at this time," says Chamber Executive Secretary Vince Olach, Charlevoix's official people watcher.

Advertising Helps

Olach attributes some of the influx to advertising he did in Canada to attract our northern neighbors to the area.

"We seem to have a full harbor and more people than before at our recent events," he continued.

The Chamber hosts no less than a dozen activities throughout the summer to attract summer visitors. Activities range from the Charlevoix Raft Races to flea markets.

Olach says he has noticed more Michigan visitors coming to the area to spend their summer time.

"Basically, it's because of the economic crunch," he explains. "More people are vacationing closer to home."

Several local retailers indicated that business has been the best it has in years.

Looks Good

"I'm very anticipatory," said one downtown merchant. "I think things will be very good."

The merchant said he thought more people were vacationing closer to home.

"I'm really looking forward to a good season."

Charlevoix's newest retail addition, The Market, appears to have helped keep up the beat in Charlevoix downtown shopping.

The new indoor mall, located on South Bridge, offers no less than a dozen new shops and boutiques for summer visitors to journey through.

"My business is better than expected," said one new Market merchant.

The store owner said he seems to be getting both resort and local trade.

Sales OK

"This month we are slightly over last year," one owner said.

Realty companies are also giving out optimistic overtures.

"We're getting quite a few inquiries and some sales," said one Charlevoix realtor.

He said most people seem to be interested in buying vacant land for future use.

"A lot of people are getting tired of paying high rent and are buying homes," he said.

The local agent said real estate sales are slow, but that it is too early in the season to have a true indicator.

"Most people buy in the fall," he said.

He, like others, predict a better summer than others.

Last Musical Program Planned

The summer music program sponsored by the Charlevoix public schools during the past five weeks will be climaxed Thursday with a concert, their director, Evelyn Peters, has announced.

The concert will be presented at the high school gymnasium at 1 p.m. Thursday. It will be open to the public and parents and friends are encouraged to attend.

The program will feature solo and ensemble numbers designed to point up the accomplishments of the young instrumentalists, some of whom will enter the regular music program in the seventh grade and others who will return to playing with organized groups when school opens in September.

The students have been receiving individual and group instruction under the direction of Miss Peters and Jeanne Belfy.

Ellsworth Gets New Superintendent

Michael "Mike" Conflitti began his duties as Superintendent of the Ellsworth Community School on July 1. He came to the area from the Cherry Hill School District at Inkster.

Conflitti received his Bachelor of Science In Education degree at the University of Detroit and his Master of Arts degree in Administration and supervision at Eastern Michigan University. He has been in the field of education for 20 years, 15 of them as an administrator.

Mr. and Mrs. Conflitti have three children, Michael, 18, Richard, 12 and Mary Jo, 8.

Council

Gibbons said that state law requires public property that is either vacated, discontinued or abolished must go before a public hearing.
However, LeHarve attorney Arthur Rebeil insisted that a public hearing would not resolve the status of the property.
Several other residents supported Ready's claim that a public hearing should be held.
Former Councilwoman Jeannine Wallace said that the feelings of too many people have been forgotten in the past and that a hearing should be held.
Council agreed to have a hearing on Monday, August 25.
"I'm pleased with what happened tonight," Ready said following the meeting."
"There were a couple of discouraging remarks made at the end."
In other action, Council:
--Rezonned the Thorpe property on Meech Street from Residential (R) one to R-2.
--Agreed to contact neighboring townships regarding a funding formula for sewer planning and construction in order to qualify for state grants.
--Heard a request for property to construct tennis bounce boards.

The solution to their problems is evident. If the churches insist upon selling beer, the taverns should hire married priests and other renegade clergy to tend bar on Sundays.
I would not be so sacrilegious as to suggest actual Masses might be said from behind the beer spigots. But scriptures could be read. Hymns could be led.
And bingo numbers could be called. That might make those 8 churches cry in their beer.

ALBERT "Buck" Sharrow Meets President Ford.

Sharrow Chauffeurs President on Island

By Ken Winter

MACKINAC ISLAND--Thirty-five-year-old Albert Sharrow had no idea a building construction slowdown would eventually land him a job driving the President of the United States.

But as luck wold have it, the life-long Charlevoix resident did just that-he drove President Ford and Governor Milliken between the Grand Hotel and the Governor's summer mansion last Sunday.

The one-time carpenter didn't even bat an eye lash over the hoopla last weekend when the President made his historic visit to this storybook island.

Driving President Ford was no different than taking around the thousands of other visitors who flock to this summer island to buy its famous fudge and see historic landmarks, Sharrow says.

Sl...row came here this summer on a lark after being laid-off from a Northern Michigan house construction firm. Mackinac Island Carriage Tours had originally asked him to drive Memorial Day weekend because they needed extra drivers.

Old Job

After learning that he would be laid-off for the summer, Sharrow was able to get back his old carriage driving job. He used to drive a carriage and give tours of the Island 11 years ago.

"He's a nice guy," Sharrow said about meeting the President last Sunday at the Governor's mansion to take him to the Grand Hotel for an early morning breakfast with U.S. federal judges.

"The President is a normal guy.

"He talks just like everyone else."

The short stocky cabbie said the President asked him where the sesamoid bones that Ruffian broke in his race against Foolish Pleasure at Belmont Park were located.

"When we took him back to the mansion after breakfast, he got out and shook our hands," he said. Sharrow and Terry Picket of Illinois had the honor of driving the President.

Except, instead of using his usual red and white, 12-passenger buckboard wagon, Sharrow and his Illinois companion used an antique $25,000 vis-a-vis coach.

The carriage, belonging to Grand Hotel owner W. Stewart Woodfill, was pulled by $10,000 pure bred hackneys.

"I felt sort of funny sitting up there in the carriage," Sharrow said.

"But it probably wasn't as funny as I look in that monkey suit."

Sharrow said the only time he felt nervous with the President was when they pulled up to the Grand and hundreds of camera shutters started clicking away.

"My family thought is was a pretty big deal," Sharrow said. His wife, Alice and 10-year-old son, Ron, were unable to watch because they had to go to a Gaylord horse show.

Not First Time

It's not the first time Sharrow has taken around someone famous. In addition to haying driven for forner Governors G. Mennen Williams and John B. Swainson, the cab driver also took Lady Bird Johnson around during her 1964 visit to the island.

Sharrow says this is the first time, though, that he has seen his picture in so many newspapers--especially with the President.

A Mackinac Island Cnrriage spokesman said they chose Sharrow over some 70 other drivers because of his ability with horses and being able to think quickly in case something happened.

Hey Kids! Big Saturday Event

"Hey, kids, don't forget your big parade next Saturday...the doll and dress-up parade" is the reminder being issued this week by Mrs. Carl Rothenberger, chairman of the annual event.

The pet parade, until now a part of this event, has been eliminiated because of the thrent to the smaller animals entered in the parde.

By way of explanation, Mrs. Rothenberger said "The space is confined and there is the threat of larger animals, such as dogs, injuring the kittens or hunny rabbits." Several such incidents last year brought about the decision to omit the pet parade. The parade will be in East Park at 3:30 p.m. following the parade.

As in the past, cash prizes will be awarded to the top three winners in each of the Hundreds Expected for Venetian; Queens Contest Starts Weekend

By FRAN MARTIN

Charlevoix will be host this weekend to the annual Venetian Festival highlighted by the Venetian Boat Parade on Round Lake and its accompanying fireworks display on Saturday night.

Earlier in the day, the Venetian Street Parade will be stage at noon in the business district.

The Venetian Queen's Pageant to name the 1975 Venetian Queen will launch the activities on Friday night when seven candidates vie for the honor of reigning over the festival and representating the community during the coming year.

This event will be held at the Charlevoix High School gymnasium at 8 p.m. Friday. Candidates for Venetian Queen are Marge Carey, Joni Dove, Bonnie Hilton, Cindy Kiteley, Rita Moses, Coleen Russell and Denise Wasoski. The reigning Venetian Queen, Tori Alger, will officiate at the coronation of her successor.

Meanwhile, a carnival atmosphere will reign throughout the area as Ed Master's fun rides open for business at the Kusina Parking lot at Bridge Street and Hurlbut Avenue above the Oleson complex and more than 20 booths open for business in East Park. The popular Moon Walk and the Dog Races will also be returning to the park along with the Lions Club tasty chicken barbecue. The latter will begin at 11 a.m. Saturday.

Venetian Parade

Beginning at noon the Venetian Street Parade featuring bands, floats and numerous other entries including the Young Americans show now appearing in Petoskey will begin at the high school and follow a route north on Bridge St. to Clinton st. Tom Merta is general chairman of the parade. Bill Superaw of Station WJML will narrate the parade from a vantage point in the business area.

An afternoon of entertainment will follow in East Park starting with a concert by the Scottville Clown Band at 1 p.m.; a water fight by the Charlevoix Volunteer Fire Department at 1:30 p.m.; a greased pole climb under the direction of Charlevoix Boy Scouts at 2:30 p.m.; a show by the National Summer Palaestrum, a gymnastics camp at Williamsburg, at 3 p.m.; the annual Doll and Dress-up parade from the band stand at 3:30 p.m.; entertainment by a Barbershop Quartette composed of Dick Johnson, Dale Hansen, Dr. John Lignell and Byron Wright at 5 p.m. followed by a concert by the New Found Spirit featuring Steve Stargardt and Nancy Jacobs, presently appearing at the Weathervane Inn, at 6 p.m.

The evening program will begin at 7:30 p.m. with a concert by the Charlevoix City Band followed by a second by the Charlevoix High School band, both appearing under the direction of Gary Stutzman.

Second Appearance

The 1975 Venetian Queen and her court will make her second public appearance of the day following the concert when they are introduced by Tim Moore of Station WVOY who will also announce the Venetian Boat Parade.

As darkness falls, the first fireworks shot from a barge in Round Lake will announce the beginning of the Venetian Boat Parade which is being arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hufford and Georgia LaBlance. This is expected to begin at approximately 10 p.m. and will feature an estimated 50 boats decorated in a variety of motifs with colored lights, lanterns and spotlights.

The Venetian Queen and her court, who will view the parade from the fantail of the U.S.C.G.C. Sundew, will serve as judges of the parade. Lights and lanterns for those wishing to enter the parade may be picked up at Captain's Corner across from the post office.

An outdoor breakfast in East Park from 9 a.m. until noon will be available Sunday morning for festival visitors. At 11 a.m. Heidi Dove, accompanying herself on her guitar will present a vocal concert from the band stand.

An open house aboard the Cutter Sundew at the Municipal Dock will be a feature of the early afternoon beginning at noon and continuing until 3 p.m. This will allow visitors to tour the ship which is stationed here but seldom open for public view.

Spectator Sports

For those interested in spectator sports, there will be a slo-pitch softball games at the Carpenter Avenue park beginning at 1 p.m.

At 2 p.m. a 12-mile cross-country foot race will be staged by Ron Grunch. The starting point will be the Oleson parking lot at Bridge and Antrim st. The race is open to everyone. Deadline for entering is Thursday evening. Entry blanks may be obtained by calling 547-2784.

Any inquiries regarding the festival may be directed to the Chamber office at 347-2101.

Seven Compete for Local Crown

By FRAN MARTIN

"Mirror, mirror, on the wall...Who's the loveliest of them all?"

That questions will be answered Friday when the seven candidates for the Venetian Queen title appear in the annual Venetian Queen Pageant at the Charlevoix high school gymnasium at 8 p.m.

At that time, the candidates, Marge Carey, Joni Dove, Bonnie Hilton, Cindy Kiteley, Rita Moses, Colleen Russell and Denise Wasoski, will appear in brief song and dance revue, a mini-fashion show, make a talent presentation and appear in evening gowns before a panel of judges.

Tori Alger, 1974 Venetian Queen and a member of the 1975 National Cherry Queen court, will be present to crown her successor.

Mrs. Larry Warner will be mistress of ceremonies.

Judges will be Diana Mason of Harbor Springs, Jay Alexander of Station WJML, Petoskey, and organ music for the pageant will be by Mrs. Edward Swanson.

Clerk Becomes 7th to Quit

Charlevoix City Clerk Ida Heise recently became the seventh major city official to resign from a position within the last two years.

Publicly, the city clerk has said she's stepping down so she can enjoy an early retirement and get to know her two-year-old granddaughter out east.

However, city hall sources say there's more to the story. They say the same holds true for many of the other elected and appointed officials who have left.

Since 1973, Charlevoix has lost a city administrator, city attorney, electrical department head, streets department head, recreation director and city councilman.

"This country is one big pressure cooker," Hansen says.

The Charlevoix mayor says everyone in the country is expecting to solve overnight the problems brought about in the last 100 years.

"The times are changing so fast...the increased amount of paperwork, the reports," Hansen continued.

"The hardest thing working for the government is being under the continual pressure," he adds.

"The pressure is so great that they can't survive it and if they can get out they get out."

Hansen disclaimed charges that he has been involved with the resignation of any recent city employees. He takes credit for only one.

"The only resignation I had anything to do with at all was Mr. Hanna's (former city administrator)," Hansen said.

The city mayor said people have been telling him the city is going to go to pieces.

"I would like you to show me where the pieces are and where the city has fallen and been crushed," he continued.

"As far as I am concerned the City of Charlevoix is in the best shape it has ever been."

"I'm used to private industry, where it is expected work will be done," Wexstaff said.

"If I'm guilty of expecting something, so be it."

Wexstaff said he was not aware of any friction at city hall.

As far as the large number of personnel leaving the city, Wexstaff said we live in a highly mobile society and there is more of a tendency for people to change jobs.

"I think the city is in great shape," he continued.

The city administrator pointed out how both the city's electrical system and harbor are being improved, as well as local sidewalks, streets, curbs and gutters.

"I'm very optimistic about the city," he said.

Wexstaff said things could be improved, but there is always room for improvement anywhere.

Several in city hall, who wish to remain anonymous because of their jobs, partially blame the exodus of employees on the administration of the city.

They say it is very difficult to get a decision made and that there is very little direction offered.

In an earlier interview with the Courier, Howard Hutchinson, Charlevoix's former Superintendent of Light and Water, said he left because he was tired of politics and fighting city hall.

Others, such as Curt Kipke, who left his position as city recreation director earlier this spring, constantly complained of never getting decisions on what programs he would or would not be allowed to offer.

In addition to the decision-making power, others accuse the city administration of never letting department heads become involved with budget building in their departments.

"If we had a professional city administrator, we would never be in the situation we are now," one city hall employee said.

Physician Makes Out

I read your article in the paper on PBB and I thought it rather strange that in the article Dr. Leupnitz thought that this was no big thing. He is the only person in this area who has made quite a bit of money over this. I am one of the farmers involved in this and I thought this was rather strange.

Need Office Space

Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Charlevoix County needs office space. We operate from funds donated by the Community Chest of Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan. These funds are used primarily for learning experience activities for our youngsters and for administering the program. Therefore, we do not have money for office rent or extensive utility bills, so we are asking for donated offices.

There are more than 60 young boys and girls from parentless families in Charlevoix who have (and some for the first time) had the experience of having an adult friend who acknowledge their individuality and also accepts them as they are. This has been accomplished through Big Brothers Big Sisters of Charlevoix County. The organization has been operating for the past six yeers and has experienced rapid growth in the past few months.

This growth has resulted in administrative work which has strained the fnelities presently in use in a private home. It is for this reason we are asking some kind person who will donate regular space for our use.

Summer Home

This is in answer to your Hotline Question asked last week. I think President Ford should consider making Mackinac Island his summer home, but hope the government makes sure it isn't just Michigan who would pay for it. While I was glad to see him visit Northern Michigan last week, I think his visit cost Michigan taxpayers a bundle.

Do you think large gasoline companies are fixing prices? Call the Hotline (547-6558) with your opinion.

SEEING DOUBLE? It's been so hot out recently that people are beginning to think they are seeing double. Actually this is just some trick photography by Sam Carlisle of East Jordan. The double person is Danny Swanson of East Jordan.

DON BROWN'S HOUSE OF FURNITURE, situated on US-31, just North of Charlevoix, has an outstanding selection of outdoor lawn & patio furniture on display on their spacious front lawn. Inside, displays of a wide variety of living room settings can be found, beautifully coordinated with lamps, paintings and wall-hangings. Don Brown and his experienced staff can assist you in every way. Stop out today, or call 547-4447. Open Daily 9-5:30, Friday 9-9, Sundays 1-4. (Adv.)

Student Physicals Planned for July

All Charlevoix students, grades 7 through 12, who plan on participating in any interscholastic competitive sport, band or cheerleading next year should report for a physical examination next Tuesday, July 29.

The examinations will begin at 7 o'clock with registration in the high school cafeteria, May Street entrance.

Doctors from the area will give the examinations under the direction of Dr. David Roebuck of the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Students who do not receive physicals at this time must make their own arrangements since physical examinations are necessary for participation in any or all sports.

Emmet Fair Opens Soon

The Emmet County Fair will open in Petoskey on August 18, and with it will come all the entertainment, carnival equipment, hot dog stands and exhibits of home-grown and home-made items that make up a County Fair.

This year the entertainment portion of the fair features three versatile performers.

Sunday Sharpe, Country / Pop music recorder, will be on hand to entertain her many fans, and to make new ones. Sunday comes from Orlando, Florida and graduated from high school here. When she was born, one of the popular radio programs was a production called "Our Gal Sunday", so she was named for the central character.

Sunday is also a song writer of sorts, having written her first recording which made the charts in many parts of the country.

Dan Fleenor, Hollywood stunt man, will also appear at the fair. He is the only auto daredevil in the country to attempt to balance a stock model car on two wheels and coast the car that way as far as he can. Fleenor has been seen balancing automobiles on television and in motion pictures. The stunt is called "a balancing aerial wing-over", and after the show the audience can examine the car to see what it looks like. It's a stock model Plymouth.

Appearing with Fleenor will be the Hurricane Helldrivers, a world famous team of precision drivers and crash champions. Their program includes hair-raising high speed chases and bone-jarring crashes. Specialty acts include a motorcycle "leap of death" over a row of parked cars, the "slide for life", where a daredevil drops from the rear of a speeding car, and the "ramp to ramp leap" 60 feet thruugh space with a new car.

Rex Allen, Jr., Country Music entertainer who records for Warner Brothers, will also appear at the Emmet County Fair. He has been in show business since the age of six, starting with his father in rodeos, fairs and theaters.

In 1971, Rex was selected by CBS to represent Country Music and Nashville on the nationally televised "CBS Newcomers", the summer replacement for the "Carol Burnett Show." He was the most well received of the eight selected out of some 250 people auditioned throughout the United States.

Schooner Recaptures Errol Flynn Days

By TOM DAMMANN

Boat watchers in the Weathervane Inn may have thought they had partaken a bit too much one recent June afternoon when a stately three masted schooner glided from Lake Michigan along the channel beneath the gaping jaws of the bridge almost like the vessel of Errol Flynn pirate movie bursting on the wide screen of Cinema III.

Passing beneath the bridge, her galleried stern presented a picture familiar 200 years ago along eastern seaberd waterfronts, while her ribbon name plate with its gold lettered "H.M.S. DOLPHIN" conjured up images of 18th Century British warships.

The bicentennial had sneaked into Charlevoix, a royal blue hull with snow white superstructure, shiny decks and three tan masts. Basketwork and a carved figure head graced her bowsprit. From her tumblehome sides poked snouts of four brass cannons.

Everything spotless.

Cannon Announcement

The boom of a cannon announcing her arrival aroused some natives, who formed a small welcome flotilla consisting of a beat-up outboard tub and a dinghy.

This was no aparition, but rather the real thing, measuring 72 feet in length -- over all, 50 feet of that on deck. Her beam is 16 feet, she draws 7 feet and stands precisely 55 feet from waterline to the tip of her mainmast.

She has 11 sails, about 2,000 square feet worth, listed as follows: an outer jib, inner jib, forestays'l, fores'l, foretops'l, foretopsallants'l, main stays'l, mains'l, maintops'l, mizzenstays'l, and mizzens'l -- 11 count 'em 11.

There is an estimated "half mile or so" of standing and running rigging between peaks and belaying pins.

The H.M.S. DOLPHIN is an half scaled armed replica of the British barkentine which discovered Tahiti a few years before Captain Cook did in the late 18th Century.

Hollis Baker, former owner of the world renowned Baker Furniture Co., of Grand Rapids, and present owner of the Boyne City Railroad (which can be bought for $400,000, incidentally) had her built in Nova Scotia and launched in October 1973.

Good Copy

She is a good copy of the original H.M.S. DOLPHIN with the standard barkentine rig, in which the formast is square rigged and the main and mizzen masts are fore and aft rigged.

But otherwise, there are great differences. Whereas the original carried 100 men, this will sleep only six people, in three sumptuous cabins equipped with private showers and toilets.

And unlike the original, all sails can be handled from the deck, in fact, its Captain Richard Hubbard, an erstwhile navigator on the C.G.C. SUNDEW, can handle her all alone, and has, he says.

She has two steering positions, one aft on the quarterdeck and the other in the covered bridge across the main cabin.

She is powered by a 160 h.p. diesel auxiliary and has a small gasoline engine to generate electricity. She is equipped with the most up to date electronic navigational aids available.

The DOLPHIN has been in Florida and the Caribbean since she was commissioned, until Hubbard brought her up here, via the inland waterway, Hudson River and New York Barge Canal.

First Port Call

Charlevoix was her first Lake Michigan port of call. A few days after she arrived she was joined by Mr. and Mrs. Baker, just home from Europe, who took her south "to meet their friends."

H.M.S. DOLPHIN is scheduled to spend August in Charlevoix-Harbor Springs waters before returning to Florida.

Food Sales Hit $9.5 Million Locally

Retail business in Charlevoix County was at a higher level in the past year than was expected, the final tabulations show.

The sales volume compiled by local stores indicates that local residents have been coping with the recession more successfully than have people in many parts of the country.

However, although a sizeable amount was spent locally for food, clothing, home furnishings and other goods and services, buying was at a more restrained pace than it would have been if economic conditions had been normal.

As in other communities, people cut back temporarily on some of their discretionary spending. Most severely hit, as a result, were the markets for automobiles and new homes.

The facts and figures on the local spending picture are brought out in the annual survey of markets, conducted by the Standard Rate and Data Service. It shows how consumers in each area of the nation spent their money, and for what.

In Charlevoix County, a large portion of it went for food. Approximately 31 cents out of every dollar spent in retail stores was for purchases.

By comparison, elsewhere in the United States, 22 cents was for food and, in the East North Central States, 21 cents.

What it produced, for supermarkets, grocery stores, meat markets, bakeries and other food outlets was a sales volume of $9,580,000. This compares with the previous year's $8,754,000.

Not included is the amount spent for food consumed in restaurants and in other eating and drinking places.

If the expenditure for take-home food were uniformly divided among the local population it would be equivalent to $1,669 per household.

The volume of business done by other retail establishments shows that most of them stood up quite well, despite the recession.

Sales of cars and other automotive equipment and supplies amounted to $5,174,000, compared with the prior year's $6,068,000.

Those selling shoes, hats, clothing and other wearing apparel grossed $833,000.

Furniture and home furnishings stores accounted for $1,369,000.

Cancer Society Checks PBB For Effects on Humans

By PEG OHLE

A study of the effect of polybrominated bi-phenyl (PBB) on human beings will be undertaken within the next few weeks by the Michigan Department of Public Health with the cooperation of the National Cancer Institute, the Center for Disease Control, the Food and Drug Administration, and other Federal agencies.

The announcement was made last week by Rep. Elford A. Cederberg, who was instrumental in securing funds through the National Cancer Institute for the study.

In all, 6,000 members of farm families will be watched and tested regularly. They will be divided into three categories. The first category of 2,000 persons will be made up of persons who live on farms where the PBB contaminated animal feed was used. The second 2,000 persons will be members of farm families where the contaminated feed was not used but who probably drank milk from contamined cattle or ate meat, poultry or eggs from contaminated farm animals.

The third 2,000 is a control group from farm families who were not in any way associated with PBB.

New Study Group

According to Dr. Kenneth Wilcox of the Michigan Department of Public Health, the Departmeut will set up a study group to go into the field to make physical examinations on an on-going basis. The program will last five years or longer.

Special attention will be paid to babies born of mothers who partook of contaminated food and to young children in the same category.

"We hope to find that in the long run no harm to health will come as the result of PBB contamination," Dr. Wilcox said.

Results of an earlier short-term study made by the Health Department did not "show anything we could put a finger on", according to Dr. Wilcox.

Cost of the study will amount to over $1 million for five years. It is being financed largely by the National Cancer Institute.

Since 1973

It was in the fall of 1973 that PBB, an industrial chemical, was supplied to Michigan Farm Bureau Services by the Michigan Chemical Company instead of a feed supplement.

Farm Bureau Services mixed the PBB with animal feed and distributed it in many counties, mostly north of Grand Rapids, including Charlevoix and Antrim. After several months of investigation, PBB was found to be the cause of sickness and death to thousands of cattle, hogs, chickens and other farm animals.

PBB has been found in varying amounts in the blood and tissues of many persons who ate or drank food products from these animals. Now the job is to find out what, if any, adverse effect these traces have on the physical well-being of such persons.

The United States Department of Agriculture has prohibited the sale of any food product with a PBB contamination rate of over .3 parts in a million.

City Confidence Needed

Publicists have been calling it the Spirit of '76.

Others have been calling it the nation's 200th birthday.

In either case, leaders in all levels of government have been asking for involvement to celebrate our American Bicentennial.

Perhaps this same call for crucial involvement could be exerted in Charlevoix, but in a different way.

People have been asking if there are problems in city hall.

The obvious answer, if you ask those at the helm, is nothing.

They tell you just to look around and see all the improvements that are being made in the city this summer.

For the first time in several years, improvements are taking place at our harbor to attract the thousands of boaters who pass through here.

Work on city streets and sidewalks, as well as on the city's electrical system, is taking place.

Yet despite all of these improvements in our city, there still seems to be a missing element in our city government. Call it the Spirit of '76. Call it trust.

No matter what you call it, things at city hall don't seem to be as well as some would have you believe.

The mayor and others involved directly with local government partially blame the lack of trust on local media, particularly newspapers.

They say the media constantly attempts to point out the problems or negative activities taking place at city hall.

Things at city hall couldn't be as bad as the media would have you believe, they say.

Some have been daring enough to place the condition of both our city and nation entirely on the media.

We find that almost as absurd as placing blame entirely on the mayor and council for all that has happened during the last two years.

However, what we do find distressing is the number of high ranking city employees and elected officials that have resigned their positions in a town the size of Charlevoix.

Each person who has left has given some superficial and logical reason for his resignation. Yet, if you talk to him on the side he will tell you a completely different story.

City residents should be as concerned with the city as they would be with any other investment they have made.

Like the people who have left city employment, we are concerned with the attitude taken toward citizens who have shown interest.

It is a sad state of affairs when local citizenry have to hire an outside attorney to represent them at city council.

After city council was finally confronted by Alice Street residents, for example, council decided to have a public hearing on whether or not to lease a strip of property to a private condominium development.

At this point, we are not interested in dealing with the specific issues centering around the proposed lease between the city and condominium.

We are more interested in the manner in which the lease agreement was handled by the council.

The matter was never on the council's agenda and some councilmen found themselves looking at a lease agreement they had never seen until it popped up in the middle of a council meeting.

Despite urging by several councilmen, the matter wasn't going to public hearing and was approved that night.

After hearing about the council action after it had happened, residents in the Alice Street neighborhood hired an attorney to aid them in getting council to wait on a decision until a hearing could be held.

City Attorney Don Berlage had advised the council that a hearing would not be necessary because it does not involve the sale of property.

Without passing judgment on the legality of the issue, it seems to us that if local citizenry want a hearing on leasing city property they should be entitled to it.

The local citizens would not even have had to get to the point of hiring legal counsel if the matter had been clearly aired at the onset.

Instead of meeting to the midnight hour and discussing items that should be taken up in committee and reported to the council with recommendations for action, the council should begin to examine how to instill more interest in city government.

If ever in doubt about public sentiment on a particular issue, we would rather see them delay action and get back to their constituents.

We are very concerned about the condition at city hall and encourage you to take a closer look at what is happening.

Merchant Upset with City

July 15, 1975

Dear Sir,

I feel that it only appropriate to express appreciation when it is deserved, and at this time, I take my hat off to our knowledgable and considerate city administration.

Of course, I realize that our city fathers, being astutely business-minded and always aware of the needs of local merchants, do everything within their powers to make our community prosper.

The point at hand is the reconstructing of city sidewalks. I am certain that our city administration is well aware of the difficulties involved in maintaining u year-round business in a basically summer resort community. Many of the local merchants in no way would be able to survive or operate on a year-round basis without the influx of tourism and tourist dollars. In other words, PROFIT is spelled JULY and AUGUST. So, did the sidewalk work start in May, or even June, or perhaps September? No, of course not, July was chosen as the most appropriate month.

And, is this a business hazard? Considering that the noise is so loud and the resulting dust covers hard goods and ruins soft goods; doors have to remain shut (even if we are not blessed with air conditioning), it is. Both foot and vehicle traffic is hampered.

Of course, it is an added blessing when the breaking up of sidewalks is immediately in front of your establishment, and on a rather slow day you can watch through the window as both local population as well as tourists become disgusted with the hassle of blocked sidewalks, noise, and dust, to cross the street, disregarding my door. Of course, they cannot be captured by my new and exciting window display, because, even though washed daily, the resulting dust has a rather dulling effect on any sort of window dressing.

Thank you, City Fathers.

Name and Business Withheld by request.

Congratulations Beaver Island!

In case you have not yet heard, the Michigan Bicentennial Commission has awarded $5,000 to Beaver Island for the publication of historical pamphlets and literature. Their proposal has since been passed on to the Michigan History Division for further consideration of funding for the restoration projects on the island.

I guess that now they have received so much money, they will have to live up to their image of busy little beavers!

An individual who has done her own personal project for the bicentennial is the East Jordan Mayoral candidate, Jinny Glacomelli. Glance at her mailbox as you drive by and you will notice a touch of red, white, and blue. She received her just reward for her efforts when she was fortunate enough to receive a handshake from President Ford while he was here for the Cherry Festival. She just "happened" to be by his plane when he arrived at the airport!

More evidence of the red, white, and blue theme can be found on the Ironton Ferry. Bob Baker and Norm Ramsdell have produced quite a spiffy little ferry. It is so nice to see these individual people celebrating the bicentennial in their own way.

Another individual effort has been contributed by Joe Early, an Eagle Scout. A few months ago, he came into my office inquiring about some possible project ideas. I gave him a list of projects to consider. Time passed quickly by until the day Joe returned to my office. He was selected to distribute little American Flag decals to shop owners for display on their doors. So, if you should see any while downtown Charlevoix, you now know the story.

If you are interested in participating in the bicentennial, the Charlevoix City Bicentennial Commission will be meeting July 29, 7:30 at the High School. Various projects will be discussed and the committees for these will be selected. If you should have any further questions, please contact me at 547-6661.

I wonder if anyone will ever make a movie entitled "The Summer of '75"?

If so, folks in 1995 or 2005 are in for a nostalgic trip back to the good old days in the land of plenty.

In fact, the feeling grows with every passing day that the end is near, but no one seems to realize it except me, President Ford and u few other stolid conservatives who have had bad feelings for some time now about America's reckless consumption of natural resources.

The message coming from Arabian potentates, Alaskan geologists and wildcat well drillers right here in Michigan is that the world's supply of oil is lost running out.

For example, if Michigan's known oil resources were tapped to their fullest, the state would produce enough petroleum to last the country about 30 days and no longer.

On the yearly basis, Michigan produces enough oil every 365 days to last the nation about 24 hours.

Of course, there may be major new discoveries in the future; ways may be found to separate the sand from the black ooze in the northern reaches of Alberta; science may yet learn how to milk the oil out of Michigan's Antrim shale; but the fact remains that the world's known oil reserves are running dangerously low.

At present rates of consumption we'll be lucky to squeak by until the end of the century.

To future generations, the 1900's certainly will be remembered as the century the United States — aided and abetted by the rest of the civilized world — burned up the earth's supply of oil.

But few people are lending an ear to the prophets of doom. Our precious, costly supply of petroleum is being consumed with even more abandon this summer than ever before, as hundreds of thousands of motorists jam our resort towns and connecting railways every weekend. Long time observers agree that even mid-week traffic in downtown Charlevoix has never been heavier, to the delight of local merchants.

Although the number of sailboats in our neighboring waters seems to be increasing every year, there appears to be no decrease in the number of gasoline-gulping power cruisers. In fact, boats tied up at the Charlevoix City dock appear to grow a good five feet a year. (It must be the nutrients in the water, because the row boat in dry dock in our backyard hasn't grown an inch in five years.)

Furthermore, there has been a real proliferation of small gas-burning vehicles, toys and garden implements. All hours of the day and night the air is alive with the whirr of motorcycles; all-terrain vehicles menace picnickers from Norwood to North Point; and even the tiniest buckyard requires a gasoline-powered lawn mower to throttle it into submission.

We are wasting gasoline this summer on a scale never before equaled in the annuals of our profligate society.

However all is not lost. By raising the price of oil when they did, our friends the Arabs are telling us, "O.K., fellas. Cool it on oil. You still have a few years left, but you had better spend it casting about for new sources of energy."

Wouldn't it have been dreadful if they had waited until the last drop of oil was in the pumps before warning us. Now, at least, we have a few years to prepare for what happens — if we heed the warning.

President Ford, like the Arabs, wants to put the brakes on reckless competition by lifting domestic price controls. I personally would prefer rationing, but Ford's scheme probably will have the same net result.

However some of our leather-headed congressmen still can't see the big picture. They pledged to fight Ford hammer and tongs on the issue of price decontrol.

In late September the bill exporters will agree on a new price increase, expected to be about 30 percent, which, for all practical purposes, will signal the end of the petrolem binge of the 1900's.

"The Summer of '75," if it is ever filmed, will appear strange indeed to movie viewers 20 or 30 years from hence.

Oh, I know you've all read stories about America's 5,000 miles of beaches dotted with bared bodies under the sun, but it ends there. And the reasons have nothing to do with modesty, prudery, or the law.

The simple truth is, nudity is impractical. Face it. We live in a wicker-chair-nine-months-of-winter-have-the-correct-change-world. If you don't believe it, ask yourself: Would you hire a man who didn't have a pocket to carry his Social Security card in?

Would you marry a man who checked into a motel without luggage?

Blending into the labor market has been tried by unclothed people and failed miserably. Some of them have turned to a life of crime only to experience more disappointment. Day after day you read stories of streaking bank robbers who are apprehended minutes after their get-away. It seems no matter how a person wearing only brown shoes and carrying a small black bag tries to "lose" himself in a crowd, he's always spotted.

A few unclothed persons have gotten temporary work by running across o football field during a game or appearing unexpectedly at awards ceremonies, but it's seasonal work.

The country just isn't geared towrd people who are unclothed. If we were to "go native" it would throw everything out of balance:

1. Turnstiles in supermarkets would have to be heated.
2. Pickpockets would starve.
3. Mr. Blackwell would have to amend his list and come out with the Ten Worst-Undressed Women In America.
4. Disney movies in which animals appeared with clothes on would have to have parental guidance and discreation.
5. Cher would have to wear puffed sleeves and cover her navel to get attention.
6. A commmon Band-Aid would be considered costume jewelry.

But worst of all, most of us would be greeted not with "How are you?" but "What Happened?"

I couldn't stand that.

The Game is Never Over

What this nation needs is more of George Kell's super optimism: The Arab who will one day sell 20-cent gasoline has already been born and is currently getting all A's at the Abdullah School of Camel Lubrication in Princeton, New Jersey.

George Kell is the TV announcer for Detroit Tiger baseball games. No matter how far behind the Tigers may fall, Kell always retains hope. No matter how deathly dark the situation, he can always see light at the end of the runway.

If the score is tied, and the Tigers have a runner on 3rd in the 9th inning, Kell's optimism is easy. "Detroit has the winning run on 3rd base," he'll say.

Or the situation may be only slightly worse and he'll say: "Detroit has the tying run on 1st base and the winning run at bat."

Or, as things get just a little desperate, "Detroit has the tying run at hat and the winning run in the waiting batter's circle."

Recently the Tigers experienced a terrible slump, losing something like 18 out of 20 games by lopsided scores. During such times, Kell is liable to say such things as:

"The Tigers have the tying run in the dugout and the winning run is in the runway between the dugout and the lockerroom, sneaking a smoke."

Or: "The Tigers have the tying run coming in on a bus from Toledo and the winning run is graduating from high school next week with 2 Tiger scouts attending commencement exercises."

Or: "Detroit has the tying run in the waiting batter's circle at a Pee Wee League game in Roanoke, West Virginia. The winning run is sparkling in the eye of Stud Jacobs, former Tiger 1st baseman who now umpires in a woman's softball league in Boise, Idaho, and has the hots for a shortstop named Katherine."

My friend Joe was complaining because he has been out of work for 2 years and his wife left him.

"Cheer up," I told him, "President Ford and his economic advisers all agree the recession has bottomed out. This means they are running out of bottoms to kick, and yours may be one of them."

This made Joe sit a little easier, but there was still the problem with his wife. Joe used to write to Ann Landers for domestic advice and he was really shook when Ann admitted she couldn't get along with her husband, the finest man in the world, and she is getting a divorce.

"If Ann Landers can't get along with the greatest husband in the world," Joe asked, "how can she tell me how to get along with my rotten wife?"

"Cheer up," I told him. "Jean Dixon has just predicted that Dorothy Dix will soon be reincarnated as a cat. Dorothy was giving wise advice to troubled spouses before Ann Landers was old enough to tell a boy if he really loved her he'd wait. Just put a saucer of milk on your porch. The next time you see your wife, she will probably be something the cat dragged in."

Joe thanked me. "I really appreciate your optimism," he said.

"That's OK," I said. "Just remember that in the game of life, you never know who may be the winning run. Don't die on 3rd. That stranger on the corner may really be a Designated Hitter just waiting to knock you into the win column. The game is never over until the last out and even then you can still appeal to the commissioner's office."

"If this game goes into extra innings," Joe said, "I am going to throw up."

Meet Charlevoix

Meet Curly Hartzell

Charlevoix is somewhat unique in that we have perhaps one of the finest and most well protected natural harbors on the Great Lakes.

COURIER: How did you end up on Beaver Island?

HARTZELL: I'm originally from Kalamazoo, Michigan where I was employed as an iron worker. We then moved to Beaver Island, where my wife and I have owned a cabin for 28 years. I was dockmaster on the island for ten years.

COURIER: What is your background on the water?

HARTELL: At age 16, I was a deckhand on board a Goodrich Line passenger boat running between Chicago and Benton Harbor, Michigan. I also worked for one year on the Mississippi River as a deckhand.

COURIER: Your wife Kay has been a beautician?

HARTZELL: Yes, she operated a shop first in Kalamazoo and later for many years on the island. This is the first summer vacation she's had in 18 years.

COURIER: What is the present condition of the yacht basin?

HARTZELL: The new sidewalks are fine. They were raised this year and there are no high water problems. However the docks are rotting out, electricity is out in four locations and there aren't any bumpers on the dock to protect the boats.

COURIER: As dockmaster, what problems do you encounter?

HARTZELL: I've got too many boats and not enough slips. I've turned away five times as many boats as I've got docks. In two days, I've had to turn away 150 people. With only 30 slips, Charlevoix's been full to overflowing the past two weeks.

Another major problem is vandalism and excessive public use of the boater's restroom and shower facilities, since the dockmaster has gone oil duty. Facilities have been broken into three times this summer with vandalism occurring each time. Many people from off the street are using the showers which are for boaters' use and not for public use. The breaking and interings has forced the city to replace all locks along with 50 sets of keys, three times this summer alone.

COURIER: What solutions do you see?

HARTZELL: Night patrol is the only solution; a walking cop on patrol after hours.

COURIER: Boater's fees are used to maintain and improve the yachting facilities. What are the rates per day between June 1 and Labor Day?

HARTZELL: Boats 20 feet and under: 2.50; 21 feet through 30 feet: 3.50; 31 feet through 40 feet: 5.50; 41 feet through 50 feet: 7.00; 51 feet through 60 feet: 9.00; 61 feet through 70 feet: 12.00; over 70 feet: 15.00 per day.

During the off-season, between May 1 and June 1, and also between Labor Day and September 30, all rates per day are reduced to half price of the above in-season rates.

COURIER: All in all, what are your feelings toward Beaver Island and Charlevoix?

MR. AND MRS. HARTZELL: We love Beaver Island and we miss it. We also love Charlevoix and have a lot of friends here.

Driver's Education Off and Rolling

By PEG OHLE

Ever since 1947 Charlevoix High School has been teaching young people how to drive an automobile. It was that year that Max Novak, just returned from war service, started the program.

In those days Driver's Education was taught during the regular school day instead of during the summer as it is now and the classes were smaller.

This summer, five instructors are taking approximately 175 students through 30 hours of classroom work and six hours of behind-the-wheel driving to prepare them for the State Driver License. They are using five specially equipped automobiles furnished the high school by three local auto dealers, Charlevoix Oil Company, Erber Auto and Kusina Motors.

Driver's Education is required by the State for anyone under the age of 18 applying for a Driver License. In this summer's classes there are even some high school drop-outs who find that the "outside world" is not much if they can't get a Driver License.

The classroom portion of Driver's Education is based on a 300 page textbook which covers everything from how an engine works to techniques of driving. Jerry Puhl, one of the instructors, comments on how he enjoys teaching the class. "For the first time a lot of the kids really want something and are willing to study for it. They put forth real effort to accomplish something."

Puhl says that behind-the-wheel teaching can be a "little scarey" at times but he feels secure with his own brake. Students are taken out under all weather conditions, including fog and heavy rain, because they must know how to drive under all conditions. All Driver's Education teachers must be certified. About 14 hours of credit are required to qualify for a certificate.

Puhl has his own set routes on which he takes his students in his training car. He starts out in the high school parking lot to be sure they know how to turn the wheel, apply the brake, make turn signals and other elementary movements. Then he takes them out into the side streets around the school.

Another lesson is a trip along Marion Center Road to Ellsworth. Another is on gravel roads. Then comes a trip to Norwood on the highway. After that East Jordan is the destination.

Still another lesson takes the students to Petoskey. City driving comes next, with lessons on downhill and uphill parking and turnabouts, angle parking, parallel parking and one-way streets. For the last lesson students select their own route and are tested in their driving skills. In all, students have 12 half-hour lessons behind the wheel.

While most other drivers are sympathetic toward student drivers, some could have more patience, Puhl says. "A teacher can only tell a student what to do and hopes he does it. We travel at the speed limit but a lot of people want to pass us."

Herman Heuvelhorst, who operated the Driver License Bureau in Charlevoix for the Secretary of State's Office, is a firm believer in Driver's Education. "Anyone can pass a Driver License Test," he says, but they need experience in driving. The written test is only a small part. They must get behind the wheel and use good judgment."

In connection with behind-the-wheel training, Puhl believes that in most cases young people who have learned to drive a motor boat, snowmobile or motor bike learn to drive an automobile more easily.

The cost of Driver's Education is borne by the State and the school district. Last year the school district was re-imbursed for 46 percent of the cost.

CHARLEVOIX STUDENTS have been fortunate to be able to have new cars donated by local car dealers for driver's training. On the driver's side is student Gary Stebe with instructor Ray Carr in the background.

Sunday Morning

Tucked away in the sleepy Jordan River Valley sits one of the loveliest places of worship in Northern Michigan, St. John Nepomucene Catholic Church.

This 100-year-old fieldstone structure has seen additions and improvements over the years, but its country charm remains. The congregation of about 80 is presided over by Father David Genuend of the diocese of Gaylord. This week the Diocese is celebrating its fourth anniversary, which Father Genuend observed in his sermon on "The Future of the Church."

Lodge Defeats Parsel Oldsmobile

By FRAN MARTIN

Round Lake Lodge, managed by Gerry Burke, captured the 1975 Little League title in a tight 10-9 victory over the defending champion, Parsel Olds in a highly contested game Friday night.

The victory came following a best two-out-of-three series that saw Parsel's winning 6-1 in the opening game and the Lodge coming back to even the series with a 4-1 win.

The Lodge victory on Friday broke a long series of titles by Parsel's who have been the championship since Little League first came to Charlevoix.

In Friday's game, Round Lake Lodge had to come from behind to win. The Lodge was trailing 5-0 at the end of 2½ inning before collecting five runs in the bottom of the third to tie the score.

Parsel's then came back in the top of the fifth inning to pick up four runs for a 9-5 lead.

Gary Shores and Paul Hoffman got on base with a walk and an error before Jon Supernaw scored Shores on a single in the fifth inning. Hoffman then came home on a wild pitch. The next player struck out before Jeff Burke got on after being hit by a pitched ball. The next player was picked off on a play from pitcher to first for the second out.

The next player up, Mike Loper, then hit a double to left field to bring Nunemaker home with the winning run. Allen Burke allowed five hits as the winning pitcher and Jeff Drury six as the losing pitcher.

Members of the winning team are Jeff Burke, Allen Burke, Pat Kerr, Todd Anderson, Nunemaker, Jeff Novotny, Shores, Tim Anderson, Loper, Hoffman and Supernaw. Mike Bartz, a regular member, was not present for the final game.

In the second game of the series, which the Lodge won by a 4-1 score, Loper hit a home run in the bottom of the fifth to score Nunemaker who had gotten on with a single.

The Lodge had gone ahead early in the game on singles by Novotny, Nunemaker and Hoffman. Parsel's trailed 2-0 until the fourth inning when Gary Drury got on with a triple and then scored on a single by Kevin Morrison. Loper was the winning pitcher, allowing six hits. Drury allowed two.

In the opening game of the series which Parsel's won 6-1, Mark Morgan allowed four hits; Novotny seven for the Lodge.

Jeff Drury had four for four, two doubles and two singles, for the victors. Allen Burke had four singles for the Lodge.

It is distressing to see so many people mutilate the easiest shot in tennis-the serve. Why do these people (my wife included) seem obsessed in making the serve harder than it actually is?

The serve is the only shot in tennis where the player has total control over his destiny. No opponent is forcing him to hurry or throwing his rhythm off. The opponent has to wait for the serve. There is absolutely nothing else he can do.

Therefore, I can never understand why so many people rush their serve, especially after missing their first one. One should take his time, make a good toss, and concentrate on hitting a solid, decisive serve. It really is not very hard.

As in all shots in tennis, there is no one absolute way for an individual to serve. Some general guidelines and methods can be quite helpful, however.

Most important is that the individual actually see the racquet make contact with the ball at the peak of the toss. It is natural to pull the head down at the last instant, thus making it impossible to hit a consistent serve. Watching the ball hit the racquet not only keeps the body reaching up into the ball but it also might allow the player to compensate for a slightly errant toss.

The toss should generally go straight above the head, but the exact location depends on the individual and his performence of arm follow through. It is crucial not to let the toss drop too low because it will cramp the natural follow through.

Before beginning to serve, get comfortable on the service line. Too many people assume weird positions before ever staring to serve. Assume a position on the line which allows for comfortable weight distribution.

Using the backhand (or Continental grip), take your racquet behind your head as the ball is tossed into the air. This is the hardest part of the serve. For many, taking the racquet directly behind the head is an awkward movement. With praetice it becomes easier. Do not try to force the racquet any further than is necessary. The purpose of the backswing is solely to prepare for the follow through in a decisive, smooth manner.

As you swing up into the ball, make sure that you have your balance. Do not be falling forward until after you have made contact with the ball.

There are three real keys to hitting your serve effectively. The first is obviously watching the ball. The second is making sure that the racquet head (the strings of the racquet) are going directly through the ball.

This point is not as obvious as it seems. Many players tend to push the ball into the court. The racquet head stays flat and open longer. Therefore, the ball tends to sad off it. If the player hits through the ball, he will have much greater control and power.

The final key to hitting a good serve is the toss. Learning to toss the ball in the same place every time is quite a chore for some. Until this is learned, it is impossible to serve with any consistency.

If you hate problems with your toss try holding onto the ball until your arm is well above your shoulder. Your arm then becomes a guide for the flight of the ball. Also, the ball is not in the air nearly as long.

The serve is easy. Be patient, stay relaxed, and concentrate on the ball. There is really nothing to it.

Sooner or later every biker gets caught in the rain. Rainriding is one of the most dangerous cycling experiences for even the prepared and seasoned rider.

In the rain you lose vision and friction, putting yourself in a poor condition to react properly to normal hazards let alone the unexpected.

There is little room for debate about what's right or wrong for riding under these circumstances. So here's the Do's and Don'ts that will help you get through.

DON'T

-Ride without eye protection.

-Ride ride on the grease strip in the center of the lane.

-Ride on badly worn tires.

DO

-De-fog all vision surfaces.

-Cut your speed.

-Turn on your lights. High beam preferred.

-Allow greater distance for stopping.

-Friction tape your controls.

Rainriding is a challenge, not to be taken lightly. It can be done in relative safety if properly prepared. But, if you lose your vision or the feel of the bike, get off the road and wait it out. No destination or schedule is more important than your skin.

Police and Fire Beat

The Charlevoix county jail set a record of sorts Friday when 19 prisoners were behind bars, the largest number at any time since it was opened in June, 1971, Sheriff Philo E. Sumner reported.

Until now 15 was the highest number at any time, he added.

Until recent months, there were usually five or less....usually one or two and then only for a short time, Sumner continued.

The census at the jail was so small late in 1974 that the County Board of Commissioners chose to have meals at the institution catered rather than maintain a full kitchen facility.

The breaking and entering of the Topside Lounge at 305 Bridge st. and the taking of more than $500 from the cash register is still under investigation according to Charlevoix Police officials.

The breaking and entering was reported at 7:55 a.m. July 7 by maintenance personnel who had entered the building to clean it. The cash register was found open and the cash, much of it from the July Fourth weekend, missing.

Entry was gained through the basement.

+++

Larceny of a camera valued at $300 by its owner, Robert L. Hamilton of Ann Arbor, was reported to the City Police last week. It was taken from the shower room at the Chamber of Commerce building.

+++

Steve Wilson of 502 E. Dixon ave. reported the theft of a CB radio valued at $200 from his Jeep which was parked in the Mason st. parking lot.

+++

Gordon Cotton of 212½ Antrim st. reported to the police that tires on four bicycles in his yard has been slashed.

+++

A bicycle taken from the J.H. 'Bob' Clock yard on Dixon ave. was recovered when he went to the Police station to report it missing and was told by the Chief of Police, Jack Mol, that it was parked in the Mol yard waiting for its owner to claim it.

+++

Two juveniles apprehended by the City Police have solved several recent breaking and enterings.

The pair, both 16, were taken into juvenile court. A third minor is being questioned.

The breaking and entering of the K-5 school on Division ave. remains unsolved. The building was broken into twice by breaking glass in doors leading to corridors at the back of the building. The first time, nothing was taken or disturbed. However, the second time paint was sprayed on the floor, walls and on furniture in the art room. This is under investigation by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

The two juveniles now in custody have admitted entering the High School, Depot Beach concession stand, Bethany Lutheran church and the Allen Steinert summer home on Michigan ave.

Beavers Get Grant

The Beaver Island Historical Society has been the recipient of a $5,000 grant toward the island's Bicentennial heritage project Michele Janisse, Charlevoix County Bicentennial coordinator, has announced.

The funds are earmarked for historical pamphlets and printing for the Bicentennial plans that have been approved.

This is only a small part of the $42,000 budget for the island's Bicentennial project which has been endorsed by the State Bicentennial committee and referred to the Historical Department for further consideration.

The island has proposed a park on which will be placed a log cabin and other historical items that tell the island's history and heritage.

Beaver Island is the second unit in the county to receive funds for its project. The first was Chandler township which was awarded $900, Ms. Janisse said.

The society now has plans to solicit funds for a building and also have an architect available, but must first know what property is available to them. The matter was referred to Committee as a Whole meeting, July 7, 1975, to evaluate.

Mr. Walter Heffman entered his complaint regarding access and egress to his property by the alley which runs along the east side of his home at 103 Park Avenue. Council will look at it, and let him know.

Mr. Schleman entered his complaint about speeding on Belvedere Avenue and asked the City to consider doing something to slow down the cars and motorcycles. He also suggested the City giving the Belvedere Club permission to put bumpers at intervals to slow traffic. The Mayor said he would check it and let him know.

Hugh Mayne asked if the Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion were still getting free lights from the City and felt this was an expense that should be conserved. The Mayor asked Mr. Wexstaff to check it out.

Mrs. Bogart inquired if the Ordinance No. 170 governing sale of ice cream from a vehicle on the street could be amended. She is desirous of operating a "Good Humor" wagon in Charlevoix this summer. Mayor Hansen put the matter into Committee as a Whole meeting July 7, 1975.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the City of Charlevoix enter into a ninety-nine (99) year lease with the LeHavre Condominium Association, subject to refining by City Attorney, as outlined in a lease for $49,500, payable in annual installments in advance in the amount of $500 upon the 30th day of June 1975 and each and every year thereafter for the term of the lease. The Mayor and Clerk are hereby authorized to sign said lease in behalf of the City of Charlevoix.

The Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Timms, Plumm, and McRae. Nays: Aldermen Whitley and Wood. Absent: Alderman Selph.

Alderman McRae offered the following Resolution and moved its adoption, supported by Alderman Timms.

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, the City of Charlevoix Airport Operator's Contract with McPhillips Flying Service reads Joseph A. McPhillips (typed in error or misunderstanding) and

WHEREAS, it is in the best interest of the City of Charlevoix that the contract be corrected to rend McPhillips Flying Service, Inc.

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the contract writing be changed to correct the name.

The Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Whitley, Timms, Plumm, McRae, and Wood. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Selph.

A request for split of Theodore Browe property on U.S. 31 South--parcel 2-558-4 was dismissed since it is a meets & bounds description.

Alderman Wood asked Mr. Wexstaff if the sign just erected by LaCroft Condominiums is in keeping with the sign ordinance and if they have a permit.

Alderman Timms questioned the bill from Ikens for curb replacement. He was informed that an error was made in charging the owner for any portion of it since the City must pay 100 percent of cost for a replacement of curb.

Artists at Work

Area Residents See Artists in Action

In this beautiful setting of trees and lake, artists and dancers have been working all summer, some to perfect their skills and others just for the fun of doing what they like to do.

It is here that well-known local artist Russell Bolt has been teaching young and old how to translate with paint and brush the scenes around them. It is here that Bolt's daughter, Laurie, has been sharing her knowledge of silk screening and print making. And it is here that Chicago dancer Jan Bartoszek has been taking her students through the movements of modern dance and ballet.

Last week the Courier went to Elm Point to see what was going on.

The classes are small so much personal attention is given to individual efforts. One may be as elaborate as a simple as mood dictates – a silk screen replete with flowers and figures or one with letters spelling out "Sale". A little girl's line drawing showing how the dock and beach look to her, rather stark but serene. Another little girl's enthusiastic expression of movement on the dance floor.

Portside Art Center classes will end August 1 but the program will be offered again next year. Summer visitors and year-round residents should take advantage of these cultural offerings.

Charlevoix Shop Offers New Historical Plate

What happens if you're a former city councilwoman and still looking for something to do for the community?

If you're Jeannine Wallace, owner of Shop of the Gulls, you think of u bicentennial gift plate that will be around years after the nation's birthday celebration.

For one thing, there will be only a hundred made with the first one being given to the Charlevoix Library.

"When they're gone, they're gone and that's what will make them valuable," she said.

Each year, Mrs. Wallace said she will have a die made of some historic building in Charlevoix. Once 100 plates are made from that die, the cast will be broken.

This year, the plates have an engraving of the old Charlevoix Depot on them.

Mrs. Wallace said she was able to have the mold made after Terry Salmonson of Aartvark Studios provided her with a photograph of the depot. From the photo, a line sketch drawing was made for the die.

The pewter-like plate is made of 10 non-toxic alloys that could be placed in an oven if used in cooking. Each plate is 11" in diameter and made of Armetale.

Besides the plate, Mrs. Wallace says she is enclosing a brief history phamplet of the building.

In the case of the Charlevoix Depot, which was completed by the Chicago and West Michigan Railroad Company in 1892, Mrs. Wallace learned about its history from old Charlevoix Sentinel reports later reprinted in the Charlevoix Courier.

At 2:50 p.m. the C. and W.M. Engine No. 161 pulled in 3 coaches and a baggage ear. There was no demonstration, but had it not been the Sabbath the crowd would have made itself heard at Boyne City. A crowd of Charlevoix people boarded the train for the run to Petoskey which was made in 21 minutes taking the 10:30 train back in the evening. There was music in the brakesman's voice as he shouted "Charlevoix" to the passengers returning to their homes happy in the thought that the days of compulsory staging and steamboating were the things of the past.

Area Hospital Guild Helps Community

By Peg Ohle

"To add to the patients' comfort by providing extra kindnesses and considerations additional to the excellent facilities given by the hospital."

This is the stated purpose of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild, and a dedicated group of women is working to achieve this purpose.

This year's membership numbers 332, including 32 life members. Regular memberships are $1.00 a year and life memberships $50. When asked why regular memberships are so low, Mrs. E. Darrell Dinwiddie, membership chairman, said "We need volunteers and interest more than we do membership money."

And they do need volunteers to help with one or several of their projects. Guild volunteers operate "The Showcase!", a gift shop for all ages, which is open daily from 1:30 to 4:00 and 7:00 to 8:00. They help with trays during the noon hour and assist with feeding patients, delivering mail, filling water jugs and other routing jobs.

Guild volunteers make puppets and animal pillows which are given to all young patients. They sew and knit layettes for needy mothers. They make tray favors for the holidays and decorate the hospital at Christmastime. They sponsor an Expectant Parents' class and hold "coffees" for wives of new doctors. This year they purchased a hand-make quilt which they are raffling off to help pay for a fetal monitor.

Purchase Equipment

Since last October the Hospital Guild has purchased a stretcher for the Emergency Room, a suction stomach pump, TV sets for rental, stackable chairs for meetings and new books and magazine and newspaper subscriptions for the leading cart.

They have also provided four nursing scholarships and donated $2,000 toward purchase of the fetal monitor.

Money to carry on these many projects has come from the October Thrift Sale, "Showcase" sales, gifts and memorials, TV rentals, and dues.

It takes a lot of woman-power to accomplish all these things and anyone wanting to help will be warmly welcomed.

Gifts and donations may be sent to the treasurer, Mrs. Eleanore Schultz, 213 Belvedere Avenue, and Guild membership dues, regular or life, may be sent to Mrs. E. Darrell Dinwiddie, 807 East Dixon Street.

In addition, other officers of the guild will be happy to answer questions and welcome volunteers. They are Mrs. Robert Neff, 507 East Dixon Street, president; Mrs. Albert Seger, 200 East Hurlbut Street, secretary; and Mrs. Virginia Rundahl, social seeretary.

Carey Named Venetian Queen

By Fran Martin

Marge Carey, 18, who has brown hair and hazel eyes, was named 1975 Venetian Queen at the annual Pageant which launched the Venetian Festival here Friday.

Queen Marge was selected from among seven candidates to sueeeed Tori Alger, 1974 Venetian Queen and a member of the National Cherry Queen Court.

This marks the second time in the history of the Venetian Festival that a Marge Carey has reigned as Venetian Queen. The first Queen Marge, now Mrs. E. E. Coleman and aunt of the present queen, reigned over the festival 45 years ago when the event was in its infancy.

Named to the court of the Venetian Queen was Cindy Kiteley, runner-up; Rita Moses, second runner-up; Joni Dove, Miss Congeniality and Bonnie Hilton, Talent winner; Other candidates were Coleen Russell and Denise Wasoski. All seven girls rode on the city's Venetian Float in the Street Parade on Saturday.

Queen Marge, a 1975 graduate of the Charlevoix high school, is the daughter of Mr and Mrs. Donald Carey. She plans to attend Western Michigan University this fall. She presented a gymnastic act as her talent.

Runner-up

Cindy Kiteley, 18, first runner-up, is also a recent graduate of the Charlevoix high school and the daughter of the Charles Kiteleys.

Rita Moses, 21, a graduate of the local high school and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moses, is an inhalation therapist at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Joni Dove, 18 named Miss Congeniality by the candidates themselves, is also a graduate of the Charlevoix high school, attended Ferris State College and plans to enter the field of Interior Decorating. She is the daughter nf Mrs. William Stokes.

Bonnie Hilton won the Talent Division with the humorous monologue "Edith Ann in the Sand Box" written by Lyle Tomlin She also is a recent high school graduate and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hilton.

Pie in the Sky

GLADWIN — Gladwin's county sheriff may really think there is a pie in the sky after what happened last week.

Two women gave him a packet containing $200,000 worth of non-negotiable checks that apparently fell out of the sky from a plane enroute from the Charlevoix County State Bank to the National Bank of Detroit.

The packet was found last Thursday by two women picking blueberries in the down-state county.

Gordon Wellman, president of the local bank, said that the checks had been picked up and driven to Gaylord by a courier corporation. From there they were to be put on a plane and flown to Detroit.

The matter is being investigated by the State Police, Gladwin County Sheriff's Department and the courier An early explanation by the courier was that the packet may have fallen out of the plane

Neighborhood Complains About Legion Hall Parties

By PEG OHLE

Persons living near the American Legion Hall on Garfield Street have apparently declared war on the veterans of other wars.

In a letter addressed to George Plumm, Commander of the Leslie T. Shapton Post which operates the hall, several residents of the nearby area have complained bitterly about the noise, litter and general nuisance caused by people who rent the hall for parties.

The letter, which appears in its entirety elsewhere in the Courier, asks the question, "Where do your rights end and ours begin? Do we as citizens and taxpayers of Charlevoix have the same rights of peace and quiet as the other citizens of, say, Michigan Avenue?"

The letter also cites specifically the "goings on" at a recent wedding reception which did not end until after 2 a.m. following hours of blaring music, cursing and screaming and an ambulance visit to carry away a drunken celebrant.

Open Problem

The problem is especially bad during the summer time when the windows of the hall are open as well as those of the neighbors, according to Henry Supernaw who lives across the street.

"There is no possible way they can keep the place closed up," he says, "and neither can we. I work all day and like to sleep at night. There is also unnecessary carryings-on outdoors, during all hours."

Mrs. Belle Bennett, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Jock Giggs on Garfield Street, says about the last party, "Most of them seemed to be outside. The noise was loud and I was up and down all night. And I never saw so much litter. It looked like it snowed."

Another neighbor, Sandy Boss, told the Courier, "It doesn't seem to be necessary—all the noise. When the party goes on a long time people get stoned drunk and the music reverberates throughout the neighborhood. In the summer we have to keep our doors and windows open. It isn't easy."

Garfield Street resident Charles Taylor says, "The situation has gotten out of hand. I don't feel there is a need for loudly amplified music. It was my understanding they were renting the hall to pay for remodeling. That appears to be completed. If the inside of the building looks like the outside after a party, it must be bad. They do have a lot of receptions that people in the area don't even know are going on, but there are a lot of humdingers."

Foul Language

"The amount of foul language is terrible. We have small children and so do others. I know they heard a lot of it the other night."

When asked about the complaints, Plumm told the Courier, "We know we have a problem, there is no doubt about it. We will probably have to screen people who rent the hall more carefully. It is up to the (American Legion) board to take the matter under advisement. We will have a meeting the first Tuesday in August. We are renting the hall to help pay off the mortgage but we will have to do something."

HOTLINE
Dial 547-6559

Hotline is the place that you think [illegible] of opinion on anything [illegible] anytime [illegible] to suggest to give your [illegible] opinions with [illegible]

Supports Merta

I know that this has nothing to do with the question this week on Hotline, but I read the article in the paper about Jackie Merta being "acting" director of the Chamber of Commerce, while they continue to look for someone to replace Vince Olach.

In my opinion, Jackie knows just about all there is to know about the Chamber and why not offer her the job of director, if she'd want it? Anyone who has worked with, or knows Jackie, will agree she is a very capable person. I wonder how many people in Charlevoix have the same opinion?

Appreciates Courier

I wish to express on Hotline how much better the Charlevoix Courier has been the last few months.

After being a summer resident for many years and not able to do so anymore, it is such a pleasure to read about the affairs taking place. The improvements and especially the harbor news and all the pictures.

Looking forward to the Venetian Festival news and pictures.

Respectfully,
Mrs. W. I. Jenkine, Bedford, In.

New Sheriff

After speaking with undersheriff McCallum and several other men on the police force I think that it is time for a change in our sheriff, I believe that with due respect to Sheriff Sumner and the fine job he has done in the past, he is getting too old and is not keeping up with the time and change of our society today and I really feel that maybe more comments on Sheriff Sumner would look real good and be considered by the people of Charlevoix County. I think it is time for a switch and possibly this might help our police force now and our county officials as they go about their jobs. I think we've got a Jesse James type sheriff.

Marked Crosswalks

Why doesn't Charlevoix have the crosswalks marked so that cars will stop for pedestrians that are trying to cross? There are few crosswalks that are safe to cross at any rate in this city traffic that is worse than ever.

Park Yachts

Obviously, a lot of work and publicity went into the 1975 Venetian Festival. It's too bad the big event of the day could only be seen by the dozen yachts blocking the view of the other thousands that came to town and spent considerably more than the slip rental fee. The predicted day of battle between the have's and have-nots nearly arrived in Charlevoix on July 26th.

Fantastic Fireworks

I'd like to thank the Venetian Committee for selecting a radio announcer to describe the boat parade because we were unable to see the decorated yachts due to the undecorated yachts docked at the city docks. Fireworks were fantastic. Thank you.

Clear Traffic

If the city can clear traffic for the afternoon parade why couldn't the harbor patrol clear the dock for the boat parade? Thank you.

Watched in Park

I want to thank whoever got the shuffle board lights turned off last night. We couldn't see the boat parade but it was more enjoyable in the dark.

Hotline Question

Do you feel the present city administration of Charlevoix is doing an adequate job? Call the Hotline (547-6559) with your comments.

Township Clears Smoke from City

City officials were put on notice that they can't burn trash on property located adjacent to the Belvedere Golf Course in Charlevoix Township.

Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud says the township gave notice to the city after township firemen fought a blaze at dump location several weeks ago.

"There's no problem," Stroud contends.

"We just want them to come to the township and work out an agreement on how to control the property."

City officials appeared miffed Monday when they discussed the township's notice.

They contend that 5-acre city site has only been used for brush and don't know how the fire started. Stroud says there's a junked car at the site.

"For the moment we'll just cool it," Acting City Administrator Robert Wes staff said about the situation.

The two governmental units have been at odds since Charlevoix Township started its own fire department a year ago and no longer requires city service

GRETCHEN FURSETH shows youngsters how to swim.

Hey Teacher!--See I Can Swim

She battled chilly winds, rough waters and yancy six-year-olds and still came through in flying colors.

And despite all the adversities, the East Lansing senior high school student ilkes to teach kids how to swim.

Gretchen is one of five Charlevoix swimming instructors who are never sure what will happen from one day to the next. Last week was no exception.

Dressed in white shorts and a red nylon parka, the suntanned girl sat on the grass near Depot Beach last week with her class of six-year-olds.

The nine small younsters were huddled together in a circle, os the skies began to threaten rain and winds blew.

"Is Kendall here?" asked Gretchen as she read from the clipboard resting on her legs

"Chris is here," piped up one smoll younster.

"Yes, he is," said another.

"Where?"

"There he is."

"Jeff's not here."

Finally, the teacher raised her hand for silence and said Jeff was there. Attendance taking was over and the class was off and running.

"Did you guys practice" asked Gretchen as she watched her students pull off their sweatshirts.

No one said a word.

"How would you like to learn how to dive?" the teacher continued to inquire.

"I know how to dive," replied one brave six-year-old girl as she shivered in her sweatshirt.

The rest of the class remained silent.

"Do you want to go in the water today?" Gretchen continued to ask. The swimming instructor looked up and across the beach toward what appeared to be cold water

"Would you mind if your teacher didn't go in?"

Gretchen told her class that they should at least go in and try some floats, especially the jelly fish float.

"Jelly fish float not flop," Gretchen retorted.

After some 10 minutes of prodding and coaxing, the Charlevoix swimming instructor was able to get her entire class into the water for a few splashy seconds.

In less than five minutes, the nine small kids were out and running for their towels.

"Well, maybe we should talk about safety for a while," the instructor said as she sighed and walked toward the group of shivering youngsters.

In no time, it was back to the group, all talking at the same time and the teacher trying to get a few words in about how to call the operator.

"Maybe we should play couple of games before you go home," she said after a few minutes. The teacher lined the kids up for relays and finally gave up after they all ran at the same time instead of waiting for some to return.

"Hey, you guys.

"Why don't you run around that tree down there and we'll call it a day."

As the kids came back and said good-bye, Gretchen sat there and watched her next morning class file in.

"They've always been good," she said.

They co-operate all the time

Then Gretchen stood silent and paused over her last words

Charlevoix Band Gets Ready for Camp

Charlevoix band members will be filling the early morning air with music beginning Monday.

The Band Boosters of Charlevoix and Peshtigo, Wis., in cooperation with the Charlevoix High School will host the fifth unnual Marching Band Camp.

The camp will open at the Charlevoix High School at 7:30 a.m. Monday and conclude at 7:30 p.m. Friday with a performance by the two bands at Kipke Field.

Tim Lautzenheiser of the University of Missouri will be returning with his staff of three to conduct the camp with Stutzman and Bruce Kroken, directors of the participating bands, assisting.

Norman Reubleing will be in charge of the percussion section; Ted Peiochinski, the woodwind section; Kroken the upper brass and Stutzman the lower brass during the camp. An Indiana State Twirling champion will also be here to work with the marching group.

The 135 piece marching band of Charlevoix and the 77 member marching group of Peshtigo, Wis., directed by Kroken, a former Charlevoixun, will be preparing for a combined marching performance at the Green Bay Packer-Chicago Bear football game in Green Bay Nov. 30 as well as training for solo performances in their respective communities, Stutzman said.

The camp is a moring-til-night affair with rehearsals beginning at 7:30 a.m. followed by lunch at the high school cafeteria at noon; an afternoon rehearsal from 1:00 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., with a dinner break and the evening rehearsal scheduled to begin at 6:30 p.m. daily.

Peshtigo band students will be staying in the homes of Charlevoix band students during the visit to Charlevoix. They are scheduled to arrive Sunday afternoon and return home on Saturday

David Juilleret, president of the Charlevoix Band Boosters, said that volunteers will be in charge of meals at the cafeteria during the camp.

Lake Property Owners Announce Meeting

Persons representing four departments of County government will appear as a panel to answer questions from members of the Lake Charlevoix Property Owners Association at their annual meeting.

The meeting is scheduled for Saturday, August 2, at 2 p.m. in Whiting Park.

Representatives on the panel will come from the District Health Department, the Tax Equalization Department, the Planning Department and the County Board of Commissioners. It is expected that the panel will be asked many questions regarding such subjects of interest as sewage lines, taxes, and special assessments.

The Association represents all property owners in the Lake Charlevoix area. It is concerned with such matters as air and water pollution, zoning, sewage and water facilities, police and fire protection and, tax assessments. Those wishing further information about the Association may call Dave Fowler at 347-4173 or 547-9868

Registration Procedures Change

For many years young men were required to register for the draft within a few days of their 18th birth date.

The registration procedures, however, were changed on April 1, 1975 according to Arthur A. Holmes, State Director of Selective Service, and since that date no one can be registered during the remainder of the year, 1975

Although public announcements were made about this change in April, Selective Service officers are still getting calls from 18 year olds asking if they still have to register.

Instead of registering within a few days of their 18th birth date, it is planned that they will register during a single annual registration period of a few days in early 1976. Any such new registration procedure would be announced by a Presidential proclamation at that time

Charlevoix Fruit Crops Survive Foul Northern Area Weather

By PEG OHLE

The weather man has been good to cherry growers in Charlevoix, Antrim and Emmet counties.

A spot check of local growers last week indicates that the hail and heavy rains which caused serious damage to cherry crops farther south did not fall on local orchards.

Mrs. Charles Cooper of East Jordan says their crop is "beautiful – no damage from hail or rain."

Wilbur Brown of Petoskey reports that last Thursday night's winds blew quite a few of his cherries to the ground but he still has a lot because the crop on the trees was "terrific."

Rosenthal's Orchards of Charlevoix also has a good crop. "Very, very good," says Mrs. Rosenthal, "no hail or heavy rains."

Friske's Orchards of Ellsworth has "a fine crop" but with a little bruising from last week's winds.

Although this part of Michigan produces many tons of cherries, both sweet and sour, each year, it is not the principal cherry producing area of the state.

The Michigan Department of Agriculture lists Grand Traverse, Leelanau, Manistee, Mason, Oceana and Van Buren counties as major producers. However, some parts of these counties will have smaller crops this year because of the summer hail and rain storms.

Canners Flip Over Lid Shortages

By PEG OHLE

The number one question being asked by a lot of housewives right now is, "What am I going to do if I can't get any canning jar lids?"

And it is a serious question. With the bulk of garden vegetables and fruits about to mature, the possibility that much of the crop will go to waste because of a shortage of canning equipment is hard to take.

The high cost of food has turned millions of people into backyard gardeners, but all the digging, planting, fertilizing and watering will come to nothing unless the crops can be preserved.

No one seems to know what is causing the shortage of canning jar lids, either. Manufacturers say they are "working at full speed" to turn them out but Raymond M. Dutmers, president of Spartan Stores, Inc., recently said his firm has received only slightly more lids than they did lost year, when there was a shortage of tin plate.

Black Market

There are stories about a "black market" in lids, and one person is reported to have seen them being sold from a truck along a highway.

LeRoy Buchanan, manager of the local Oleson Food Store, says it is the grocer who is getting the hlame even though he can't do anything about it. "I have gotten eight cases of lids in the last 14 weeks," he says, "and I have put them on the shelves for anyone to buy."

Oleson's is not only without jar lids but last week the only jars they had were pint size.

Julia Beard, County Home Extension Agent, says she has received many requests about how to preserve food other than canning. The oldest method, of course, is drying. Corn, peas and beans dry especially well. The trouble in this part of the country, according to Mrs. Beard, is that there is not enough hot sunshine for drying. Using gas or electricity for the purpose can become an expensive proposition. However, Mrs. Beard can furnish "how to" information.

Frozen Foods

Many fruits and vegetables can be easily frozen, but freezer space is not like basement or cupboard space where canned goods may be stored. Operating a freezer in these days of high electric power costs can add considerably to the cost of home grown foods.

Fruits which freeze best are berries, cherries, peaches and plums. Vegetables which do not have a high water content may also be frozen. These include green beans, wax beans, lima beans, beets, broccoli, brussel sprouts, carrots, cauliflower, sweet corn, peas, peppers, spinach and squash.

The problem vegetable is the tomato, and most gardens are full of them. Tomatoes have too high a water content for freezing alone and the only way they can be handled is to mix them with other ingredients.

Mrs. Beard suggests that tomatoes be made into soup, spaghetti sauce, chili or casserole dishes, and frozen. Of course these dishes take up a lot of space.

Appealing Your Taxes Might Save You Cash

Taxpayers in Charlevoix County may soon have an opportunity to appeal their property taxes under a bill awaiting signature by Governor William G. Milliken.

The bill would allow taxpayers whose property assessment is raised because of a state equalization factor to appeal directly to the State Tax Tribunal without first having to appear before the Board of Review. It applies directly to 23 counties for which the State Tax Commission ordered higher valuation than previously set. Charlevoix was one of these counties.

According to the bill, eligible taxpayers could begin an appeal directly to the Tax Tribunal any time before August 18.

Representative Dan Stevens of Atlanta, sponsor of the bill, commented recently: "As the present law is written, taxpayers have no avenue of appeal after an equalization factor has been applied to their property taxes. The tax Tribunal Act of 1973 did away with the Circuit Court as a starting point for an appeal. It also required that complaints start at the Board of Review.

"This amounts to an unconstitutional denial of rights because it is impossible to comply with the law. The Board of Review adjourns each year before the State Tax Commission is required to issue its equalization factor. So, if the factor raises your taxes above the 50 per cent constitutional maximum, you have no avenue of appeal."

Charlevoix County Equalization Director Joan Blanchard is happy about the bill.

"Taxpayers don't know at Board of Review time in March what the County or State will do about equalization factors. Now they may have a chance to appeal at a later date."

Milliken Fights Feds To Save Local Rails

Gov. Milliken

Governor William Milliken has most appropriately accused the United States Railway Association (USRA) for unjustifiably sacrificing the best interests of Michigan and other states caught in the federal rail reorganization process.

Just last week the chairman of the USRA defended the proposed abandonment of more than 5,700 miles of branch lines along railroads in the northeast and midwest.

The USRA plan calls for abandoning 1,206 miles of bankrupt Penn Central and Ann Arbor Rail lines in Michigan.

Testifying before a Senate Commerce subcommittee, Arthur D. Lewis said a re-evaluation of the proposed abandonments based on a 1975 traffic and cost data would probably produce more lines that should be eliminated.

However, Milliken says that the association continues to insist on immediate rail abandonment although such action "will spell economic disaster for Michigan."

A preliminary copy of the USRA final system plan has just been made available for review by state officials.

Milliken said he will urge Congress to reject the so-called ConRail system for reorganizing bankrupt or financially-troubled railroads unless the USRA plan contains a moratorium against abandonment, re-routing, or other change that will result in significant loss of service to freight rail users.

Joining in Milliken's position has been Sen. Clifford P. Chase, R-N.J., who has authored legislation that would freeze all abandonments for two years until the lines are individually reassessed.

He takes strong exception to the USRA's position that more lines will be created.

"Maybe there are some branch lines that ought to be abandoned," the Senator told a Congressional subcommittee recently, "but they should not be until we are very sure the track and service aren't needed now or in the future."

Chase points out that nearly every branch line abandonment proposed by the USRA was challenged during public hearings on the Railroad Reorganization Plan.

Lewis contends that 98 percent of the traffic presently carried by the bankrupt railroads undergoing reorganization is on lines which the USRA wants to include in the ConRail system.

Although the 5,757 miles not recommended for inclusion in ConRail comprise 26 percent of the system's track, they carry just two percent of the traffic, he says.

Lewis notes that Congress has authorized enough money to keep virtually all lines operating during the first two years of ConRail's operations under the federal subsidy program.

He recommends that states be allowed to use their share of the subsidy funds for rehabilitation of track, relocation of industry, and other purposes, instead of simply pumping the funds into nonessential branch lines.

Unlike the current bankrupt carriers, ConRail will be paying state and local property and other taxes, which would help provide states with additional revenues.

Many have already pointed out that Michigan's unique peninsular geography has been largely ignored by federal planners, whose greatest interest is in national interstate high traffic corridors.

Earlier this spring, Governor Milliken said the need for providing ferry service across both Lake Michigan and connecting the Upper and Lower Peninsulas has not been recognized.

The rural nature of large areas of the State, and the special transportation needs of our extensive agricultural and lumber industries, deserve greater consideration in planning an efficient rail system.

Michigan already is suffering from a very high unemployment rate. Drastic cutbacks in rail service will increase unemployment significantly, both within the public and private sector, as well as within the rail industry.

We must avoid these situations and ask everyone to apply as much pressure as they can on both state and federal legislators to retain Michigan railroads before it is too late.

Legion Rouses Neighborhood With Weekend Hall Rentals

Mr. George Plumm
Post Commander
Leslie T. Shapton Post
American Legion
106 E. Garfield
Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

Mr. Plumm:

The intent of this letter is not to condemn those persons, or groups, who hire the use of your facility for the purpose of wedding receptions, but to make a public statement to you expressing the concern of your "neighbors" on East Garfield and adjoining streets.

In the past, discussions with Legion members regarding the renting and abuse of the building have brought out statements to the effect that; "as soon as we can get air conditioning, the doors won't be left open anymore", "we are only renting the building to help defray remodeling expenses, and such rentals will cease when the project is completed", "if the noise continues after 1-2:00, call the police to quiet them down, and they won't be allowed to rent there again".

As long as there is a need for amplified instruments for whatever reasons, the doors will be left open, because the noise is too loud for anyone to remain inside. Closing only the front doors, and leaving side doors and windows open, does little to alleviate the problem. The "remodeling" of the sidewalk has now provided another exit from the parking lot, but does little for the problems at hand. Regarding not allowing further rentals, it would be hoped that these marriages will last and no further need for renting the building will arise. It also should not be necessary for your "neighbors" to continually call the police for you.

Conditions surrounding a recent wedding reception held at the American Legion building are an example of what your "neighbors" are subjected to nearly every weekend, although perhaps extreme in this instance. Shortly after midnight a call was made to the City Police requesting them to ask that the doors be closed, or the amplifiers be turned down, or both. Their response was prompt, as was the heavy drum beat and a lot of shouting mingled with cursing after their departure. At about 1:00 a.m. (the time when your rental arrangement specified closing) a young lady began crying and screaming about stomach pains. After she apparently passed out, she was carried bodily to an automobile and driven away. At 1:15 a.m., the city ambulance was called to remove another "celebrant". Some time after 2 a.m., the party broke up after more shouting, cursing, pealing of tires, roaring of motorcycles and honking of horns. The area around the Legion Building on Sunday morning showed everyone from St. Mary's Church that "a good time was had by all".

Our question is: Where do your rights end and ours begin? Do we, as citizens and taxpayers of Charlevoix have the same rights of peace and quiet as the other citizens of, say, Michigan Avenue? Do those rights begin at a specific time, such as when our children are put to bed, or after the bartender goes to bed? Does a person have a right to disturb others with his cursing and shouting on East Garfield, but not in East Park? Is an open display of drunkeness permissable in a residential neighborhood, but not in a commercial zone? Can we make excessive noise on Bingo Night at the Legion?

We have been promised for several years now that the situation will be cleared up, and for several years it appears conditions are getting worse. Property owners near the new ballpark objected to the baseball games that go on into the evening, and nearly won their point. Some of us might consider trading houses with them. We might even trade for tennis balls in our backyards.

The right to drink at age 18 was approved by the majority of the State of Michigan, not just the American Legion, but does "on the premises" need to include the parking lot, sidewalk and sideyard? Is it necessary for the music to be amplified? It would seem that in a building of that size, no amplification would be necessary at all.

We respect the American Legion Post of Charlevoix for the obvious improvements made in their facility, and for their continuing efforts. We also request respect for ourselves.

Sincerely,

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Taylor
Mr. and Mrs. Jock Gigg
Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Ross
Mr. and Mrs. Henry Supernaw

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

The fateful days of late July and early August, 1974, seem almost like a bad dream today.

Although some of us had realized for many years that Richard M. Nixon was a scoundrel of the first water, it seemed impossible that the president of the United States was about to be booted out of office by the towering rage of the American people.

For one thing, Nixon was so accustomed to pulling strings to manipulate situations, I felt sure he had an ace up his sleeve. Maybe one of the jokers in his administration would step forward and admit full responsibility for all of the deceptions of the Watergate scandal. Perhaps Nixon, with the help of the military, would stage a full-blown coup, fire Congress, gag the press, disnuss the courts and declare hinself dictator.

The Clocks watched the Senate impeachment debates on TV from our sanctuary on Beaver Island and kept track of the mounting evidence against the president in the daily press. The more we heard, the less likely it seemed that Nixon would ever be able to battle his way out of his corner. But Nixon is a crafty fighter.

When the resignation did come — accompanied by a massive sigh of relief by the American people — I paid off a wager with Judy and the kids by taking them ont for dinner at the Shamrock tavern after listening to Nixon's farewell address. The next day Nixon left Washington and Michigan's Jerry Ford became president.

Although the past year has lacked the high drama of the years immediately preceding it, the first 12 months of Jerry Ford's administration have served as a welcome balm to the badly injured American spirit. Unlike his predecessor, Mr. Ford seems almost incapable of acting meaoly, spitefully or underhaodedly. Although I have not always agreed with what he says or does (heaven forbid that I should!), the American people have found in Mr. Ford a leader in whom they can place their trust and respect. And that's more than half the battle in a demoeratic society. If he goes wrong, it is because he is human, not because he is president.

The real miracle is that he, almost stogle-handedly, has salvaged the Republicao party from the political scrapheap — quite a feat for a fellow who had a long but totally lack-luster career in Coogress. In fact, GOP party fortunes have done a complete about-turn in the past year and, barring a calamity, Mr. Ford should easily win re-election in 1976.

Watergate, which seemed an almost insurmountable obstacle for Republicaos ooe short year ago, has been all but forgotten.

Although it is too early to make serious comparisons, I am beginning to see in Mr. Ford some of the same qualities that made Harry Truman a giant among presidents. Mr. Truman was a scholar of the classics, but he wasn't really a high-brow intellectual. Neither is Mr. Ford.

Mr. Truman relied almost equally on his intellect and his instinct reaching decisions. So does Mr. Ford.

The impressions grows that Mr. Ford is incapable of committing an act or taking a stand that smacks of the immoral or the unethical. And the same was true of Harry Truman.

Remember the out-cry from a broad cross-section of the country when Mr. Truman told Gen. MacArthur to pack his bags? Yet history tells us the President probably acted wisely under the circumstances.

And remember the anguish last September when Mr. Frod offered Nixon an unconditional pardon for the criminal acts he may have committed as president? Ford's stock hit rock bottom and stayed there for quite some time after that little episode.

But now, 11 months later, it appears that the pardon was dictated not only by compassion but also wisdom.

What earthly good would it have done the nation to have had the former president's misdeeds paraded back and fourth in the courts? Would the nation's conscience have rested any easier if that sick old man had been put through the judicial wringer?

Quite the opposite would have been true, I'm sure.

As the anniversary of Nixon's resignation draws near, the lessons of Watergate must not be forgotten. But they must not be remembered with rancor or recrimination.

This is what Mr. Ford told us when he pardoned Nixon. I believe his message is starting to sink in.

There's no doubt about it. Doctors are finally coming into their own. They are the darlings of the talk shows, the heroes of television and the most sought-after guests at cocktail parties everywhere.

The other night I lucked out and found myself seated next to my doctor at a dinner. "How much free advice do you figure you've given nut tonight?" I chided.

"Every professional gets it,' he smiled good-naturedly. "I mean how many homes without a piano does Liberace get invited to?"

"But how do you survive?" I asked. "People must drive you crazy with their symptoms."

"First," he said, "I divide them. I tell them I'm strictly an Ob-Gyn man. That weeds out all of the men. I re-route them to a party where an urologist is holding court or to a theater where I know an internist is in attendance.

"Then, I divide the women. I listen to the hysterical ones first. The ones who have just read a Reader's Digest story which gave them three months to live. I always reassure them you lose something in the condensation."

"What about the others?"

"I tell them even though it is a cocktail party, I take my work quite seriously and would not presume to offer a diagnosis on a simple interview. I then invite them to come over to a corner and take their clothes off for a full professional examination."

"You sound flip," I said, "but it must bug you to dispense all that free medical advice all the time."

"Not at all," he grinned. "After the women have fled, I too circulate among the guests. Tonight alone, I have saved $550 in professional fees. That CPA over there gave me two new deductions I hadn't even considered, the attorney in the corner advised me on my partnership, the educator trying to eat his salad told me what to do about my son's reading problem and that professional golfer at the end of the table just knocked three strokes off my game."

"Incredible," I said.

"By the way," he said, "as a newspaper humorist, aren't you going to say anything funny all night?"

"Sure," I said, "take two aspirins and call me in the morning."

"Is that supposed to be funny?" he said.

"You thought so when you charged me $10 for it last April."

Another Lost Weekend

Constant readers (Mother and Aunt Madeline) will remember my report on that Monday when a co-worker asked me what I'd done over the weekend. "I softened the water," I told him. "That doesn't take all weekend," he said. "It does if you do it with a hammer," I said.

Well, this will be a simular report on what I did last weekend. I changed the license plates on my car.

I was armed with a screwdriver. I've been changing license plates for 25 years and a screwdriver has always been sufficient unto the task. But not this time. Not with the tricky, flippy plate-holder that hides the gas cap on my merry lousy Oldsmobile.

Honest I thought I'd lost my mind. There were 2 screws with no slots for the screwdriver. What type of horrible mutation is this? I asked myself after skinning several knuckles in a vain attempt to carve my own slots.

I have cried real tears while attacking slotted screws with a + screwdriver. I've worried about violating the Carpenter's Code of Ethics while using a - screwdriver on a + screw.

But never before, dear God, have I thrust a screwdriver into a screw and found no slot.

Could it be a nail? Whoever heard of nailing a license plate to a car?

I looked at the flip side of the plate. Both screws were screwed into nuts. After thinking and cursing for several minutes, sitting there on my cold driveway, I hit upon the answer. I would have to unscrew the nuts, rather than the screws.

You can't do that with a screwdriver, + or -.

"I need a monkey wrench," I said to myself, wondering where I might borrow one. My do-it-yourself carpenter's kit is limited to 2 screwdrivers, a hammer no one can ever find, and a rusty saw borrowed from my father-in-law 14 years ago to shorten a Christmas tree.

It took awhile, but I finally found a neighbor willing to lend me a monkey wrench. By this time it was getting dark out and my wife appeared on the scene with news about dinner. She looked at me and the monkey wrench and the license plate.

"What you need is a pair of pliers," she said, making public a secret suspicion which had been slowly prickling my skin as I discovered there was no room behind the license plate for both my hand and a monkey wrench.

It was then that I began to blubber and roll down the driveway. By the time I regained my composure, my wife had located a pair of pliers. Back to the job.

Unless I crawled into the gas tank and reached back up the spout, it is difficult to get decent leverage on the nuts. The plate hadn't been changed in 2 years and the screws were rusty. I finally loosened the nuts but the screws simply spun around with the nuts. Clearly it would be necessary to hold the screws firm while unscrewing the nuts. But how could I hold the screws firm when there were no slots for the screwdriver. My sobbing became uncontrollable.

"You need 2 pairs of pliers and another person," my wife said.

She was right. She dug up another pair and she held the screws still while I finally removed the nuts and changed the plate in the moonlight. She then helped me into the house where I collapsed in a state of shock for 4 hours.

That's what I did last weekend and I really don't give a damn what you did.

Meet Charlevoix

Meet Linda Smith and Sandy Dyer

Sandy Dyer

Charlevoix High School Seniors Linda Smith and Sandy Dyer recently took part in a live-week session with the Youth Conservation Corp (YCC). Linda and Sandy attended a YCC program based in Alberta, Michigan, some 50 miles north of Marquette.

This week the Courier talked to Linda Smith and Sandy Dyer, and they tell of their experiences in the Youth Conservation Corps.

COURIER: How did you become interested in the YCC and how were you selected?

MS. SMITH: I found out about the YCC through a high school senior who participated last year, and then I applied to the YCC and was selected from among 3,000 applicants.

COURIER: What was the daily schedule like?

MS. SMITH: We got up and ate at 6:30 a.m. and we were on our way to the work area by car at 6 a.m. each morning. The work day included six hours of work and two hours of environmental education. Our free time was at night and on weekends, while the remaining time was spent on scheduled activities such as first aid, fire building, orienteering, softball, swimming, and a little townlife. Speakers from the Michigan State Police and Michigan Technologleal University also came in and spoke on safety, geology and the environment. Lights went out about 11:30.

COURIER: What work projects did you participate in?

MS. DYER: The first week we cleared a beach and swimming area at Emily Lake, which is part of a state park. We also painted the lodge at Craig Lake, our subcamp. The third week we were involved in Aspen regeneration. We cut down young trees, to allow sunlight to filter through the trees and warm up the nearby stream. The purpose was to warm the once cold stream and thus allow warm water fish to inhabit the waters. We also made fish cleaning tables at various launching sites.

MS. SMITH: The first week, my group went to the Craig Lake sub-camp where we continued to improve the lodge there with new paint, while the second group began building an eight mile hiking trail around the lakes. We also took a fish inventory on two lakes. This involved setting up gill nets and then checking the species and population of the fish in each lake. The third week, we helped the DNR set up gates at the Burnga Game Reserve, to help restrict vehicle traffic through the reserve—mainly to discourage poachers. The next week we returned to Craig Lake, the former residence of the famous Miller Beer family, and continued working on the eight mile hiking trail. The fifth and final week we improved three bridges on a snowmobile trail along the Firesteel River. The bridges at one time were part of an old railway system and were suspended some 70 feet above the river.

COURIER: Was there any special emphasis or regulations that you followed for safety?

MS. SMITH: Definitely, the whole program revolved around safety factors. We were issued hardhats, gloves as well as shinguards for when we used axes. Everything was safety first.

COURIER: How were the living arrangements and food?

MS. SMITH: The food was cooked cafeteria style and was pretty decent. At Alberta, the girls lived in a house while the guys lived in a dorm.

MS. DYER: The food wasn't that good, because the cooks couldn't get it together. At Craig Lake there was a big fight between the girls and the guys over who would get the bedroom with the big picture window. Well, the girls got it—but not without a fight!

COURIER: What values and experiences did you learn and gain from the Youth Conservation Corp?

MS. DYER: I learned to value the out-of-doors, and to appreciate my surroundings. Not enough people care about oature. I want to go into conservation and get people more intercsted and to become more aware.

Most of my experiences are funny, but I did get to meet all sorts of really nice people. The first day I was there, we cleaned the beach area and I tripped and fell into the lake and watched my waders fill up with cold water. The last week we were there, I was trying to squirt another girl with balsom fir tree sap, but it backfired and got me instead and glued my eyes together.

I really hated coming back to Charlevoix, because the people are so nice up there and everything's so beautiful. I think I liked Craig Lake the best, because of the many islands you can row out to, and being free, away from it all, with eagles flying overhead.

MS. SMITH: My experiences were innumerable. One of the highlights for me was backpacking 18 miles into the Porcupine Mountains for three days. I learned many things in the YCC like learning how to swing an axe, row a boat, fish and shoot a bow and arrow. We also learned to identify animals from their sounds, tracks and by sight. At Craig Lake, we learned how to live without electricity, running water or flush toilets, and we found out it really wasn't that bad after all. I think if you ask any enrollee, they would rather be at Craig Lake than at Alberta's main camp which did have the basic "luxuries." I learned how to appreciate nature, and to live with 30 people in a different environment. One of the emphases at YCC was of the Alternate Lafe Style, that we were living without, e.i. newspapers and TV. In essence we learned to use our time and ourselves to a greater exteot. We were also taught values varifjeation, which brought out our true interests.

'Mac' MacMillan Awaits 50th Anniversary

PETOSKEY–Spry 81-year-old Walter "Mac" MacMillan never thought he would live to see the day when his summer camp would celebrate its golden anniversary.

Nor did the one-time Grand Rapids man dream six worn-out army tents would end up being one of Michigan's oldest summer camps.

But all that did happen and next Sunday, hundreds of people from across the nation will be back to see old "Mac" at Walloon Lake's Camp Daggett.

The camp, which services Emmet and Charlevoix County school youngsters, will commemorate its 50th anniversary.

For some, the pilgrimage back to Camp Daggett will probably be a nostalgic trip back to their childhood camp days. For "Mac" it will be a chance to see what has happened to his "boys and girls."

Born and raised in Grand Rapids, MacMillan worked at the East Side YMCA making occasional summer visits to work at a 'Y' camp on Torch Lake.

"I brought Mrs. Mac up here on a honeymoon in '21," he recalled.

"At that time, I said I don't suppose I will ever be up here again."

Just a year later, Petoskey's Rotary Club and school district heard about his Grand Rapids youth work and asked him if he would move north to start a year around youth program.

"We thought we would stay up here a few years and go back to Grand Rapids for 'Y work," he said.

"I never did."

With some 200 Petoskey High School students at hand, MacMillan offered everything from softball to gym night circuses.

"Camping was also a part of this," he added. "Those were the squatter days when we would ask to campout on someone's private property."

In the fall of 1924, Macmillan talked to Petoskey Rotarians on what camping met to youth.

"After the speech, a man came up to me and asked if I would like to see n site on Walloon Lake that area youngsters could use as o camping area," he said.

"It turned out that the site was right in the middle of where we had camped the last two years."

The man who made the offer was the son-in-law of Henry R. Daggett, who owned a Petoskey hardware store.

"Henry R. Daggett was a great lover of children and used to take kids camping whenever he could," he said.

Although Daggett had died several years earlier, his family gave nearly 44-acres, including nearly a quarter-mile of Walloon Lake frontage, for area youth camping.

In January, 1925, a temporary board was formed to administer the property and "Mac" began his first of 29 years as director.

"I don't think anyone had any idea that the camp would last 50 years," he said.

When the camp started in 1925, "Mac" said they had to borrow everything from tents to tables.

"The first year, I had to bring all the stuff up from Walloon Lake Village in boats because there were no roads to get in by truck," he recalled.

Now, the camp lies in the middle of one of Northern Michigan's most popular resort areas. And instead of a few old tents, the camp has everything from cabins to a nature study center.

"Now there are nice sanitary facilities," Mac adds.

"Back then we had what you would call old army facilities.

And now instead of 40 campers there are some 600 girls and boys who can participate in a variety of activities including archery, sailing, camp crafts.

Although "Mac" retired in 1964, as camp director, he still serves on the board of trustees. The 15 trustees represent Emmet and Charlevoix County service clubs who support the operation of Camp Daggett.

"I don't think kids have fundamentally changed a lot," MacMillan says.

"They still need the good counseling.

"We can do an awful lot in the formative years to help them become good citizens to help world peace."

Both "Mac" and his wife, Thelma, are waiting anxiously for Sunday to see how their "children" have turned out.

AM-FM WJML STEREO

At WJML the broadcast day begins with a flick of the switch and a hearty "Good Morning Northern Michigan." The voice you hear is that of Bill Supernaw–WJML anchorman and a native of Northern Michigan. "Big Supe" has been with WJML since the FM station first signed on the air ten years ago.

Bill's day starts at 5:30, and he offers a lively mixture of news, music, jokes and anecdotes straight through until 9:00 A.M. He returns to the air from 11 to 12 as host of "Sound Off" when he turns the microphone over to the people of Northern Michigan and to occasional guests.

Bill's only flaw is an insatiable desire to tamper with the day's weather forecasts, but he only succumbs to temptation when his intuition tells him something is amiss. Bill's afternoons are spent with Charlevoix area merchants and their WJML advertising programs. When time permits you'll find him on the North's beautiful golf courses or snowmobile trails.

Thousands of Dollars Spent

City of Charlevoix Gets A Summer Face Lift

If you work or live near the noise, you're already aware of what the city has been doing.

Even if you don't it's been hard to miss the air hammers, street erews and trucks around the city. It almost looks like Charlevoix has been getting ready for a naval attack.

But, actually it's only been giving itself a new face job.

No one is quite sure what the city is spending this year, but residents ean be assured that hundreds of their tax dollars ore being spent this summer to spruce things up a bit.

Along Bridge Street, shop owners are finding themselves with new sidewalks as well as corner curbs that will accommodate wheclehairs.

The exact omount of footage and cost still has to be determined.

In Charlevoix's East Park, some 230-feet of new concrete has gone in for sidewalks to keep them above water along the shoreline.

Just below East Park's lakeshore sidewalks, a new 300-foot steel retaining wall lias been put in for some $60,000 to stop erosion and reclaim washed away land.

"The area that was onec considered a junk area is now considered the best," suys Aeting City Administrator Robert Wexstoff, while making a brief inspection of the projects.

Further north, at the mouth of the Pine River Channel, the Army Corps of Engineers has nearly completed a year's work on improving the sea wall.

In uddition to putting in new pilings, the Corps has also added sidewalks and lights along the shoreline.

A Corps spokesman said the project will cost about $400,000 when completed.

Further down town, local residents are seeiug streets being repaved for the first time in several years.

The 1975 budget shows some $42,000 budgeted for loeal streets with work being done on Antrim, Pine River Lane, East Dixon, Moy Streets and the road adjaeent to the munielpal tennis courts.

Lake Michigan beach park is also getting a new lease on life. Boy Scouts have volunteered their time to patrol and keep watch over litter that keeps popping up in the woods.

"The park is beginning to come back," Wexstaff adds.

To prevent vandalism to the city's pump house, the city has installed a new electronie surveillanee system, as well as a high chain link fence.

Wexstaff says the deteriorating sidewalk along Grant Street to the Beach will also be replaced this summer.

CHARLEVOIX'S Round Lake Harbor had the most improvement work done this summer.

A BEAUTIFULLY UNIQUE PIECE OF LAND

Horton Bay's Ohle Writes '100 Years in Horton Bay'

Horton Bay, the little community between Charlevoix and Boyne City, is starting its centennial year, and to celebrate its birthday, a local resident has written a book, "100 Years in Horton Bay, Charlevoix County, Michigan."

William H. Ohle, retired advertising man whose grandfather homesteaded in Bay Township in the 1870's drew upon family history, information gleaned in interviews with older residents and whatever written material he could find to chronicle the history of the area.

Samuel Horton, the first white resident of record in the Horton Bay urea, went to Horton Bay via Charlevoix in 1856. He had sailed from Toledo with his family and two men who later became promiuent in Charlevoix offairs, John Newman and Archie Butters.

Ohle's book recounts the early lumbering days at Horton Bay, tells about the early families and their origins and is full of lore and anecdotes.

Famous Restauraot

Horton Bay is probably best remembered by Charlevoixans as the home of two famous restaurants, Kathryn Dilworth's Waffle Shop and the Red Fox Inn. For many years they were favorites spots for summer residents who enjoyed "real country cooking."

The Waffle Shop and the Red Fox Inn are no longer operating but the buildings that housed them still stand among the other white clapboard houses along the highway.

Horton Bay is also noted as the setting for many of Ernest Hemingway's early works, and the landmarks he mentions can still be seen.

There's a lot more about Horton Bay and Bay Township in "100 Years" which anyone interested in eorly area history, or just the "oldcn days", will enjoy reading.

It's tournament time in Charlevoix!

Ike Boss, Charlevoix's recreation director, and Drew Wachler, the city's tennis instructor, have announced several annual tennis tournaments to take place in August. These tournaments have enjoyed a steady growth since their inception in 1973.

The first scheduled event is the Charlevoix Mixed Doubles Open on August 2 and 3. Included in the mixed doubles will be a consolation event. On August 4, 5 and 6 (if necessary), the Charlevoix Junior Open Tournaments will be held. There will be boys and girls singles tournaments in the 18 and under, the 16 and under, and the 14 and under age groups. Also, a doubles competition will be held for boys 18 and under and girls 18 and under.

Finally, on August 15 and 16, the Charlevoix Adult Open Tournaments will take place. The competition will include men and women's singles and doubles. If there is an unusually large number of entries, many of the first round singles matches will be played on Friday evening.

Unless otherwise notified, all entries for the tournaments should check in at 8 a.m. on the opening day of their respective tournaments. Entry fees will be $2 for singles and $4 a team for doubles. All participants should supply a new can of tennis balls.

There is more to playing in a tournament than simply walking out on the court to play. In order to play up to your potential, you should be mentally and physically ready before going onto the court.

The extra pressure of being in a tournament match affects all players, regardless of their ability level. It is much different than simply practicing. Therefore, it is crucial that you begin getting ready for a match long before you step on the court.

Think about the strategies you should use. Will a lob be effective against your opponent or would it be wiser to hit hard hard shots right at him in order to cramp his stroke? Will your spins be effective or should you simply try to be steady?

Once decided on a plan of attack, think about your own abilities and how you will use them to win. It is absolutely essential to develop a positive attitude going into the match. Don't hope to play well-KNOW you will play well.

It goes without saying that all the thinking in the world is useless if the body is not in good shape. Be in good shape by practicing - your strengths as well as your weaknesses. If

Two Wheel Traveler
by Jon Hendra

Riding into cities during a long tour is one of the more taxing and hazardous situations in which the motorcycle traveler finds himself.

It is a necessary evil of being on the road. You need gas, food and lodging. These all seem to be inconveniently located in cities. Quite often your final destination is a larger city when the purpose of your ride is visiting that long lost Marine Corps buddy or the second cousin on your mother's side.

Cities in themselves are not a danger to the rider. It is your inability to react in a new environment that causes the difficulties.

After a long haul down the Interstate your perceptions and reactions are conditioned to a set of variables dealing with high speeds and great distances. Entering a populated area presents an entirely new set of varibles. Speeds are slower, distances shorter, and reaction times quicker.

After being lulled into a state of semi-consciousness by the continual highway drove the average rider is not mentally or physically capable of coping with city riding.

What is needed is a period of readjustment. The easiest way is to stop and get your feet back on the ground. Gas up on the outskirts, get some coffee, have a smoke; anything but heading straight into heavy traffic. Even a five minute stop will recondition your senses and help you adjust to low speeds and greater congestion.

Once you feel in control of yourself venture into traffic cautiously, keeping in mind these tips.

-Allow extra margins between yourself and other traffic.

-Signal all moves well in advance.

-Keep an eye on pedestrian signals to determine staleness of traffic signal lights.

-Remember, if heavily loaded, you are less stable at low speeds and your braking distance is greater.

In short, ride as if you were in the rain. If it is raining, pretending it's snowing. If its snowing, get a motel.

Take the cities cool and you'll be around to take on the country.

Benefit Brunch Planned

The "First Mates" Auxiliary of the Charlevoix Yacht Club will sponsor a benefit brunch on August 6 and 7 at 10:30 a.m. in the new clubhouse (formerly C&O depot).

Following the brunch, the ladies will play cards on the north patio of the clubhouse, overlooking Lake Charlevoix. There will be special prizes on each table.

Tickets for the event are available at Capelli Salon, the Clothing Company and Haggard's Bath & Bed. Proceeds will go toward refurbishing the clubhouse and to help carry on the many activities of the Yacht Club.

There will be a membership table at the brunch at which evcryone may join for $20 per family per year.

The Michigan Income Tax Law was recently amended to allow certain homeowners to claim a deferment on their Summer Taxes.

A person who is a Paraplegic, Quadriplegic, Senior Citizen, Eligible Serviceman, Eligible Veteran, Eligible Widow, or Blind, and who for the prior taxable year had a total household income of $10,000.00 or less, may, between June 1 and the time the tax would otherwise become subject to a penalty for late payment, defer the Summer Taxes until the following February 15 by filing with the Treasurer an intent to defer the Homestead Property Taxes which are due and payable in July without penalty or interest.

Applications are now available at the City Treasurer's Office which must be filed before September 15, 1975 to allow deferment until February 15, 1976.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffery Resch

Marsh-Resch Exchange Vows

The Rev. Fr. R. Dale Magoon officiated at the ceremony in the presence of more than 300 guests on Saturday, July 19. Arrangements of garden flowers formed a setting for the service. White daisies and baby's breath and satin bows marked the pews. Mrs. Robert Brand of Muskegon, aunt of the bride, played the program of traditional music and the wedding march. Robin Brand, also of Muskegon, cousin of the bride, played her guitar as she sang "Wedding Song" and "For All We Know".

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. James D. Marsh, Sr., and Mrs. John Resch and the late Mr. Resch.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a gown of white crepe trimmed with lace for her wedding. Fashioned with an empire waist, the gown had a high neckline, Victorian sleeves and an A-line skirt. A ribbon sash was tied at the back. Her lace trimmed veil of bridal illusion terminated in a chapel length train. Her colonial bouquet was of white daisies, pink rosebuds and baby's breath.

Valerie Anderson assisted her cousin as maid of honor and Patti Warner was bridesmaid. They wore identical gowns of yellow polyester knit styled with empire waists, cape sleeves and A-line skirts. Their crowns were of white daisies and baby's breath and they each carried a single yellow rosebud tied with white ribbon.

James D. Marsh, Jr., brother of the bride, assisted the bridegroom as best man. Anthony Kleiber served as groomsman. Seating the guests were David Peterson and Ronald McDonough.

Mrs. Marsh selected a floor length gown of white with a blue and green shadow plaid

Police and Fire Beat

The body of Albert Cooper, 69, of Oak Park, Michigan a summer resident here, was recovered from the waters of Lake Charlevoix near the C & O Railroad bridge at 4:11 p.m. Monday approximately 2½ hours after he was reported missing according to Charlevoix County Sheriff's officers.

The body was recovered in 15 feet of water by divers of the East Jordan Rescue Squad approximately 30 minutes after they entered the water to begin the search.

Dr. Robert G. Martin, medical examiner said an autopsy has been ordered to determine the cause of death.

According to sheriff's officers, Cooper, an ardent angler had been fishing from the walk atop the piling on the Lake Charlevoix side of the bridge and an unidentified friend from a dock west of the bridge. When Cooper failed to join his friend at an appointed time, the friend checked, found Cooper's fish pole and tackle box where he apparently had left them and reported the accident at the nearby U.S.C.G. Lifeboat Station. This was at 1:40 p.m.

A search was initated at once by the Sheriff's Department and the U.S. Coast Guard. The divers joined the search a short time later.

The body was taken to the Winchester Funeral Home.

Cooper had been a summer resident for approximately 15 years. He and his wife own a home at 302 Clinton St.

Among his survivors are his wife, a son, one daughter and several grandchildren.

Arrangements are pending.

Four juveniles were apprehended during the week and charged with uttering and publishing forged checks according to Charlevoix City Police.

The foursome will be brought into Probate Court. In the meantime, they have been placed in the custody of their parents.

Mr. Friendly, an advertising mannikin some six feet tall and weighing approximately 100 pounds which stood on a base outside the Carson Lumber Co. was stolen some time Friday night according to Charlevoix County Sheriff's officers.

Carson Lumber has had numerous flags stolen from its flag pole in the past but this is the first time Mr. Friendly has been disturbed from its base.

The Christ Episcopal church booth on East Park had a length of copper tubing stolen during the night Saturday. The tubing connected the gas tank with the stove on which caramel apples were being made.

The Charlevoix City Police report a quiet weekend despite the large crowds numbering well into several thousands who visited the city for the annual Venetian Festival.

Three persons were taken into custody for being drunk and disorderly and two for driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor. They were scheduled to appear in court early in the week for arraignment.

Sea Lamprey Down Despite Sightings

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service officials claim there are no significant lamprey eel increases here, despite sightings by local residents.

However, the federal service says there have been increases in lamprey eels in other portions of the state.

A number of local fishermen reported seeing an unusual number of lamprey eggs while smelt dipping this spring and say they have caught several fish with lamprey marks on them since that time.

Lamprey eels have been a menace to commercial and sport fishing for a number of years. The slimy eel-like creatures, native to salt water, feed by clinging to the bodies of fish with their vacuum-cup mouths and sucking out blood and body fluids.

"It's about the same as it has always been," says Bill Gaylord of the U.S. Fish Service in Ludington.

"At this point we can't say why they were found around Lake Charlevoix.

Gaylord said he has dispatched two investigative teams to the area since first hearing the complaints and they found no great resurgence of lampreys.

Local fishermen had sent an open letter to both state and federal officials saying that every measure must be taken to keep tight control over the lamprey before it regains any foothold.

It is believed that the lamprey invaded the Great Lakes by way of the Welland Canal in the 1930's and adapted itself to life in fresh water. In the early 1940's the damage caused to lake fish by the lamprey was noted when the commercial catch of lake trout in upper Lake Huron fell off sharply.

Fish may be killed or seriously weakened by lamprey attacks.

Gaylord says that he thought lamprey activity has been considerably down and perhaps more people have just become cognizant of what they look like.

"We're getting at all the lamprey we can," he said.

"We're not cutting off our programs, in fact they may be slightly up."

Howard Larsun, associate director of the U.S. Fish Service in Washington, says the sea lamprey control program has been highly successful.

There are good populations of salmon and trout in the Upper Lakes (Superior, Michigan and Huron), and sea lamprey wounding rates for these species has declined about 30 percent as compared to furmer years, the associate director says.

"We recognize that total elimination of the sea lamprey from the Great Lakes may not be possible and that "hot spots" of sea lamprey increases occur," he continued.

"Throughout the history of the program, we have experienced similar, sometimes unexplained, surges of lamprey population."

Coincident with these increases, Larson says, there have also been increases in fish populations.

"In other words, there are some years when conditions are good for all aquatic life and surges in populations seem to be quite general within the fisheries," he said.

Federal officials did say there have been lamprey eel population increases this year at Ludington and Buffalo.

The federal fish services operate nine electric barriers--eight on Lake Superior and one on Lake Huron--to monitor sea lamprey in key streams.

"We have noted an increase in sea lamprey at these barriers this spring," Larsen said.

"At present we are not sure from where this influx of sea lamprey is coming and are currently studying this new influx in population."

In addition to the Service's chemical control program, research is being carried out at eight laboratories and field stations.

Band Camp Underway

By FRAN MARTIN

A week of marching and maneuvers, sectional drills and rehearsals began at the Charlevoix High School Monday as the fifth annual band camp opened.

Tim Lautzenheiser and his staff from the University of Missouri are conducting the camp for 212 band students from Peshtigo, Wis., and Charlevoix.

The two bands composed of 135 Charlevoix students and 77 from Peshtigo where Bruce Kroken, a former Charlevoixan is the director, will be playing music they have had in their possession for some time.

Gary Stutzman, Charlevoix's band director, said that the music is demanding for the students but has a universal appeal to the listener. He went on to say that the marching formations on which the students will be working here will feature many new innovations which should make for great entertainment for the spectators.

The week's camp will be climaxed with a special show at Kipke Field at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

At that time Lautzenheiser and his assistants will put the bands through their paces as they show off the results of the week's training session.

The Major part of Friday's show will be the same as the one the two bands will present during the halftime program of the Green bay Packers Chicago Bears pro football game at Green Bay, Wis., Nov. 30. It will mark the first time and bands have appeared at a pro game. They have participated in numerous band days at college games.

While here the Peshtigo students are staying with local band members. All students are fed at the high school cafeteria where noon meals are being prepared under the direction of Mrs. Oliver Johnson with assistance from Mr. and Mrs. David Juilleret, Mrs. Neil Jones, Mrs. Naomi Heckendorn, Mrs. Cass Russell and Mrs. Norman Helms. Many others have been involved in fund raising and will be helping in various capacities during the band camp.

There will be a charge for Friday night's show to help defray the expenses of the camp.

SHOPPERS FLOOD downtown for sales

Christmas in July

By PEG OHLE

The crowds of shoppers looked like the day before Christmas. But, temperatures in the high eighties and the attire of customers belied that notion.

However, there were Christmas cards, Christmas wrapping paper, Christmas wreaths and Christmas tree ornaments for sale.

It was Sidewalk Sale Day in Charlevoix last Friday. Continuing through Saturday, the sale brought out bargain hunters from all over the area.

They were patient shoppers who didn't seem to mind fingering through rack after rack of pants, shirts, slacks, shorts, blouses, dresses, skirts or whatever else merchandise had to offer.

They turned stacks of merchandise upside down, mixed up shoe sizes and generally made a mess of what started out in the morning to be neat displays.

It was all in good fun, though. The prices were right and the merchants were selling. The general public seems to like a chance to "paw".

Signs read, "Reduced ½ price", "2 for the price of 1", ⅓ off, "½ price." No one seemed to question the difference.

One could buy everything from a 10-cent toy to a $125 set of silverware (half price), but most business was done in clothing. Those who were thinking of the day's heat were buying swimming suits, shorts and halters. Those who realized that cool weather is just around the corner were buying fall and winter items.

It was all very successful. As one merchant said at nine in the morning, "That sun is going to be beating down on us until afternoon, but it's always our biggest day of the year."

Waterfront Fair Starts Saturday

By FRAN MARTIN

Charlevoix will be host this weekend to its most outstanding summer event, the 17th annual Waterfront Fair.

Held in East Park overlooking the natural harbor, the Fair will feature the works of 152 artists from among the more than 600 who sought entry in the north country's most prestigious show.

Highlight of this year's Fair will be the exhibition of the painted, "Les Bateaux" (The Boats) by Raoul Dufy, a harbor scene that might have been painted in Charlevoix.

The painting is on loan from the Flint Institute of Art and was originally a gift to the Flint Institute from Mr. and Mrs. A. William Bishop, residents of Walloon Lake.

Dufy has a personal style of painting which reflects his earlier association with Les Fauves (wild beasts) so-called because of their unusual use of color. The movement emerged at the turn of the century among such artists as Henri Matisse, Georges Rouault, Andri Derain, Dufy and Georges Braque who sought to define space and distribute light without reference to natural color by using bold, luminous color.

An outside exhibition has been a part of the Fair for many years, affording a learning experience for individuals who appreciate an opportunity to browse, uninhibited, away from the sometimes oppressive atmosphere of a gallery.

The entries in the Waterfront Fair itself will include everything from simple clay to sculpture, painting in the various media, jewelry, batiks, weaving, glass blowing and photography.

A spokesman for the Fair Committee said that in recent years the Fair has been lacking in outstanding painters who seemed reluctant to enter. However, this year 50 painters in the media of water color, oil, acrylic and egg tempura will be seen at the Fair.

Each year the Waterfront Fair Committee awards a scholarship to an aspiring student. This year's scholarship recipient, Dan Tollas of Charlevoix, will have his work on exhibit at the Fair.

Venetian Parade

I think that Charlevoix's Venetian Parade was again a success. I couldn't help notice that the only two high school bands were Charlevoix's Middle School band and High School band. Why not invite high school bands from other towns. Other parades usually do and I think that this would be a big improvement in our Venetian Parade.

Sheriff

I've read with interest the comment on Mr. Sumner as sheriff. I have this to say, in his behalf. Firstly, the value of a peace officer increases with years of service, he gets to know almost instinctively where a peace officer is needed. Secondly, he appears to me to have conservative discretionary values as a law man only found with experience. Finally, he is interested in youth groups, especially youth athletics which indicates he is not out of touch with the younger generation. Were Jesse James around today he'd be wise to avoid Charlevoix County.

Nets

How much longer will it be before the steel nets at the tennis courts will wear the blacktop surface at the city court a way and force the surface to buckle up. The nets should be fixed.

Upside Down

What are they trying to do? Make Philo Sumner their scapegoat? I take it McCallum wants to be sheriff and kick Philo out. If this be the case let's turn the sheriff department up side down and get rid of them. And while they're at it, get rid of the keystone cops on the police force who don't do anything day and night but sit in restaurants and drink coffee and cokes and ride around in cars.

Support City

Yes, I highly approve of our present City administration. Our curbs, docks, roads and improved light and sewer systems show where some of our tax monies are being used--which is more than can be said of previous administrations. What I cannot understand is WHY some of our welcome (over energetic) new residents chose Charlevoix as their home and then immediately proceed to attempt an alteration and revision of our method of local government which creates utter chaos throughout our entire community. --Beth Geneit

Mess

Over a year ago you, the Mayor, City Manager and Council permitted Joe Arvilla to start construction of n two family dwelling in an area where it is questionable a two family dwelling should have been built. Now, the place is an eyesore, unfinished, piles of dirt all over, tree trunks left, ditches dug and not covered, a boat parked on one side, not at all in keeping with the area. Repeated calls have been made requesting at least a clean up job with no results. How can anyone approve of your mayor and city manager and council when you are allowing things such as this to stand in our city.

No Satisfaction

I'm not getting any satisfaction from the city. All I get is n lot of run around from the city administrater, Mr. Wexstaff. During the last year, I have called at least 10 times trying to get the road pavement near the storm sewer next to my house repaired. I cannot get any action. I finally called the mayor and Wexstaff returned by call, but I still didn't get any help.

Scottish Kathy Lee Continues Struggle for Life

MRS. RICHARD (Kathy) Lee (center), for whom the community supported a benefit sponsored by the Coast Guard Wives Club, is pictured here with her 2½ months old son.

By FRAN MARTIN

Small town generosity has helped unite an ailing young mother with her parents who live thousands of miles away.

In case you have forgotten, Kathy Lee is the Coast Guard wife who was to have major heart surgery after her baby was delivered last spring.

In April, the Coast Guard wives and numerous local civic groups sponsored a benefit dinner in order to bring her parents from Scotland to assist at the Lee household following the surgery.

When they found themselves 'short' when it came time to pay for the tickets, the people at the Heintz Travel Agency in Petoskey dug into their pockets to make up the difference in order to make the trip a reality.

This story is to bring you up to date on the happenings of Kathy and her husband, Richard, who is stationed aboard the U.S.C.G. Cutter Sundew.

First, Kathy had to deliver her son, Richard, by natural birth on May 9 because her doctor could not risk administering an anesthetic.

She has been at home since then recuperating and preparing herself for the imminent heart surgery.

Last week she was admitted to Little Traverse Hospital for a heart catheterization, the procedure is necessary to determine the present extent of heart damage resulting from rheumatic fever when she was 14 years of age.

Heart Strain

Because of the strain on her heart, she was hospitnlized for six weeks prior to her delivery. Since then her activities have been very limited.

Her husband's mother, Mrs. Richard Lee of Canton, Ohin, was with them to assist until her parents arrived here June 25. The long recuperation period and the pending heart surgery, scheduled for early September, has been trying on Kathy.

The couple, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Flynn, are now here.

Mrs. Flynn can stay up to a year If she's needed, but Flynn must soon return to his job in a large shipyard in Glasgow, "where the Queen Mary was built" he adds with pride.

Their presence here, Kathy says, has helped a lot.

"When you're sick you always want your 'mum' no matter how old you are" she explained.

Her father, who was born in Ireland and migrated to Scotland with her parents at the age of nine years, keeps things interesting at the Lee household with his stories told in an Irish brough with a hint of a Scottish burr.

He'll tell you that he first visited this country during World War II when he served five years in the Queen's Navy doing convny duty aboard n British corvet.

Since then the couple's two daughters have married Americans stationed in Scotland with the U.S. Navy and they've visited here twice.

He wouldn't mind coming to this country to live" because I'm a bit of an adventurer", he tells you.

Scotch

Mrs. Flynn as Scotch as kilts or scotch whiskey and the kind of mother who'd instill anyone with confidence, will not hear of making the United States her permanent home.

"Scotland is home. It's fine to visit the children and the grandchildren but not to stay here" she'll tell you in a thick Scotch accent. The couple also has two sons who bve near their home in Greenock, 40 miles south of Glasgow.

Like their son-in-law and daughter, the Flynns can't say enough about the people of Charlevoix who, through their generosity, have made it possible for them to be here at this time.

Kathy, who has retained a touch of her Scotch accent though she's been here for seven years, sums up their sentiments with these words: "I find it hard to believe that people can be as wonderful as the people of Charlevoix have been to us. Everyone has been so kind. I don't know how we can ever thank them".

Then, she asked, "Do you think it would be asking too much if I asked all these people to remember us in their prayer in the weeks ahead? By 'us' I mean my doctors, my family and me."

Rail Abandonment Threatens North

No Service Beyond Grand Rapids

By PEG OHLE

Northern Michigan could face unparalleled economic setbacks under proposed federal rail abandonment that will wipe out service north of Grand Rapids.

U.S. Senator Robert Griffin said the final federal system plan for the reorganization in Michigan and other northeastern and midwestern states would "derail" outstate Michigan.

He said 1,100 miles of branch line track in Michigan would be abandoned under the plan.

"The impact of that on many communities in parts of the state, especially the northern Lower Peninsula, would be simply devastating," he added.

"It just doesn't make sense to me to have the United States Railway Association try to save bankrupt main lines like the Penn Central if branch lines that provide lifeblood to hundreds of communities are wiped out."

In Congress

The plan, which was submitted to Congress last Monday, would create a new ConRail system from seven bankrupt eastern lines and would require between $1.85 billion and $2.3 billion in direct government aid.

However, no part of the system would extend north of Grand Rapids. See map.) In fact, Michigan stands to lose over 1,100 miles of Penn Central and Ann Arbor track operation under the plan.

In a letter to all members of the Michigan Congressional Delegation, State Senator John R. Otterbacher says that "failure by the United States House or Senate to reject this plan by November will have a disastrous impact on the already depressed economy of much of our State.

"Approximately 1,000 residents will become directly unemployed if these rail lines are terminated. Every bit as serious will be the impact on many northern Lower Peninsula and Upper Peninsula industries, which will probably close or seriously curtail their operations. Added layoffs will be inevitable. Another 450 miles of railways would probably close as a result of connection difficulties, and this would further inflate the negative impact."

In the meantime, the State Legislature has passed two bills which would significantly strengthen the state's roll in mass transportation and railroading.

Bond Proposal

A 150 million bonding proposal to upgrade public transportation has been approved, along with a bill permitting subsidies for threatened railroads.

The railway bill would authorize the State Highway Commission to subsidize rail and rail car ferry services threatened with elimination under the Federal plan.

According to Otterbacher the appropriated money would be used "to attract the $5.5 million the Federal government should make available to us for railway subsidy...this might allow us to keep open much of the otherwise lost railway track service for the fiscal year 1975-1976. But it will assuredly not be enough to cover the necessary upgrading and repairing of the existing tracks, not to speak of major capital improvements or expansion. It constitutes nothing more than a holding action of a desperate State."

Governor William G. Milliken is also recommending a "holding action." He is urging Congress to reject the ConRail system unless the plan contains a moratorium against abandonment, re-routing or other change that will result in significant loss of service to rail users.

Senator Griffin is a member of the Senate Commerce Committee, which will consider the rail reorganization plan.

"My efforts will be directed toward making sure the branch line problem gets solved he has promised.

One possible solution might be to continue rail service on branch lines for two years, with a 100 percent Federal subsidy of losses, he said.

"That would permit time for an independent review of the economic viability of those branch lines. After the two-year period, Federal loss subsidies could be phased down to 70 percent Federal and 30 percent State sharing as in present law."

Congress has 60 days after it goes back into session in September to reject or accept the plan. The public should express their views to Senator Griffin or their congressman.

William R. Ralls, Michigan Public Service Commissioner met Monday in Lansing to prepare strategy to block the federal plan.

Shippers and other concerned citizens were informed about details of the proposed ConRail plan and launched a coordinated statewide campaign to save as many miles of track as possible.

Money Needed

A group of Charlevoix residents is looking for help in promoting tennis. They need $1,200.

Dave Fowler says they need the money to complete a tennis wall for use by beginners and others who want to improve their skills.

"It will also provide for more space on the city courts because the beginners will have a place to go," he adds.

"Our goal is to stir up more interest and create pressure for more public courts."

Presently, the city has only four courts near the golf course and two at the middle school.

Fowler has already approached the city and schools for property to locate the wall on.

Those who have committed donations are Medusa Cement, who agreed to grade and provide fill if needed on the site; Freedman Artcraft, who will pay for and construct the wall; Charlevoix Co-co, who will provide the fence at cost with an anonymous donor already paying half; and Charlevoix Redi-Mix, who will sell the cement at cost.

Junk Ordinance Buried in Court

The present ordinance was declared invalid recently by District Judge David Fershee in a case involving Paul Lambert of Loeb Road.

"As far as we know, the ordinance itself is all right," Potter stated, "but we apparently did not follow proper procedures in taking action on the ordinance."

Proper state procedures call for listing names of township officials attending meetings at which ordinances are adopted and how they voted, and this information must be kept in a certain type of record book. There are also other specifications concerning endorsement of publication, date of publication, name of paper in which ordinance is published, etc

The Marion Township ordinance became effective June 15, 1973. The case against Lambert was filed October 29, 1973, and was heard just recently. He was charged with leaving large quantities of debris, old cars, old trucks, scrap lumber, old pipe, concrete blocks, an old school bus, old hay haler and other unsightly pieces of junk on his property.

There will be a public hearing August 12 on re-enacting the ordinance

Ouch!!...Charlevoix's Parking Pinches Downtown Shoppers

It happens every summer and it doesn't look like this one is going to be any different.

Charlevoixans never think about it until this time of year and then it hits them smack in the face.

Teenagers never seem to have a problem finding a nice shady, dark spot, but adults apparently can never find a place to park their cars.

Tempers flare, tires squeal and downtown Charlevoix begins looking like Chicago's Michigan Avenue during 5 o'clock rush hour. It happens only between June and September when flocks of tourists hit the streets.

The problem isn't new. Every year city fathers scratch their heads trying to think of a solution.

Just last year, the city created a three-man building authority to probe the problem and come up with recommended solutions.

$300,000 Solution

After a year of visiting neighboring communities, filling out reams of bureaucratic grant applications and hearing expert testimony, the authority has come up with a $300,000 solution.

But, that's apparently as far as the recommendation is going to get for awhile until city fathers decide whether or not they want to go that far into debt.

The commission's original goal was to provide 400 surface parking spaces in the downtown area by creating four off-street parking areas in the interior blocks of Antrim and Mason, Mason and Clinton and Park near the Sundew dock.

At this point only one parking area has been worked on and most of that is being done by the city in conjunction with a harbor improvement project along the city dock areas. Estimated cost is $60,000.

"We have had parking there, but it was a haphazard way," says Mayor Ed Hansen.

Extensive Work

The Charlevoix mayor said the city undertook the project this year because of the extensive work that was going to be done in the dock area anyway.

"We are doing this all with city funds," Hansen said.

"I don't know what happened with the special assessment I had envisioned."

Hansen said it was his impression that off-street parking areas in the downtown area were to be financed through revenues collected form meters at the parking spaces and through a special assessment of the downtown businesses.

The mayor denied that he has been holding back any moves toward creating more downtown parking.

Property Consolidation

Hansen said as early as 1962 and 63, when serving as a city councilman, he had been involved with consolidating dock area property with city property.

"And here 10 years later, I get in as mayor and nothing has been done," he continued.

Instead of spending an additional $10,000 for more engineering studies, Hansen said the city found someone to engineer the project and get the work done.

He claims the city was also able to save some $25,000 by buying its own steel for pilings instead of lingering on for consultants to finish their work. The cost of the steel has jumped from eight to 16 cents since its purchase.

When the harbor project is completed, Hansen said the city should expect to have some 120 spaces that will be regulated by a gate. A small number of the spaces may be leased on a long-term basis.

As far as the remaining portions of city projects, the mayor said he wasn't sure what would happen.

"One of the main reasons we need parking space is because store employees take up parking," he says about the many who insist on parking in front of their shops along Bridge Street.

Expensive Venture

Hansen says the $300,000 project recommended by the building authority is an expensive venture.

"This is a lot of money, but I'm not saying it won't be done."

One of the problems in setting up special assessments districts is that some businesses, like Oleson's Food Stores, are already providing customer parking.

Hansen said the council recently appropriated $2,000 for the authority to use to cover business and travel expenses.

18-Year-Old Remains In Bad State

Kevin Lee Scholey, 18, son of George J. Scholey, remains in critical condition at Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey as the result of multiple injuries received in a highway accident Saturday afternoon.

According to Charlevoix county Sheriff's officers who investigated the accident, Scholey was driving north on US 31 seven miles south of Charlevoix when he attempted to pass a second vehicle. He apparently lost control of his car, an Oldsmobile, on the wet highway and slid sideways into the path of a southbound Dodge pick-up towing a 20-foot inboard-outboard motor boat driven by Vincent P. Dietrich, 50, of Kalkaska.

Scholey was taken by ambulance to the Charlevoix Area Hospital and then to Little Traverse Hospital where he remained in the Intensive Care Unit Monday.

Detrich, his wife, Jean, and other passengers, Raymond Umlar, 43, and his wife, Norma, 42, were treated at the Charlevoix Area Hospital and released.

Senior Citizens Serve Purpose

Old times are not necessary good times if that is all you have to look back on.

Too many of our "old timers" or senior citizens may think that "old memories" are all they have to live on.

Efforts are being made here and across the nation to help those who think that way, but more will still have to be done.

Charlevoix County's over-65 population is growing rapidly in size and economic importance and is beginning to attract more than usual amount of attention.

Retailers are focusing a spotlight on them because of the substantial purchasing power they wield in the aggregate.

Politicians aware that the oldsters constitute a solid voting bloc, are also courting them, with an eye on the upcoming election year.

Unfortunately, not many of our senior citizens realize just how important and influential they can be.

The latest Department of Commerce figures show that 11.4 percent of the local population is now 65 or over. In other words, about one out of every nine in the area is a senior citizen.

Throughout the country as a whole, more than 22 million men and women, 1 out of 10, are over 65.

Many of our senior citizens, especially those who are on a small fixed income, have had a difficult time getting along lately. Having been hit by inflation, about one-sixth of the elderly have to have public assistance.

They are the minority, however. Most senior citizens in Charlevoix County and elsewhere, have more than one source of income. In addition to social security, some get pension, dividends, annuities, interest from investments and, in many cases, income from employment.

Locally, 14.2 percent of the men and 11.8 percent of the women who are 65 or older are holding down jobs or looking for them.

Reporter Peg Ohle reveals in a story on Senior Citizens this week that there are no less than four county governmental agencies, one federal agency and two city agencies to help Senior Citizens over the jump of bad days.

There are also three social Senior Citizens' clubs, one each in Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City.

Both Charlevoix County Social Serviecs and the Distriet 3 Health Department have full-time people concerned with the problems of senior citizens.

Unfortunately, too many senior citizens look at these agencies as providing charity and are too proud to accept their assistance.

Many of these people have worked hard during their lives and seem to take a dim view of any "governmental handout," even though services such as those mentioned are supported in part by those using the services.

We think the elderly people in Charlevoix have earned their way in life and shouldn't feel bad about participating in the programs offered to them.

There are still too many who lack proper diets, housing, medical care or other necessities of life to let pride hamper the attention they need.

While many local governmental agencies have been making an all out effort to help older people, they need assistance.

Younger residents could provide a great service by encouraging any older friends or relatives they know to attend the many activities planned throughout the year.

If not willing to get directly involved, the younger citizens could at least help identify these people to local social agencies.

Many of our oldsters have made sacrifices during their lifetimes to help us, it is now time for us to insure that they get the retirement they so rightfully deserve.

At the same time, we encourage those who are already involved with senior citizen programs to continue their interests and participation.

The percentage of senior citizens in our community is impressive and we think they shouldn't hestitate to make their numbers known to politicians at all levels.

Charlevoix, for example, is in dire need of a senior citizen housing project to accommodate the many who shouldn't or can't make it on their own.

We appear to be one of the last communities in the area that does not have a facility.

Charlevoix is fortunate to have a senior citizen housing committee working on that goal now. Lend them a helping hand.

A Bicentennial Look

To the Editor
Charlevoix Courier
111 Bridge St.;
Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

Dear Sir:

As we are approaching the Centennial Year, it seemed to me that the following article, published in the Christian Science Monitor of Sept. 14th, 1951, could be profitably read by those in this area. The article was presented by Edward Page of Boston, and he stated: The following extract from a speech made by Senator Benjamin Harvey Hill, in the United States Senate, March 27, 1878, recently came to my attention:

"But Sir, I have said that I do not dread these corporations as instruments of power to destroy this country, beeause there are a thousand agencies whieh can regulate, restrain and control them; But there is a corporation we may all dread. That corporation is the Federal Government. From the aggression of this corporation there can be no safety, if it is allowed to go beyond the bounds, the well defined limits of it's power. I dread nothing so much as the exercise of ungranted and doubtful powers by this government. It is, in my opinion, the danger of dangers to the future of this country. Let us be sure we keep it always within it's limits."

"If this great, ambitious, ever growing corporation becomes oppressive, who shall check it? If it becomes wayward, who shall trust it? If it becomes unjust, who shall trust it? As sentinels on the country's watch-tower, Senators, I beseech you, watch and guard with sleepiess dread that corporation which can make all property and rights, all States and people, and all liberty and hope its playthings in an hour and it's vietims forever."

It would appear that the prophecy of Senator Hill of 73 years ago (at the time this article was published in 1951) now 97 years ago, is about to be fulfilled, unless our congressional leaders take prompt, steps to correct this condition.

Presented by Edward Page of Boston, Mass.

This country has always felt that it has fought for the rights and liberties of all peoples. However, if each individual doesn't keep right on exercising his rights and fighting for them, it would take only moments, to loose everything we hold dear. Let each one of us be as much a part of our country, as we can.

Thanks for listening.

Walker A. Miles

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

What is your earliest recollection? For years I have had a hazy memory of accompanying my father on a ground-hog hunting expedition in Canada when I was two years old. I can still hear the crack of his rifle and I remember running over the mortally qounded quarry and dragging it back to my father by the tail.

All this happened in an ancient, weathered barn that no longer stands. But I can show you the spot in the village of Oxenden, Ont., where the barn onee stood.

Although I can't deny such early recollections, folks who study such things claim the age of memory begins somewhat later and they're probably right in most instances. I read once that a child orphaned before five will never even remember his lost parent, whieh seems to be a fair statement. My own recollections between two and five are pretty skeiehy, although I do remember with great charity my first day in kindergarten.

There are some of the things I pondered over this weekend when the Clocks returned to Beaver Island for the first time since we made our home there last summer. The girls, of course, know Beaver Island better than Charlevoix because they had more freedom on the island to explore on their own. But I wasn't so sure about Danny, who was only two during our sojourn in St. James.

Before we left, Saturday, I asked him if he remembered anything about Beaver Island and he nodded his head gravely. However, he nods his head gravely about a number of things so I wasn't sure he even knew where we were going until the Beaver Islander cut down her motors at the entrance of Paradise Bay. Danny and I were standing at the prow of the boat surveying the harbor. Suddenly he raised his arm.

"Look," he said, pointing toward the Shamrock. "There's where we eat."

Sure enough, we did have a number of memorable meals at the Shamrock last summer, including a family-type celebration marking Jerry Ford's assumption of the presidency.

But I really wasn't sure Danny really remembered the Shamrock, or if he had just made a smart guess. He's pretty good at smart guesses.

However a little later in the day as we were walking out to the shore road toward McDonough's store, Danny looked up the road near the old O'Brien home and announeed, "Church up there." Well, we couldn't even see St. James Episcopal Church from that particular vantage point, so he must have known what he was talking about.

The next morning, we awoke at the King Strang Hotel and Danny announced that he wanted to go "over there" for breakfast. He was pointing toward the Malloy home next door where we had lived the year before.

He was quiet about his island memories until church time. Rev. Hewitt Johnston was half-way through the service when I decided to trundle Danny outdoors to keep him from turning the eucharist into a complete rout. We sat together on the porch.

Suddenly Danny looked at the porch railing around him and stood up.

"You paint," he said, making a motion with his hand as if he were holding a paintbrush.

I was convinced. I had helped repair and paint the porch last summer before the crowd from Charlevoix came over for the annual Episcopal summer outing. Danny remembered.

"That paint's dry now," he said, sitting down beside me and patting the porch with the palm of his hand.

I guess he even remembered how worried I was the year before that the paint wouldn't dry before our visitors arrived.

So Danny passed the Beaver Island memory test for two-year-olds in grand style, which is something of an accomplishment. I have paid several visits to that citadel of Irish culture over the years which, even today, remain a complete blank.

Erma Bombeck

I couldn't help eavesdropping on my children the other day when they received in the mail application and brochure for the Martyred Mother's Day Camp.

It's a camp run annually in my neighborhood where children send their mothers for a day of swimming, relaxation and general messing around.

"Whatya think?" asked the older child.

"I'd send her to a mosquito farm at this point," he said. "She's driving me crazy. Pick up your clothes. Make your bed. Shut the door. Turn the TV down. Wipe out the sink!"

"We should have sent her to summer school for a class in macrame or something."

"She should be working," said the middle one. "I know it's tough getting jobs now, but a lot of mothers in the neighborhood are doing something besides staying home bugging their kids."

"Let's fill out the application blank and see if there's room left. What's her nickname?"

"Her real one? Suds."

"She hates that."

"Better put down Erm."

"What people or foods make her the sickest?"

"We'll fill that in later. Does she float well in water?"

"It depends on what bathing suit she is wearing."

"Is she subject to dry skin, stringy hair, crying spells, blistered feet?"

"Check all those things."

"Does she have any health problems the camp should be made aware of?"

"You think we should tell them how when she sees the counter-top lined with glasses, the refrigerator door open, and the crumbs floating around the water jug she goes berserk?"

"They might not take her. What about clothes?"

"We always send too many. Last year she brought home everything just as we packed it. She lives in slacks and those gold wedgies and white ankle sox."

"It'll be good for Mom to get away for awhile and be with friends her own age. We mean well, but I think we're smothering her."

I could contain myself no longer. "Does that mean I get to go to camp again this year?" I asked clapping my hands excitedly.

All three turned and looked at me soberly. "We'll see."

Mother has a Problem

(Jim Fitzgerald is still on-vacation. This wilted column is reprinted on demand of the National Lettuce Assoc.)

The evening the kids found out about their mother, I tried to explain the situation to them this way:

"Everyone has some little thing they can't help worrying about. I don't mean a big thing, like the war or health or paying bills. But something little. Like I always worry on Saturday nights that I forgot and set the alarm clock by mistake and it'll wake me up on Sunday morning when the law allows me to sleep in. I keep waking up and checking, to make sure it's not set. I lose sleep Saturday nights worrying about losing sleep Sunday mornings."

We were at the fancy Steering Wheel restaurant in Detroit. It was the first time the kids had been in a place which presented so many threats to their mother's salad. At home, all Pat has to worry about is the cats. But hovering around the Steering Wheel diners are dozens of waiters, waitresses, stewards and water boys. Not to mention a wedding party whose white clothing made my nervous wife embrace her lettuce.

At the completion of the meal, Pat went to the restroom, thus giving me a chance to explain her conduct to the children. It had been quite a dinner...

6 courses: appetizers, soup, salnd, stuffed pancakes, the main course, sherbet and coffee. Notice that salad was number 3. The idea is to eat one course at a time, with the waiter removing the remains of the previous course before bringing the next one.

Pat's problem is that she wants to keep her salad throughout the entire dinner and she is afraid the hired help doesn't understand this. At some point in her early childhood she was badly scarred by a graspy waitress. Little Pat's chopped garden with French dressing disappeared half eaten, and then the prime rib never materialized. She went to bed hungry that night and had nightmares about sneaky waiters, stolen Roquefort and starving children in China. She awoke shook but determined. She vowed to never again part with her salad until after dessert.

At the Steering Wheel that night, every time a restaurant employee neared our table, Pat's arm encircled her salad and she automatically said those now familiar words: "I'd like to keep my salad, please."

Before that long meal was over, everyone in the restaurant knew Pat wanted to keep her salad. When the piano player asked for requests, Pat requested that she be allowed to keep her salad. And he sang it for her.

The doorman went into the middle of the boulevard and warned traffic to keep moving and stay away from Pat's salad.

The bartender became so concerned he tried to call a policeman to stand guard. But you can never find a policeman when you need one in Detroit...

Anyway, that's how it went. And I was glad when Pat went to the ladies' room, so I could explain her phobia to the kids.

They looked at her with more understanding when she returned to the table and took her salad out of her purse and resumed eating it.

Editor:

It is news to no one that the Palisades Nuclear Power Plant, South Haven, Michigan, has been plagued with serious problems since the beginning of its operation. They range from labor problems to environmental to safety of operation to quality of building materials and now looms perhaps the most serious of them all-shoreline erosion.

Consumers Power Company has applied to the Corps of Engineers for a permit to construct riprap shore protection of 1,386 feet in total length.

The permit application indieates Consumers, as other shore property owners, must deal with erosion in the hope shore protection will save upland property and buildings. The financial climate of Consumers would not permit this expensive project were it not necessary. Picture the nuclear plant toppling over a bluff as many cottages and homes have done. This is a possibility if the project was objected to strongly by downdrift property owners whose concern would be damage to their property by the construction. The very least which could happen would be a delay in the construction.

Surely Consumers must have counseled with geologists and hydrologists before choosing an erosion-prone shoreline for construction of a nuclear power plant. Surely they must have been advised that shoreline erosion is serious during times of high water levels experienced periodically on Lake Michigan and is especially damaging south of a pier construction. This brings to light the issue of nuclear power plant siting on the Great Lakes and who is to make the final decision: The Federal Corps of Engineers, the State Department of Natural Resources, the power company itself, or knowledgeable scientists?

I feel deeply for downdrift property owners who face the dilemma of whether or not to protest the permit application in an effort to save their own property. They are damned if they do and damned if they don't.

"Saluting the Past, Charlevoix Looks to the Future"

Last Tuesday, the City of Charlevoix Bicentennial Commission met to compare notes on the progress of various projects ongoing in the city.

Those organizations represented were the Charlevoix Area Historical Society, the Women's Club, and interested citizens. Other clubs and people had been notified, but did not attend. Hopefully, attendance will improve for the next meeting.

Ed Beutner, president of the Charlevoix Historical Society, reported that the site of the museum has been lined up and there will be a City Council hearing on August 11 to give the public a chance to express their views about the choice of the site location. If the site is approved, they will then commission an architect to draw up some plans for the proposed building.

Bill Dale of Horton Bay has volunteered to head the fund raising committee and accept any personal donations for the construction of the museum. No completion date has been set yet, but they should have a better idea within a month or two.

Julia Baer, President of the Women's Club gave a report on the Michigan Beach Renovation project that began last November.

The city originally brought the seventeen acre land parcel for $900 with the stipulation that the land always remain available for public use. At one time the park had grills, a bandstand, a campfire area, a sheltered picnic area, and a lighted stairway down to the beach.

The Women's Club now plans to repair the stairway, install a boardwalk, picnic tables, a washroom and drinking fountain. The total cost of the project is estimated at $40,000. They have already begun with a general clean-up of the area removing much brush and undergrowth.

To help raise funds for this project, the Women's Club is sponsoring a book sale at the Charlevoix City Library on August 8, 9, and 10. The hours for the book sale will be from 6:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. on Friday, 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Saturday, and 12:30 to 5 p.m. on Sunday. The Chairman of this project is Virginia L. Rundell and the Vice-chairman is Mrs. Joseph Morris Jr. Either can be contacted for more information. Come and take a look around. I'm sure the Women's Club will appreciate your efforts.

The completion of the East Park band sheil was also suggested as a possible project.

We thought it might be fun to have a building bee once the plans have been drawn and the material gathered.

City Holds Hearing For Museum Site

Charlevoix residents will have an opportunity next Monday evening, August 11, to voice their opinions about permitting the Charlevoix Historical Society to build a museum on city property.

The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the City Chamber in City Hall.

The piece of property in question is described as "the Southerly 140 feet of Lot 5 of Block 17 of the Original Plat of Charlevoix, commonly known as the water tower property located on Park Avenue between the Sand Castle Condominium and the Robert McDermott property."

According to Edward L. Beutner, president of the Historical Society, the actual size of the property which would be used would be 66 feet by 140 feet. It would all be on the plat part of the property and would not disturb the slope to the Pine River Channel.

Local architect Jack Begrow is expected to attend the meeting to describe building plans.

Beaver Island

ST JAMES—People come to Beaver Island to escape the pace of the mainland. Here, they'll find the residents and shop owners going about their island life with patience and an air of serenity.

The patience must be born of waiting-for supplies; for the long winters to end; for the changes called progress that have modernized and mechanized our world. The serenity is born of these things, too—and the sound of Lake Michigan as it gently soothes the shores, or bursts upon them.

The visitor can experience the beauty, too. By renting a car, he or she can explore the 14 miles of varied shoreline and picnic under virgin trees. The bicyclist is rewarded for the extra effort—one can stop to pick wild raspberries and glance up, startled by the birth of the loons and their haunting cries.

Those who spend the night at one of the campsites will get a special measure of this peacefulness—the rustic and setting of the sun—to taste back with them to their fast-paced lives on the mainland.

Rayders Hit Turf

Coach Don Carey says they'll begin conditioning sessions during one daily practice session. He emphasized that only conditioning drills with no body contact would make up the early sessions.

Last Tuesday physical examinations were given by a group of local doctors headed by Dr. David Roebuck. A total of 159 physicals were given. This included all students, both boys and girls, who would be participating in any of the sports offered during the entire school year out to cheerleaders and members of the marching band.

All prospective athletes who did not receive physical examinations on Tuesday must obtain one from his or her own physician befnre reporting for practice, Coach Carey said.

Tennis Talk

By CHUCK WRIGHT

"There was no way I could play well today. It was just too windy."

How often have you heard this excuse after a person has just finished an hour of tennis in which he has played poorly? Or maybe he does not blame the wind. Sometimes it is the sun's fault. During the spring, the temperature is too cold and during the summer, it is too hot.

Blaming the natural elements for his poor play is a sure sign of a weak player. The good player, the one with excellent concentration and confidence in his own ability, not only adjusts his game to the playing conditions but also uses them to this advantage.

Let's use the sun as an example. On Charlevoix's public tennis courts, the sun is in direct line with the service toss of the player facing the road at around 3:00 p.m. If one tries to hit his normal serve, he will repeatedly double fault. Even if he gets the serve in, he will see spots throughout the point.

The good player learns to adjust both the body and the toss so that at no time will the flight of the ball be within the perimeter of the sun. On overheads, which also tend to get lost in the sun, the smart player will let the ball bounce before hitting it. If he can turn his body to hit the overhead without getting the sun in his eyes, then he should hit the ball in the air.

After adjusting his own game so that he is no longer bothered by the sun, the smart player will begin to use the sun as an offensive weapon. Primarily, he will try to hit high lobs which fly in direct line with the sun.

If his opponent tries to hit the ball in the air, a mistake will usually follnw. If the opponent lets the ball bounce, then the smart player will then take the offensive at the net.

Obviously, wind is another natural element which has to be dealt with. First, adjust your game and then figure out a way to use the wind advantageously. Remember, if the wind is at your back, you can stroke easily and be aggressive. It is very hord for an opponent to hit strong passing shots against the wind.

If hitting against the wind, hit lubs deeper than usual. The wind, depending on its force of course, will blow the ball back into the court. Also, overspin tends to drop very rapidly in wind while underspin sails.

While adjusting his strokes to the wind, the thinking player is also always looking for new ways to use it. In a cross-wind, side-slices and angled drop shots are lethal.

Two Wheel Traveler
by Jon Hendra

Before you hit the road for the weekend you must load your gear on your bike. About seventy percent of the bikes I see on the road are loaded for trouble.

The two most important things to remember about piling things on a motorcycle are weight and wind.

WEIGHT: Should be placed as low as possible and as evenly distributed as possible, front to rear and side to side. This is the ideal which is difficult to achieve because of the way motorcycles are built.

The most practiced way to carry things and keep them low is to use saddle bags. They are a necessity for the two up tourer and a worthwhile convenience for the solo rider.

Luggage racks are handy but often misused. Only your lightest objects should be fastened there. Racks place the load out behind the rear wheel where a heavy load can adversly affect stability and handling.

Tank packs are super little containers that hold everything you would otherwise have to dig for. They move some load forward and at the same time keep maps, cameras, and first aid kits at your finger tips.

The only thing bitter is a frame mounted fairing with storage compartments. These give you the accessability with the advantage of greater capacity and more forward placements.

WIND: Against an improperly loaded bike causes no end of problems for the touring cyclist. The idea behind wind loading is to present a low profile for the wind to act on.

Lashing a backpack upright to a sissy bar is the most common practice that ignores the rules of wind and weight loading. It raises the center of gravity unnecessarily and destroys the aerodynamics by placing what amounts to a sail at the rear of the machine. It also moves the weight to a point behind the rear wheel. All these factors contribute to poor low speed handling and are detrimental to high speed stability.

Its hard to enjoy your ride if you're constantly fighting a poorly loaded bike. It's harder yet to enjoy being blown off the road because you've defied the laws of physics. You can't argue with friction and gravity, so you have no one to blame but yourself for things du to negligent packing.

Keep the load LOW and BALANCED. You'll be safer and able to enjoy all that your bike and touring have to offer.

Teenage Marriage: Good or Bad?

By KEN WINTER

Blonde-haired, blue-eyed Wendy Worth pounded Charlevoix streets last week trying to sell magazine subscriptions.

The 20-year-old slim West Virginia woman was trying to overcome what nearly 50 percent of American teenagers go through when they marry early—divorce.

Like many, Wendy had decided to marry in high school and found herself not really happy with the situation after two years. Unfortunately, she now has a child to support.

"I just wanted to get away from parents," she recalls. "A lot of my friends were getting married."

Until her marriage, Wendy had been active in a dozen sports and activities in her small rural community high school. She was on the high school cheerleading squad, played tennis and worked on many class projects.

"When I got back, the kids in high school seemed so childish," she continued.

"I just couldn't relate to them anymore."

Drop Out

She trudged through her senior year only to learn that her football hero wasn't such a hero. He ended up dropping out of school to find out that he could only be hired for odd jobs.

"Eventually, he just got up in the morning and I ended up supporting him and our son," she said.

The young woman ended up getting a divorce and working in a Western Electric factory for three years. Able to make only enough to pay for food and rent, she decided to quit her job and work for a national magazine dealer. The dealer promised her a nursing scholarship if she could sell enough subscriptions.

"It seems like a good way to make a thousand dollars and get my first year financed," she says. Wendy and 15 other girls have been traveling through Midwest towns selling subscriptions.

Looking back, Wendy says she regrets having been married so early in life and wishes she had waited.

"Four of my girl friends, who got married about the same time I did are now divorced," she said.

"You might think you know who you are in high school, but you really don't."

Tim Uhlmann of Gaylord's Community Family and Children Services tends to agree with Wendy.

"The number of unsuccessful marriages of people in their mid and late teens is frightening," he said.

Divorce

He said only one in 10 teenage marriages motivated by pregnaney end up in divorce.

Uhlmann's agency deals with many young couples referred to them by other social organizations in Northwestern Michigan.

The Nntional Center for Health Statistics enphasizes the same claim about marriages. It calculates that 49 percent of the wives und 21 percent of the husbands who were divorced in 1969 had married as teenagers. It says the percentages are increasing.

The U.S. Bureau of the Census reports that 27 percent of the women with teenage marriages were known to have been divorced within 20 ur more years, as compared to 14 percent of those who entered their first marriage after they reached their twenties.

Although data are not available for computing divorce rates by age at marriage, there are indications that the risk of divorce is twice as great for early marriages as it is for later ones.

"A lot of marriages in that age group are motivated by pregnancy," Uhlmon says.

"Everybody gets in the paradox that it won't happen to them, but it seems to."

When a young couple decides they want to get married, there seems to be very few places in Northern Michigan where they can go for counseling.

Guidance Counselors

"My feeling is that high schools should be getting into it more," he continued.

"But very often, kids don't view high school counselors as a neutral."

Uhlmann questions whether most high school counselors can really be very therapeutic with the background they have.

He suggests that about the only other resources young people have outside their family are clergy and social agencies like Planned Parenthood.

Dr. Donald Melcer, a marriage counselor and Michigan State University professor, says that many young people between the age of 18 and 22 have not really broken away from the family and run into problems when they go out on their own.

"Any marriage in which both partners are not established as individuals has less of a chance in being successful," he said.

He adds that stresses and strains in early marriages are also greater because they probably don't have much earning power.

Dr. Beverley T. Mead, professor and head of the Department of Psychiatry at Creighton University School of Medicine in Omaha, Nebraska, is dead set against early marriages.

Licenses

"Marriage licenses should be recognized as an indication that you do know what you're doing. Marriage licenses shouldn't be given tu just anyone.

"This was not such un important matter in previous years," he said in a recent newspaper interview.

"But with the complexity of today's world and the unstable economic cnnditions, an impulsive marriage is not a good idea.

Too many marriages, Dr. Mead observed, take place for the wrong reasons.

"So many kids see marriage as a leap into maturity, a sudden step into being grown-up, an end to all problems. But it just doesn't work that way.

A jump into marriage is a jump intn more and bigger problems," he said.

A marriage "for the sake of the girl," he said, is doomed from the start, unless the expectant parents had discussed marriage seriously before they learned the "good" news.

Dr. Mead always asks young couples to be objective.

He tells them to ask themselves: "If I did not love this person would I have respect for him? Would I be proud to be seen with him? Would I enjoy being with him?

"If you have any doubts, stop and think about it a little longer," he said.

"Don't think marrying this person is going to change him."

Alderman Selph offered the following Amendment to Ordinance No. 203 and moved its adoption, supported by Alderman Timms.

ORDINANCE NO. 357

NOW THEREFORE IT IS PROPOSED:

Section 1. That the City does hereby adopt the following Amendment to Ordinance No. 203 of the Ordinances of Charlevoix:

That the Edward Thorpe property, 209 Meech Street, parcel No. 1-458-2 be rezoned from Residentinl I to Residential II.

Ordinance adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Whitley, Timms, Selph, and Plumm. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman McRae.

Attorney Gibbons addressed Council on behalf of Mike Ready and other residents of Charlevoix in connection with the Council's recent action in providing a lease of the Alice Street 27 foot strip of property which has access to Round Lake. He stated his purpose of coming to Council was to request that a resolution be adopted to provide for the calling of o Public Hearing and reminded Council that before vacating public property the statutory law requires that a Public Hearing be called.

The City Attorney advised Council that a Public Hearing could be held, but that a legal status of Alice Street could only be resolved by litigation and asked who wanted to bear the expense of litigation – the developer, the affected citizens, or the City, or all three.

Jeannine Wallace stated she felt that citizens have been forgotten in the past and urged that a Public Hearing be held so that they may be heard. She added it is a common courtesy to Council's constituents to let them be heard.

Several residents present supported Mike Ready's claim that Council hold a Public Hearing.

Alderman Plumm offered the following Resolution and moved its adoption, supported by Alderman Wood.

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS the residents of Charlevoix have voiced their deep concern with Council's decision to lease a piece of property 27 ft. wide, extending from Belvedere Avenue to the waters edge of Round Lake, between the two LeHavre Condominiums, described as follows:

For the point of beginning:

Commencing at the Southeast corner of lot 16, block 20 of Newman's Addition to the City of Charlevoix; thence N 85 degrees 00' 00" E 27 ft; thence North to the water's edge of Round Lake; thence Westerly along the waters edge of Round Lake 27 ft. M / L to the East line of Lot 16, Block 20 extended; thence South along said East Line of Lot 16, Block 20 to the Point of Beginning. All situated in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, (More commonly known as Alice Street)

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that the City of Charlevoix will publish a notice of a Public Hearing for (4) four weeks. Robert Garant, Engineer from Northern Design & Construction Company of Traverse City was present and explained that the first step is known as the "Facility Plan," followed by "Planning Specifications" and "Construction."

Mayor Hansen advised Council that before anything can be done on sewers, the townships will want to know what their cost will be on the study. He explained that the total cost to the City world be about $50,000, and the following percentages were suggested. City of Charlevoix 40 percent; Charlevoix Township 20 percent; Hayes Township 12 percent; Marion Township 12 percent; Norwood Township 8 percent; and Eveline Township 8 percent.

Mayor Hansen advised that plans are under way to meet with the five townships for a study.

Dave Fowler addressed Council suggesting the need for a bounce board for beginning tennis players. He told Council that local citizens are willing to provide the board, but need a place to install it. He suggested getting it away from residential areas because of the noise - naming the garden plot area or ball park area. No action wns taken.

An Ordinance to govern the charging, and allocating pro-rata share of expenses entailed in extension of any City utility into an area not presently served was discussed.

Attorney Berlage read a proposed Ordinance.

Senior Citizens Shouldn't Despair

By PEG OHLE

Charlevoix County is older than most counties in the United States. That is, it has a greater percentage of Senior Citizens than most counties.

Latest Department of Commerce figures show that 11.4 percent of the local population is now 65 or over. In other words, about one out of every nine persons in Charlevoix County is in that age bracket. National figures show that one out of ten persons in the country is now 65 or over.

When the age bracket is lowered to 60 and over, the figures are considerably higher. A 1974 study by the Northwest Regional Planning and Development Commission shows that the county has a population made up of 16 percent of persons over 60, or one person in every six-plus.

What are the problems facing these Senior Citizens, and what is the county doing to help solve the problems?

Government Help

Four county governmental agencies, one federal agency and two city agencies provide services to help Senior citizens over the hump of bad days. There are also three social Senior Citizens' clubs, one each in Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City.

The Charlevoix County Department of Social Services has one social worker who devotes full time to caring for the needs of Senior Citizens and others who devote some time to them.

The District 3 Health Department has a full time nurse concerned with problems of Senior Citizens and other workers who help with their problems.

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging devotes all its efforts to persons over 60 years of age.

Practically all of the patients at Grandvue Medical Care Facility are Senior Citizens.

The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, through its Supplemental Security Income Department, provides supplemental income to persons over 65 years of age with a minimal income.

The Boyne City and East Jordan Housing Commissions run the Senior Citizens Housing units in those two cities.

Meets Needs

Are these agencies meeting the needs of Charlevoix County Senior Citizens, are our older people taking advantage of the programs offered them, are they well enough informed about how they can be helped, are they too proud to apply for assistance which they consider "charity"?

Answer to these questions are hard to find because in most cases assistance is not broken down into age brackets. It is known that approximately 240 Senior Citizens in the county are receiving Supplemental Security Income payments, although the median income for persons over 60 in the county is estimated at $3,443 (by the State of Michigan Department of Management & Budget, 1975 projections).

The number of meals served to county Senior Citizens by the County Commission on Aging is gradually increasing, and so is use of the buses operated by the Commission, but there is plenty of room for more participation in both programs.

The free blood pressure clinics operated by the Health Department with cooperation of the Commission on Aging have been only moderately successful, with mostly the same persons turning up at each clinic.

An agency can only service those who come to it for help, and Senior Citizens seem to be the last to ask for it. They are more independent, used to working harder and seem to take a dim view of any "government handout", even though services such as those offered by the Commission on Aging are supported in part by those using the services.

Social Services

One of the few instances in which the County Department of Social Welfare may contact persons in need are those who qualify for Supplemental Security Income. Their names are sent to Social Services Health, Education and Welfare, which in turn contacts them to see if they can be of further service.

The Department of Commerce figures show that, nation-wide, one-sixth of the older people have to have public assistance to keep going, but even without accurate recorded figures, one knows that the percentage in Charlevoix County is much lower than that. If only 240 of the viable Senior Citizen population of 2,771 are receiving Supplemental Security Income, figures for other types of assistance must be correspondingly low.

Whether or not there are Senior Citizens in Charlevoix County suffering from lack of proper food, housing, medical care or other necessities of life, only those who are personally acquainted with them can tell.

Library notes

About once in a decade, a new book comes along which is so exceptional, so different, so worthwhile, that we would like to shout about it from the roof tops. The New York Times, Newsweek and Time Magazine have already shouted about this one with the highest praise in their reviews and almost exaggerated praise for the author. The name of the book is "Ragtime," and you'll be hearing about it from now on. It is a Book-of-the-Month Club selection and has already been sold to the movies.

It would be impossible for anyone to read the first page of this book and be able to put it down. It would also be impossible for anyone to decide just which episode is the most entertaining. The time is 1906 and Teddy Roosevelt is president. At the top of a hill in New Rochelle, N.Y. lives a family consisting of Father, a manufacturer of flags and fireworks, Mother, her younger brother and a little boy in a sailor suit.

Altho "Ragtime" is strictly fiction, the author takes outrageous license with fact, and the reader never really does know how much is true or historically accurate. For example the author who, incidentally is E.L. Doctorow, has a scene in which Henry Ford is invited to have lunch alone with J. Pierpont Morgan in his palatial home. Did the two men ever meet and did the luncheon take place? Throughout this fantastic tale we meet celebrities who become involved with the family on the hill. The beautiful Evelyn Nesbit whose husband is in jail for the murder of the famous architect Stanford White, the anarchist Emma Goodman, Freud and Jung on their visit to America, Houdini, and Perry on his 3rd expedition to the North Pole.

Poets more often than novelists have rewritten history in Doctorow's highhanded way, but no recent novelist has brought such amazing possibilities together in a big popular book. "Ragtime" could be called an encore novel, because the reader will speed through it the first time, then go back for another reading to pick up any tidbits he might have missed.

Doctorow has written two previous novels which, of course, everyone will want to read because of the sensational success of this new book.

Sally Carrighar one of the most widely read and respected writers in the world and who, in her own style and fashion, wears the mantle of the late Rachel Carson. She has just given us a wonderful new novel "The Twilight Seas" -- a Blue Whale's Journey. Of all the living things in the world, probably none matches in mystery and drama the magnificent Blue Whale, believed to be the largest creature ever to have lived on earth and now almost extinct because of the slaughter by modern whalers. "The Twilight Seas" is the best picture of life and death in the world of the Blue Whale that we have ever had, according to Hal Borland. There are some intriguing, almost terrifying illustrations done by Peter Parnall, the award-winning artist.

Summer Residents to Climb Big Horn Mountains

Pamela Holecheck

Dana Huhta and her father, Edward Huhta, of Warren, are among the 14 youths and four adults who will be participating in a backpacking trip in the Big Horn Mountains and Cloud Peak National Forest in northeast Wyoming Aug. 19-28.

The trip will be led by the Rev. Gordon Kruse of the American Lutheran Church in Troy.

The trip, which features hiking and primitive camping, is designed to make participants more aware of themselves and their relationship to each other, nature, God, and country according to the Rev. Dr. Kruse who has taken five other groups on a similar trip.

Dana is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abe VerWys and has spent a great deal of time in Charlevoix.

Memorial Started

A "Living Memorial" to the Michigan Lung Association has been established in memory of Eugene J. Wulfman of Cottage Avenue, Pine Point.

The memorial will support research projects, medical fellowships, Health Education Services to schools, information programs for patients, and public forums on respiratory health.

The Lung Association, which is largely supported by Christmas Seal contributions, has since 1908 led the crusade in Michigan against tuberculosis. Today the association works to further prevention and treatment of lung diseases such as emphysema, asthma, chronic bronchitis and other less commonly known respiratory diseases, in addition to conducting air conservation and smoking education programs for teachers, adults and children.

Memorials in Eugene J. Wulfman's name may be mailed to the Michigan Lung Association, 403 Seymour Avenue, Lansing, Michigan 48914.

It is called gem of the sun, ancient civilizations believed that it had power to dissolve enchantments and cause evil spirits to flee. Set in gold the Peridot was thought to dispell the terrors of the night. When Peridot was powered it was believed to relieve asthma, when held under the tongue it was thought to lessen the thirst in fever.

If you were born in August, you'll want to see how beautiful a setting with a Peridot stone can look.

Area Shoppers Jam Oleson Foods For Jar Lids

By KEN WINTER

Charlevoix shoppers jammed into Oleson Food Store Wednesday as if it were giving out free food.

Armed with empty food baskets, some 25 women were ready to battle it out for canning jar lids.

Word that Oleson would receive a canning lid shipment spread across town like wildfire as women lined up for several hours to get first dibs on the lids.

Store Manager LeRoy Buchanan said he had never experienced anything like it before in the 35 years he had been in the grocery business.

"In World War II, when I was a check-out boy, I never ran into anything like this," he said.

Rumors of can lid shipments have been no joke to Buchanan or other store employees. The shipment that came in Wednesday was the first in some time.

Store employees had previously been badgered and even accused of hiding the lids for friends and not putting them on the shelves.

Buchanan said the store would never permit such a practice, as he held up two pages of shipment statements with lids marked "temporarily unavailable."

The store manager said he wasn't sure how word got out, but the Charlevoix store, which received its supplies from Spartan Stores in Grand Rapids, did get some Wednesday.

Bette Coen of Charlevoix had waited nearly three hours and had gone without breakfast to make sure she was one of the first to get lids.

"We all started milling around here about 10:30 a.m." she said shortly after 12 noon.

"They said the first truck didn't have any, but the second might."

Mrs. Coen said she had been canning since she was 17 and now feeds her family of five throughout the year from what she is able to can in the summer.

"I need 40 dozen to get through the season, now I only have about five," she continued.

"When I asked about the lids, they said they would be in Wednesday or Friday.

"Next week I am going to bring a chair."

Edna Miller said she has been all the way to San Diego and back without being able tu find lids.

"How come you can get them in the mail from Goodwill?" she retorted.

"Why do they get so many million when grocery stores don't have any?"

As she was talking, a stock boy gusted a sign on the empty shelf the women were huddled around. The sign read: "So that all may share: Limit – two boxes of can lids per family."

Like others, Rosella Warstler of Charlevoix has been unable to find lids.

"My mother-in-law down in fndiana has been keeping an eye, but hasn't gotten any," she continued.

"Every time f come in, f look with no success."

Maryanne Milewski of Fenton, up on vacation visiting relatives in fronton, said there have been no lids in Detroit either.

"It's the same situation there as it is here," she said.

"You can't get them anywhere."

Several people complained that even plastic freezer containers have been hard to find since people are beginning to freeze food instead of can it because of the lid shortage.

"This is a bunch of baloney," said Don Murphy of Charlevoix, who had come to Olesons with his sister.

"It just doesn't make sense."

Murphy just shrugged his shoulders in disgust and grumbled to himself as he stepped away from the congested area.

"Having to wait for canning lids," he muttered.

"We came here for coffee."

Murphy says he cans pickles to save for the winter when he decides to have a snort or two.

SHOPPERS CROWDED around the canning jar department in Oleson Food Store last week after hearing they were going to receive a lid shipment.

No Budget

I don't know whether this is what they wanted but this is the message. ft came as a shock to learn some time ago that our city fathers were running the city without a budget. Now we read that the department heads do not participate in the preparation of the budget. Since it is through this process that the city council has an opportunity to judge the adequacy of the proposed operating program and to establish the level of city services tu be rendered without the help of department heads we are wondering how they determine the competency of the department heads. For the department heads, budget review furnishes an opportunity to justify the department's programs, to propose changes in services and recommend revisions in structural working methods. At this time, the needs of one department should be weighed against the needs of all other departments. An adequate budget program provides systematic and effective procedural devises for controlling expenditures and thus establishes the price the citizen must pay for his community service. The budget is not just a statement of dollars and cents. It is a program of work which is important to the health, safety, welfare and convenience of the citizens of this community. Let's hope Charlevoix doesn't become another New York.

Whiting's Park

f have read recently they have hired a full-time night watchman to patrol Whiting's Park. Finally they have controlled their problems. But what about our problems out to Bells Bay.

We have camped at Bells Bay many times and truly enjoyed ourselves. This last summer has really been unnecessary. The parties, motor cycles racing up and down the roads endangering our children. ft is really ridiculous and a person cannot even enjoy a weekend of camping.

What f think we need is a patrolman to be out there all of the time. You can't even get our sheriff's department to come out there and control the senseless noise.

f would even consider paying a fee to stay if it would rid us of the unnecessary disturbances.

Any other ideas from campers or maybe if we start voicing our opinions out loud we might get some action.

–A worn out camper looking for some peace and quiet.

"Hats Off"

A big "Hats Off' to Terry Blissett and his crew who so successfully rounded out, not only a whopper of a softball tournament, but also the grocery drawing of $100 over the weekend festivities.

Terry and a handful of soft ball enthusiaststs are really showing that these programs can be and are successful by a bit of hard work on their part.

Congratulations Terry and to the ones who helped make this program the success it is.

Also "ffats off' to the wonderful person who not only won the groceries but donated them so generously to someone else in need. It takes all these fine people today to keep the world moving in a good moral pace.

Much thanks again to a fine recreation program such as soft-ball.

Sincerely Billie Smith

P.S. Note the new signs on the soft ball field made by Julie and Bob Holtzman as a bonus to donators who helped on the tournament.

Schools Change Starting Times

By FRAN MARTIN

Charlevoix High School students will be going to school a half hour earlier and middle and elementary students a half hour later following action taken by the Charlevoix Board of Education Monday night.

Under the program to be initiated at the opening of school on Sept. 3, high school students will attend classes from 8 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. and students in the 1st through 8th grades from 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. Kindergarten students will attend school from 9 a.m. until 11:45 a.m. for those living in the country and 12:45 until 3:30 p.m. for those living in town.

In considering the changes, the board of education is attempting to improve the academic and extra-curricular opportunities for students, it was explained.

The arrangement will also provide savings of approximately $8,000 to the board in transportation costs. ft was also explained that students participating in the vocational classes at the Petoskey Voc-Ed Center will now be able to arrive on time at the center. Vane Smith, high school principal, said 20 students would be attending these classes this fall. A limited number of students will be able to remain at the high school for club, forensics and other activities and have transportation home on elementary buses.

It was also brought out that the age groups riding buses should be more compatable.

Four buses will operate un both the elementary and high school bus routes. This will allow the board of education to operate the transportation with fewer buses than had previously been required to serve the student body or 13 as compared to 15 in the past. It is anticipated that the cost of two buses at $16,000 each will be saved from the current budget. The routes have been planned so that new routes on the new schedule will result in only 73 additional miles traveled per days or an average of 4½ miles per route.

Students in the first through the eighth grades should expect the bus to arrive approximately 30 minutes later than the pick-up time established during the 1974-75 school year and those in the top four grades (9 through 12) 30 minutes earlier than the usual pick-up time.

Before the proposed change was approved, the issue was discussed at length. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Campbell were present to voice concern about their high school-age students leaving so early in the morning. However, they were advised that their students would be leaving approximately one-half hour later than in the past. Vincent Chew, middle school principal, and Ralph Raymer, elementary principal, and several teachers present offered the advantages to be obtained from the new schedules for their respective schools.

Anyone with questions regarding the new schedule may call the superintendent's office or any of the principals' offices for further information.

At the same meeting, the board approved the certification of 24.75 mills for operational purposes in all parts of the school district except the city of Charlevoix and Norwood township where 12.575 plus .4 mill for the public library will be levied, this being 50 percent of the total tax bill. The remaining 50 percent in these two units was levied with the summer taxes in July. For the school district, this is 2.75 mills more than last year. This was the amount approved at the April special electiont

Debt retirement millage was cut to 2.7 mills as compared to 3.0 mills last year. This includes 0.9 mills on the high school bonds and 1.8 mills for the elementary school bonds.

The bid for 112 square yards of carpeting for the high school typing room submitted by the Don Brown House of Furniture was accepted. The price was $1,034. Don Brown, a member of the board, abstained from voting on the issue. Three bids were considered.

The bid of Maxbauer Creamery was accepted fur milk products and that of the Mueller company for breads and rolls. There was two bids on each.

Henry Wagner, a graduate of Western Michigan University and a former teacher in the Ellsworth school system, was hired as a science and physical education teacher in the middle school and Gory Ucks, a graduate of Eastern Michigan University without a teaching cartificate, was engaged as a study hall supervisor on an hourly basis at the high school. Dr. William Ratigan, former study hall supervisor, will be in charge of the testing program at the elementary school under the Title I program.

Council Delays Museum

Charlevoix City Council delayed action on the city's proposed historical museum site despite little opposition at a public hearing Monday.

Councilmen indicated they wanted to consider several other locations and agree on leasing terms for the proposed Park Avenue location before taking action.

The Charlevoix Historical Society proposes to build a museum on city property commonly known as the water tower property located on Park Avenue between the Sand Castle Condominium and the Robert McDermott property.

During the hearing, society members quickly squelched rumors that the group proposed to a warehouse-type building in the middle of a residential community.

"We're only trying to grace the cummunity, not displace it," Society Member William fl. Ohle told the few who attended the hearing.

Ohle along with Edward L. Heutner, president of the Historical Society, said they had hired architect Jack Begrow to work with them in designing a suitable building.

Society members also heard concerns that there would not be adequate parking, but suggested that most visitors to the proposed museum would be coming from the downtown area.

Mayor Ed Hansen said the Park Avenue location had been selected because of its proximity to the business district for both convenience and security.

In other business, council:

–Delayed action on accepting the resignation of City Clerk Lois Heise.

–Discussed commercial fees for the Charlevoix Municipal Airport and referred the matter to committee

–Agreed to pay $2,094 to the Michigan Power Rate Payers Association to fight a proposed 30 percent wholesale price hike by Consumers Power Company for electricity.

–Heard a report on the city's sewer study grant.

North Continues Railroad Fight

TRAVERSE CITY–Northern Michigan planners and rail users launched a last track campaign here Thursday to save rail service.

Certain northern lower peninsula rail service will be wiped out in a Department of Transportation proposal now being considered by Congress. Rail users are now looking to the state for assistance.

William Rowden, director of the Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission, said the 10-county commission has hired V.M. Malanaphy and Associates of Washington, D.C. to prepare a rail system proposal for northern Michigan.

"The Commission still insists we should have service to this area," Rowden said during a press conference here.

"Neither the $4 million federal study or the state plan has properly included this area."

Devise Plan

The commission plans to devise a rail system that would include present Ann Arbor and Penn Central trackage, interview all rail users in the 10-county area and make a geological survey of potential mineral exploitation in the region.

"When all the data is collected we will put together four alternatives for this region," said V.M. Malanapy president of the management consultant firm.

Malanaphy, who just completed a study of the Ann Arbor Railroad for Michigan, charged that system should have been retained in the United State Railway Association plan.

"The errors made by the U.S. Railway Association relating to the traffic on the Ann Arbor indicate that it should have been retained in Conrail," he said.

"Our findings were sent to the USRA where they were ignored completely, while the law states they must be reviewed when errors are discovered."

R.E. Martin, executive vice president of Schultz, Snyder and Steele, Northern Michigan's largest building supply wholesaler predicted material costs would increase five to six times without rail service.

"The best way to get materials to the consumers is still by rail," he said.

"If we are denied rail service in this area the cost of building suppliers would be astronomical."

Soaring Costs

He said one-third of building material costs now are freight expenses.

Area fruit growers, now dependent on rail service fear similar transportation cost problems.

Malanaphy said truckers

'Shanaland' Considered

Approval of a requested zoning change in Charlevoix Township was recommended by the Charlevoix County Planning Commission last week.

Ski & Shore Properties, Inc. has requested that the piece of property known as "Shanaland" be zoned from Agricultural to Residential 1. The property in question is bordered by Waller Road and Mercer Boulevard, with a right-of-way to Pa-Ba-Shan Lane. Ski & Shore proposes to subdivide the property into 65 lots.

The matter is now in the hands of Charlevoix Township officials.

In other action, the Planning Commission recommended denial of a zoning change in Hayes Township from Agricultural to Residential 2. This property is a 2.96 acre parcel on Old Highway 31 owned by Robert Cook. The Commission considered such a zone change as "spot zoning". Further consideration of the matter will be given by Hayes Township officials.

The Planning Commission also recommended approval, with two changes, of a zoning ordinance submitted by Norwood Township.

Marion Township Plans Road Hearing

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

"Lake 26 Road", a two and a half mile one-lane dirt road in Marion Township, has become another nominee for designation as a Michigan Natural Beauty Road.

A public hearing date has been called for August 26, in the Marion Township Building at 8 p.m., by the Charlevoix County Road Commission, at which time township residents may express their views.

If designated a Michigan Natural Beauty Road, according to the law passed in 1970, the road will be maintained as is. Improvements will be limited to a minimum to keep the road passable and safe.

The intent of the law, establishing Michigan Natural Beauty Roads, is to preserve the character of certain rural roads, in areas of natural and scenic beauty.

According to Mrs. and Mrs. Grover Everts, circulators of the petition, asking for this designation, the majority of property owners on Lake 26 Road have signed the petition.

The petition received July 10, 1975, by the County Road Commission, Mrs. Helen Crichton, Clerk said. The required 25 signatures were verified as bona fide.

Road Preserved

The efforts to have the road preserved as a Michigan Natural Beauty Road began about two years ago, Mrs. Everts told The Courier.

Unlike the stormy controversy over Hayes Township's Stolt Road, there has been no vocal opposition to maintaining Lake 26 Road as is.

The petition was not in response to any specific improvement plans.

The road runs through woods and fields, from Marion Center Road to Phelps Road, between East and West Twin Lakes. It typifies many rural northern Michigan roads. The hardwoods bouredering its southern final miles form a natural tunnel; the northern portion varies, running through pastures, a stand of nature pines; and, as the road passes the two lakes, woods and some summer cottages.

Marion Township Supervisor Robert Potter said there have been no formal plans to widen or improve the road this year. However, the township officials had been discussing working on the road in the near future.

Potter explained that, "If the road is improved, using matching funds, township and county road commission monies, then the road commission must improve to its standards."

Commission Standards

Road Commission standards are the concern of those who wish to maintain the natural and rustic quality of the road.

"As I understand it," Mrs. Everts explained, "They would widen some 30 feet on each side, which means cutting a lot of trees, and in our case would bring the road up to our front steps.

"This is one of the few pretty roads left," Mrs. Everts observed. "And people already drive too fast along it. If it's widened it would be much worse."

The Michigan Natural Beauty Road Act limits speed to 25 miles per hour, on designated roads.

The Everets, the only residents with school age children, acknowledge their three often must walk to the bus, about a half mile, particularly in spring, when thaws make the road muddy and impassable for the school bus. They feel the quality of the environment outweighs the inconvenience of walking for the bus and mail, or even being forced to leave their own car a half mile away from home.

The Everts are year-round residents since moving here 6 years ago from Adrian. Mr. Everts commutes daily to Harbor Springs where he is a Quality Control Inspector at Control Engineering. Most other property owners are summer resorters.

Township Supervisor Potter said, "I hope they all understand the whole situation.

Other than the usual spring thaw problems, the major problem on the road is an old wood bridge over the rail road tracks which will not support snow plows in the winter. Thus the plows are forced to plow from either end, off Marion and Phelps Roads.

Proponents of preserving the road feel these inconveniences are not as important as the opportunity to pick wild grapes and berries, or just enjoy a leisurely drive through a varied natural setting without fighting speeding traffic.

SOME 150 ARTISTS displayed their works Saturday in Charlevoix's East Park for the 17th annual Waterfront Fair. Hundreds of people from the Midwest flocked the fair area to see the north country's most prestigious show.

State Investigates PBB

Area farmers who have had to keep and feed livestock with low levels of poly-brominated bi-phenyl (PBB) contamination may get some help from the committee recently created to investigate the matter.

State representatives have voted to prove the Department of Agriculture's handling of the chemical contamination of Michigan livestock by creating the seven-man committee.

Representative Donald Albosta of St. Charles, sponsor of the resolution, has criticized the Agriculture Department's handling of the incident which resulted when the PBB, a flame retardant, was accidently added to livestock feed.

Albosta said the Agriculture Department acted arbitrarily when it refused to condemn animals which had low levels of the chemical but were visibly ill. The contamination standards were set by the Federal Drug Administration and agriculture officials declined to lower them.

Albosta further said that animals that are visibly ill but do not have levels of the chemical high enough to be killed may be a health hazard to humans eating their products.

Fuel Prices Expected to Soar Upwards

By Peg Oble

The price of heating oil is going up again. This is the prediction of Herb Hugo, senior editor of Platt's Oilgram, a professional daily paper in the oil field.

"People who use heating oil can save around $40 if they fill up their tanks before early September," he says.

One of the reasons for the increase is a possible shortage of heating oil, according to Hugo. He said that refineries last year forsook building up heating oil inventories to meet demands for gasoline.

"Now, there is the danger of a shortage in heating oil and LPG (liquified petroleum gas) used in rural areas and in farm machinery," Hugo said.

He advised users of the two fuels to fill up now and again as soon as their storage tanks get to the half-filled mark if they want to save money.

All the local heating oil dealers contacted by the Courier said that an early fill-up is a good idea because they, too, anticipate an increase in price.

Users of natural gas may also face some shortages. A forthcoming federal task force report on gas supplies, due September 1, will list the government's options for assisting areas of the country where severe shortages are expected.

Frank G. Zarb, federal energy administrator, says the report will outline the kind of authority the FEA will need if the winter is severe. One option would be transferring gas from states with adequate supplies to those with severe shortages.

A spokesman for Michigan Consolidated Gas, which serves this area, reports that it "probably has the best supply picture of any gas distribution company in the country."

"We just don't have the problem yet that is so prevalent in the Northeast," he says. "We even expect under present circumstances to be able to assist other gas utility companies in Michigan if they run into a squeeze."

About the possibility of transferring gas from one state to another, Hugh C. Daly, vice-chairman of American Natural Gas, Consolidated's parent company, said recently, "It makes no sense at all to shut off the gas to a Ford plant in Michigan to supply gas to a Ford plant in Ohio or Pennsylvania and it makes no sense either to try to solve a shortage in one part of the country by creating one in another part."

Sheriff Says He's Doing the Job

By KEN WINTER

Charlevoix County Sheriff Philo Sumner this week denied recent accusations that he or his men are falling down on the job.

His department has been under public fire this year for a rash of cottage break-ins, as well as its handling of recent disturbances.

"I feel I am doing the job," Sumner said in an interview with the Courier last week.

"For the manpower I've got, I can say we're doing the job."

Fifty-five-year-old Sumner faces re-election next year after having served as county sheriff since 1966.

Some have apparently questioned whether the $13,000-a-year elected county official has been keeping up with modern law enforcement techniques. Sumner denies the accusations.

While puffing away at a cigarette, the broad-shouldered county sheriff explained that even though summer tourist traffic has doubled in the last two years his department's efficiency is still the same.

More People

"There are a lot more people than there were two years ago," he continued.

"We find there are many more complaints this year from private property owners about trespassers on the beach."

But, never-the-less, Sumner says the efficiency of his department is still high.

Wearing his brown open collared county sheriff uniform, Sumner sat back in his chair. On the desk before him were several piles of paper and three canisters filled with pencils and flared-tip pens. Sporting a crew-cut, the law enforcement chief occasionally peered out the window behind him.

"Our department is still answering all calls, there's just more of them," he continued.

Sumner didn't deny there were a number of summer cottage break-ins last winter. But, he said his department is now discovering them in winter instead learning about them in the spring from cottage owners.

"By our own work, we have found a lot of them ourselves," he said.

"They're now being checked and found throughout the winter."

The county sheriff credits some of this to cottage owners who are now contacting his department and telling them when they leave for the summer and who can be reached in case of an emergency.

Park Enforcement

Area park enforcement has also improved, Sumner says, because the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is providing rangers who can work with the deputy sheriffs.

"Because the DNR has people at the park, campers are now reporting problems instead of just packing up and leaving," he said.

Sumner denied recent reports that he refused to dispatch a car to Bell's Bay State Forest after hearing of disturbances.

At no time did we say we wouldn't do it," he said.

According to the Michigan Uniform Crime Report, the number of Class I (felonies) and Class II (misdemeanors) in Charlevoix County is down in 1974 compared to 1973. Class I crimes for 1973 were 4,663 compared to 4,270 in 1974, while Class II crimes dropped from 5,238 to 4,467.

When looking at the number of break-ins occurring in the county, 1974 statistics show that the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department has been able to solve more cases than other local units.

While the sheriff was able to solve 15 out of 109, the state police had 15 out of 125 and Charlevoix City police handled four out of 41.

Crime rates

Law enforcement officials say that crime rates may be down slightly because the local public didn't bother to report incidents because of its attitude towards local courts last year.

As far as training, Sumner says all his men must have 256 hours of certification work in order to be a deputy. Coursework includes everything from handling arrests to courtroom procedures.

Charlevoix Board Should Consider Year 'Round School

Just about now, when millions of idle, restless youngsters are either deep into summer trouble or out looking for it, record numbers of others are pursuing regular classroom schedules.

In Virginia's Prince William County, for instance, 20 percent of the student population now attend classes all year--except for four three-week vacations spread throughout the 12 months. They are just a fraction of the 2 million youngsters in 28 states who now either attend year-round schools or who have the chance to do so.

The year-round schedule was begun in Prince William County (as elsewhere) to avoid overcrowding and to cut building costs. This county grew so fast during the early 1970's that many schools were forced to go on double shifts. Now four years after year-round schools were instituted, planners say a school built for 9,000 students can accommodate 12,000 on a year-round basis. A 1972 study also shows that the plan reduced the average cost of educating each student by $109 a year, writes a national financial columnist.

What began as an economic move has, though, developed into a satisfying change in traditional education patterns. According to students and educations:

Shorter terms and more frequent vacations slash vandalism, decrease boredom and absenteeism, provide an opportunity for more elective courses which wouldn't fill a whole semester;

Students return to their classes refreshed and with a new commitment to learning.

The national columnist says that education is now viewed as a continuing process, not a chore to be squeezed between lengthy summer holidays.

The most popular type of schedule is called the "45-15" program. Students are divided into four groups, usually on the basis of neighborhoods so children in the same area follow the same routine. Each group attends classes for 45 days, not counting weekends and holidays, then get 15 days off. When one group begins its breaks, another returns to school, so only 75 percent of the students are in school at any specified time.

Just in the past two years, the number of public school districts providing the option of 45-15 or similar plans has quadrupled. In California, about 78,000 youngsters attend all-year classes.

Opposition to the innovation generally focuses on the absence of extended summer vacations. Some parents want guaranteed warm weather holidays, so they can plan long family trips to coincide with the schedules of friends and other relatives. Other parents object to the program because they feel 45-day periods are too short in which to complete course work and they don't want their children rushed through their studies to meet an upcoming 15-day break.

Some businesses, too, are apprehensive about the impact of year-round schooling on customer buying and travel habits. This would be a particular concern for resorts like Charlevoix. Retail clothiers wonder if "back to school" sales will become obsolete, if and as, the program spreads. Stationers fear that fall sales of notebooks, bookcovers, pencils and the like will diminish. Travel related industries and resort operators fear a lessening of their "peak" seasons.

But for each objection supporters have an answer. They argue vacations are more enjoyable when resorts aren't so crowded; shorter and frequent school breaks make it possible for working parents to be more flexible in their vacation planning, because they don't have to take their vacation just because the children are at home.

Many year-round schools provide individualized tutoring sessions during the short holidays so poor students can repeat a course at once without falling a whole year behind. Some offer additional electives for gifted students. As for businesses, merchants and recreation workers who have had experience with year-round schools welcome the elimination of the stop-and-go cycle in public demand, are glad not to be swamped with vacationers during hot weather months, left close to idle the rest of the year. Some police and recreation authorities say it's easier to deal with only one-quarter of a community's children at one time.

The long summer breaks may be moving toward oblivion. "We live in a suburban society," as one school planner puts it. "Children no longer have farms to run and crops to reap."

In light of recent financial problems with schools in Northern Michigan, we think educators should be taking the same attitude.

Mr. & Mrs. Charles Taylor

Mr. & Mrs. Wayne Boss
Mr. & Mrs. Henry Supernaw

It really surprises me how people shoot off their mouths, and gossip about things before they find out the facts!

It's obvious that you four couples are in this group! These are the Facts:

No. 1. The heavy drumming was not a response to your call to the City Police. When a hand plays, they go through a routine. In every routine there is a drummer's solo. That is what it was, nothing more, or nothing less. So that heavy drumming wasn't meant for you, we wouldn't give you the satisfaction!

No. 2. As for the young lady crying and screaming about stomach pains. I would like to know how you heard her screaming when people who were dancing next to the young lady didn't hear anything but a groan, plus this is when the heavy drumming had taken place, when she passed out. So please tell me how you heard her scream.

The young lady did not pass out from liquor, but because she had an appendicitis attack, she was driven to the hospital by her sister.

No. 3. As for the other person, who you call "a celebrant" (a victim of drinking). This is what happened: A gentleman picked up the young lady, who had the attack off his wife's lap (the so called "celebrant"), he lost his balance, fell on her back. Then an ambulance was called for her.

No. 4. The litter was picked up by the renters Sunday morning (so your snow melted fast).

No. 5. There were very few minors served. Those that were served had their parents approval and guidance. I ask, "what reception hasn't served minors?" There was hard liquor, but this was served only to relatives that don't drink beer.

No. 6. As for the shouting and cursing, my family nor I heard any shouting or loud cursing. (end of facts)

There was a wedding last fall where they had a group of young people playing. The windows and doors were open (I was there). There was not one word said. You can't tell me that a group of middleaged men made more noise than a group of young people!

Also, there was a wedding reception held there a couple weeks ago where they were dancing in the parking lot. It seems that was kept quiet, too. Could it be that some of you people that are complaining, were there enjoying yourselves.?

If you wish, we will personally talk to the Post Commander to see if its possible that when he rents the hall, that you people that are complaining will be invited, so there will be no more complaints and gossip.

You mentioned that you would gladly trade places with those who live by the new ball park. They would gladly give up their beautiful homes by the ball park and UNWANTED DOG POUND (if a dog pound suits you) for the little noise you get every once in a while. So, you see, you're not the only taxpayers with bad surroundings.

As for being taxpayers, that's the oldest and poorest excuse in the book. All you people do is complain. Why not help the Legion? You could give and help raise donations for the Legion so it will hold 300 to 350 people, (so people will be inside instead of outside) and have air-conditioning. Then, the doors and windows will be kept closed.

This woman you call a "drunken celebrant" was not drunk! She hod helped out with my wedding, she didn't even get a chance to get drunk! Then, when a young lady passes out this woman gets injured, then she is called a "drunken celebrant" for helping a young lady. I think an apology is due!"

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

Although the disappearance of former Teamster Boss Jimmy Hoffa has been heart-breaking for members of his family, the feeling persists that the details of his abduction — if such it was — have been carefully worked out by a master mystery writer.

To date the case has oil the earmarks of a scenario from the pen of Agatha Christie or Ian Fleming.

Hoffa has played a prominent role — for better or for worse — in American history for the past two decades, wielding an unconscionable amount of economic power and political clout as spokesman and standard-bearer for the nation's truck drivers.

In his position of power, Hoffa has rubbed shoulders with the great and the near great as well as the criminal and the down-and-out. His name was a household word at the dinner tables of presidents and peons alike.

Probably no single act by former President Nixon was more disturbing to more people than his pardon of Jimmy Hoffa after Hoffa's jury tampering conviction. And after Nixon was forced to resign because of his own nefarious Watergate activities, more than one tongue clucked; "Well that just goes to show you: Birds of a feather flock together."

The Hoffa Case is literally bubbling over with questions of mystery and suspense that would make for a superb who-done-it.

—Was the U.S. Court of Appeals about to rule that Nixon erred in barring Hoffa from union activity until 1980, signaling a fight-to-the-finish between Hoffa and his former protege, Frank Fitzsimmons, who now heads the Teamsters?

—What, precisely, is the role of Charles "Chuckie" O'Brien, whose own disappearanees and reappearances have mystified newsmen covering the story. Now a chunky 41, O'Brien is Hoffa's foster son who has made his home with the Hoffa family since he was three years old. One news account had it that O'Brien's father was killed while marching on a picket line and Hoffa, in his compassion, adopted the boy as his own.

Another angle of the Chuckie O'Brien story that Agatha Christie would dote on is the fact that he was just married for the first time in June and is living in Arkansas with his bride and her four children by a previous marriage.

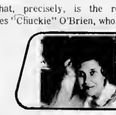
It was Hoffa's natural son, Jimmy jr., who told newsmen his foster brother was "honeymooning" when asked why he wasn't with the rest of the family during their time of sorrow.

Miss Christie would not approve of the Hoffas' modest summer home which has become the headquarters of the Scotland Yard (I beg your pardon, FBI) investigation. She would have preferred a baronial mansion.

The the doun of 20th century mystery writers would definitely approve the locale: Beautiful Lake Orion in the gently rolling hill-country north of Detroit.

She also would have approved of Hoffa's mysterious rendezvous with persons unknown at the fashionable Red Fox restaurant and the suspicious bloodstains, in the suspected kidnaping vehicle which kept the nation glued to its TV sets over the weekend. It turned out to be fish blood.

The Hoffa disappearance has so many of the classic elements of an Agatha Christie mystery that the FBI might do well to call her in for consultation. It certainly could do no harm.



Erma Bombeck

This year, millions of Americans are busing their way through Europe on package tours that offer scenic grandeur at budget prices.

My husband and I just whipped through nine countries in 21 days. (Okay, so I looked down to change the film in my camera and missed Italy.)

How are they able to offer this bargain to travelers, you ask?

Simple. The Continental Breakfast.

To the non-traveler, I must explain the Continental Breakfast consists of a paper napkin, a knife, fork and spoon for which you have no use, a cup and saucer, a pot of coffee or tea, and a container of marmalade dated, "Please Use Before July, 1936." Finally, two four letter words that have come to strike terror in the hearts of the travelers everywhere the Hard Roll.

The Continental Breakfast (literal translation: Keep out of Reach of Children) has a gradual, but unmistakable effect on people who eat it for a period of ten days or more.

For the first several days, partakers of the hard roll will pretend it is just the thing they need . . . or the "Famine is Fun" number. Women will pinch their wrists and say, "I've been eating too much on this trip. A light breakfast is just what I need."

The truth is, the hard roll is not designed to take off weight. Even though eaten in small pieces, once in the body it will form again into its original hard ball and build a hard wall across the hips and the stomach. After the 11th day, the hard rolls make you mean.

We had our first hard roll in Ireland on July 1. By July 15, the group was irritable and noncommunicative. On the 17th while in Venice, my husband, in a fit of violence, grabbed a hard roll, carved his initials in it, "WLB, 1975" and sent it back to the kitchen.

By the 19th day, the prospect of a hard roll for breakfast forced some travelers to remain in their beds with their faces turned to the wall. Others used the hard roll to pry their luggage open, prop open their doors, or to rub stubborn stains trom their shirts.

On the 21st day, we looked at our last Continental Breakfast in Paris. My husband ran his fingers across a roll that was initialed, "WLB, 1975"

"It's just a coincidence, isn't it?" he asked.

Some things it's best not to know.

If it Fitz — Let Them Hunt Money

What this nation needs is a surefire way to cut welfare costs. The Atlanta Braves baseball team may have accidentally suggested the perfect solution.

You know how mad everyone gets at ADC mothers who spend food stamps on ice cream instead of oatmeal. It is badenough that they are feeding out of the public lunchpail. But they have no right to enjoy it. Some people on the dole even drink beer and go to movies. It is no wonder honest taxpayers scream and stomp and suffer from high blood pressure.

Thoughtful citizens can understand the necessity of spending millions of tax dollars to keep Penn Central or Lockheed from going broke. No one is foolish enough to suggest all those corporation executives should be asked to live on less than $100,000 a year. No one would suggest it might save taxpayers' money if these big bosses cut down on European vacations, Lincoln Continentols and dry martinis.

It is easy to understand this paradox. Mrs. Honest Citizen stands behind Suzie ADC in the A&P. She sees the 6-pack and the steak in Suzie's cort. But Mr. Honest Citizen never sails in the same lagoon with a yacht captained by an executive of a tax-subsidized corporation. So she isn't rocked by his waves.

You are always bugged more by the leaky faucet in the kitchen than by a flood in the next state. When your husband sighs at Raquel Welch, you laugh. When he ogles the gol next door, you're jealous. Ye Olde Philosopher has spake.

So what to do nbout this welfare problem which threntens to make Mrs. Honest Citizen sick long before it mokes her poor? One of those seeking solutions is Daniel Kruger, a professor at Michigan Stnte University. He's a member of a chrome-dome committee which has been studying the economic mess in Michigan. Recently, in a speech at the Michigan Press Assoc. convention, he unvelled a startling idea.

He said his committee had seriously discussed the possibility of paying welfare families $5,000 each to get out of the state and stay out.

It might be cheaper than welfore for Mrs. Honest Citizen. And it might make things more comfortable for her in the A&P.

It is an interesting idea which could probably be improved. Which brings us to the Atlanta Braves.

Recently, to lure more people into the park, the Braves staged a free-money promotion. $25,000 was spread all over the ballfield in various denominations, everything from $1 bills to a $1,000 bill. Selected customers were set loose on the field and allowed to keep all the money they could pick up in 90 seconds. You never saw shirts get stuffed so fast.

So why doesn't Michigan spread a few million dollars along several miles just over the Ohio border? Welfare families could be bused to various starting points and then set loose with all the cosh they could grah.

There would be no time limit. The only stipulation would be that once the money hunters stepped over the border into Ohio, they could never again return to Michigan. In the rare chance of a few cheaters, roadblocks could be erected, equipped with machine guns.

Not only would this giant give-away solve a vexing problem, it would also be a great show. It could easily be tied in with our Bicentennial celebration; what is more American than chasing money? Networks would hid millions for the TV rights. Monte Hall could emcee.

The only worry would be the bleeding hearts who would automatically accuse the state of degrading the welfare reeipients. I'll admit it isn't very dignified to grab for money on the ground. But the ADC families would probably think it was worth it.

And it wouldn't be just the money. After all, once they were in Ohio, they could root for the Cincinnoti Reds instead of the Detroit Tigers.

Meet Charlevoix

Meet Julia Baer

One of the first persons most newcomers to the Charlevoix area meet is Mrs. Julia L. Baer, the Welcome Wagon Hostess. This week the Courier talks with Mrs. Baer about how Welcome Wagon operates and what it offers to new residents.

COURIER: First, tell us a little bit about yourself.

BAER: I have lived in Charlevoix eight years but before that I spent many summers on Walloon Lake. I am starting my second year as president of the Charlevoix Woman's Club and am a volunteer at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. My business experience includes work as a systems analyst for the Shaw-Walker Company in Dayton and assistant to the treasurer of Miami University. I have also served as Field Advisor to the Great Rivers Girl Scout Council in Cincinnati and as a Field and Camp Director for the Crooked Tree Girl Scout Council in Traverse City.

COURIER: What does your Welcome Wagon job consist of?

BAER: I contract for and deliver sales messages for local services companies and retailers to newcomers in the area. I also extend good wishes and gifts from them and supply educational literature about civic and social opportunities available in the community.

COURIER: That folder in your basket is bulging. What's in it?

BAER: There are maps of both the City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix County. There is a list of civic and fraternal organizations in Charlevoix with the name of the person to contact in each one. There is a list of Charlevoix churches with time of worship for each. There is a calendar of local Charlevoix events. There is a copy of the "Charlevoix the Beautiful" tabloid, telling all about the community. There is a list of services available through the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District. There is a recommended immunization schedule from the District Health Department No. 3 and a clinic schedule. There is an invitation to join the Women's Guild of the Charlevoix Area Hospital. But most of all there are cards from local merchants welcoming newcomers to the community and inviting them to come in for a visit and to receive a gift.

COURIER: Who are your participating merchants at the present time?

BAER: We have a nice list. They are Capelli Salon, Saginaw Savings and Loan Association, Haggard's Bath and Bed, Lake Charlevoix Cable T.V., Andy's Tire World, Bartletts Decorator Center, Carey Bont Shop, Central Drug Store, First State Bank of Charlevoix, Frank's Flowers, Gas Heat Installation Company, The Park Place, Grey Gables Inn, Kit Carson Lumber Company, Oleson's Food Stores, Charlevoix Courier, Radio Station WJML, Designer's North, Charlevoix County Press, and the Midwest Broadcasting Company. We are also backed by the Chamber of Commerce.

COURIER: Are you able to get the names of all newcomers?

BAER: We get most of them but can't help missing one once in a while.

COURIER: If a newcomer has been missed should he contact you?

BAER: Yes, I'd be happy to hear from anyone who has moved into the area within the last three months whom I have not contacted. My telephone number is 547-2210.

Animal Shelter Nears Completion

Members of the Charlevoix County Humane Society are looking forward to moving into their quarters in the new county animals shelter some time in September.

During the past year the Society has raised over $5,000. Part of this money will be used to finish the one room office in the shelter and to pay for telephone service.

Volunteers will man the office for the time-being. The Society will keep books on lost and found animals and instigate an animal adoption service. Later on it hopes to operate a complete pet center.

Roger Moses, animal control officer attached to the Sheriff's Department, will handle all problems relating to the local aspects of animal control.

The new county animal shelter was built to replace the old facility in Boyne City which has long been under fire by both the State and the Humane Society. There is no water, light or proper ventilation or heat in the small one-room frame structure.

The new shelter is located adjacent to the County Sheriff's building. This proximity will provide 24-hour surveillance of the facility and ease feeding and watering of the animals.

ROBERT AND LUCILE MCKOWN of Boyne City and Bill Miller of Charlevoix, members of the Charlevoix County Humane Society, discuss final preparations for the new animal shelter. Near completion, the shelter is expected to open in the fall. The facility is located adjacent to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

Historical Society Meets

The August meeting of the Charlevoix Historical Society featured a "show and tell" period during which many members showed and told about their antique treasures.

Among the articles displayed were Mrs. John LaRue's quilt embroidered with names of early pioneer friends of the family, once known as a "crazy quilt"; Mrs. Lloyd Arnold's wrought iron lamp-chimney baby bottle warmer; Robert Burns' old Kentucky guns which he stated were the kind Daniel Boone once used to kill his first bear; Mrs. Edward Beutner's black sun parasol edged in black lace which had belonged to her aunt; and Mrs. Julius Gilbert's 1884 Knight-Templar parade picture, in which Mrs. Arthur Wexstaff recognized her own grandfather, John Ward, as leader of the group.

"Show and tell" will be continued at the next meeting of the Society, September 2, and members and non-members are invited to bring their heirloom pieces for display and a short resume of their historical background.

Unemployment Down

Area Economy Looking Healthy

By PEG OHLE

It may be seasonal, but the economic situation in Charlevoix County seems to have improved somewhat during the last three months.

Applications for help from the Charlevoix County Social Services Department have decreased slightly in the last two months in all departments except Aid to Dependent Children.

However, the caseloads in all departments have averaged higher for the first seven months of 1975 than in 1974.

Figures secured from Social Services indicate the total number of applications received for Medical Assistance, Aid to Dependent Children, Direct Relief and Food Stamps as follows:

January, 132; February, 137; March, 134; April, 120, May, 90; June, 109; and July 121.

Broken down into categories, the number of requests for assistance which were approved by Social Services show the following trends:

Aid to Dependent Children

January, 38; February, 46; March, 62, April, 44; May, 44; June, 49; and July 54.

Approximately one year ago there were 180 active ADC cases. So far this year there are 250 active cases, with a steady increase noted in the past six months. One reason for the increase in these cases, according to Social Services, is a new ruling which permits some unemployed persons to receive ADC benefits rather than unemployment compensation. Because higher benefits may be received through ADC many persons are applying for this type of assistance.

Direct Relief

January, 14 approved cases out of 33 requests; February, 12 out of 34; March, 20 out of 39; April, 9 out of 20; May, 10 out of 12; June, 7 out of 13; July, 8 out of 21.

For the same period last year, a total of 49 Direct Relief Cases were approved, compared with 80 cases for this year. The average monthly Direct Relief caseload for fiscal 1974-1975 was five a month, already for the last half of fiscal 1974-1975 the Direct Relief caseload is more than twice this monthly average.

Direct Relief is the only Social Services assistance program entirely supported by county funds.

Food Stamps

The number of persons receiving Food Stamps but no other public assistance this year to date is reported as follows:

January, 311; February, 330; March, 365; April, 296; May, 321; June, 250; and July, 262.

For the fiscal year 1973-1974, the average approved Food Stamps cases for persons not receiving other public assistance was 132, so there has been an obvious upsurge in this type of assistance.

Unemployment Benefits

The number of persons in Charlevoix County receiving unemployment benefits has also decreased during the last two months.

James MacConnell, labor analyst for the Michigan Employment Security Commission, gave the Courier the following figures for the first six months of 1975:

January, 1200; February, 1275; March, 1275; April, 1225; May, 1050; and June, 900.

The above figures are for those persons receiving full unemployment benefits. In addition, approximately 25 more persons receive partial benefits each month.

Charlevoix County's unemployment benefit figures for July are not yet available, but nationally the Labor Department reported a .2 percent drop in unemployment in July.

The decline in the jobless rate covered all categories of workers but the greatest improvements were among teen-agers and children. Throughout the country teenage unemployment fell from 20.5 percent to 19.1 percent. The jobless rate for women dropped .6 percent to 7.9 percent.

Dance Lessons Still Offered

The ballet and modern dance lessons offered by the Portside Arts Center at Elm Point near East Jordan will continue through the month of August.

An article in last week's Courier indicated that they would be over August 1.

Persons wanting further information about the lessons should contact the teacher, Jan Bartoszek, at 536-7514.

Two Wheel Traveler
by Jon Hendra

Breaking down miles from home is the nightmare of every biker. If your machine has been well maintained chances are most of your trouble will be minor and in the "fix'er where she sits" category.

The problem then is having the right tools and parts to get you going again.

A motorcycle is limited in its ability to store equipment necessary to deal with anything major. So, the biker should prepare himself as best as possible to handle the things he can do something about on the road.

The foundation for self help is the bike's tool kit and the owner's manual. Although most tool kits are of poor quality they are the proper tools to fit the various components on the machine. The owner's manual is the guide for solving the problems that don't require professional assistance.

In addition to the bike's tool kit, I carry an impact driver, socket set with ratchet, needle nose pliers, vise grips and a multi-bitted screwdriver. When there's room I take a hammer for use with the impact driver or for self defense in case I break down over an ant hill. Tire irons are necessary if you have any hopes at all of dealing with a flat. My tool set has a good pair but many don't. They're a small investment for a lot of peace of mind.

Flat tires are by far one of the more common road problems. To remedy a flat you need either a patch kit or a new tube.

On really long hauls I carry both. The difficulty for many riders comes in reinflating the tire, since most bikes don't have a tire pump as standard equipment. The alternatives are an engine to tire pump or a can of air. If you don't like playing around with all this stuff, just carry a can of flat fix junk. It'll take care of most punctures and get you to a shop for a new skin.

The minimum in spare parts should include replacement bulbs and a complete ignition set; plugs, points and condenser. Make sure your kit has the feelers for gaping the plugs and points and for checking valve clearances.

An assortment of nuts, bolts, and screws are handy to have if your mirrors or levers fall off. A healthy length of wire, a roll of electrical tape, and a few hose clamps nicely round out your emergency package.

What you take in the way of extra cables depends on the condition of your bike. If they have become questionable, replace them before a long trip and save yourself some hassle on the road.

Even if your mechanical abilities boarder on marginal having the right tools and parts can get you going again. Its seldom that a bike sitting along side the road isn't joined by another rider interested in assisting him. Maybe that rider that just happens along can deal with your problem.

Tennis Talk

By Chuck Wright

Many of my friends tell me that I infurate them.

It seems that when I describe a tennis shot (serve, backhand etc.), I inevitably say that "it really is quite simple." My friends say that it really isn't that simple.

While I still maintain that most shots in tennis are basically easy to execute, this week I should ease some minds as I discuss one of the hardest shots in tennis - the drop shot. Yes, this really is a difficult shot.

Primarily, the drop shot is a delicate, touch shot used when an opponent is deep behind the baseline. It can be hit either for a winner or as a clever device to throw an opponent off balance. It is also a good way to exploit an opponent's weak net game. Hit a drop shot - bring him up to the net and then force him into an error.

The perfect time to use a drop shot, however, is when your opponent least expects it. If you have been having a long rally, both players going from side to side, the drop shot is a terrific way to break up the tempo of the rally. And if it is disguised properly, your opponent can only watch helplessly as it drops in for a winner. The key to the drop shot is the ability to disguise the shot until the last moment. If you telegraph the shot to your opponent on the back swing, he will then have plenty of time to react and to get up to the ball before it bounces twice.

Take the racquet back as though you were going to hit a normal slice or chop deep into the backcourt. Make sure that you do not overswing as you take the racquet back. As you make contact with the ball, your wrist twists the racquet under the ball with a fair follow through.

The contact is sold but with a great deal of backspring. If you have hit the shot properly, the ball will pop slightly into the air, clear the net by a couple of feet, hit on your opponent's side of the court no further than eight feet from the net, and die after the first bounce.

If the shot lands too deep in your opponent's court, it becomes an easy set up. If, however, you have managed to finesse a drop shot barely over the net, it is impossible for your opponent to hit a decent shot back.

Even if he catches up to the shot, he will be forced to hit up on the ball in order to get it over the net. No player can hit excellent shots when they are hitting up on the ball.

Drop shots are effective even if your opponent is very fast and can get to them. He is still unable to hit good pressing returns.

Jacquie Merta Sees Future in Charlevoix Chamber

Jacquie Mertn

When Jacquie Merta moved here with her husband in 1971, she couldn't even buy a shower curtain.

The local variety store, which handled the product, was out of stock and the only other way to get one was by ordering it through a catalogue. Times have changed.

"Charlevoix is now a place that can meet the needs of the community so that people don't have to drive to Traverse City or Petoskey," she said while sipping coffee in a local restaurant.

More than most, Jacquie has seen Charlevoix transform from a three-month summer community to a year-round city with an economy equivalnnt to any in the north.

Recently named acting executive secretary for the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, the former Petoskey resident is now marking her fourth year with the Chamber.

The only difference is that she is now on the firing line instead of someone else–a far cry from being a part-time secretary for husband Tom, when he had the executive position five years ago. Tom now has his own printing and advertising company in Charlevoix.

"There were a lot of things we had done that hadn't been done before," she recalled about her first spring with the Chamber.

In addition to running the already traditional chamber-sponsored activities–like the spring Chamber dance–the young couple began compiling industrial and resort listings for inquiring visitors.

"It was a job of bringing things up to date and then keeping them up to date yearly," she continued.

Besides adding some new activities to an already full summer event schedule for tourists, the Mertas tried a few others that didn't make it.

But, as most who are familiar with any civic organization realize, not everything will work. Much of it is hit and miss.

Even though her husband has left the Chamber, Jacquie has stayed on. This summer when Vince Okach became the Charlevoix Public School business administratur, Jacquie moved up from being a secreatry to the helm position on a temporary basis. Her permanent appointment to the position is only speculation at this point.

Although not gun shy, she is cautious about making public statements. She wants the job done right without raising the public's wrath. This was her first newspaper interview.

Jacquie sat back in chair, relaxed, fielding a variety of questions like she was Charlevoix's first lady and had been used to press inquisitions.

While admitting that everyone in town doesn't support the Chamber for one reason or another, Jacquie says she's convinced it has a strong position in the community.

The Chamber executive says there're two reasons for having a Chamber of Commerce–one is to bring people into town.

"They're going to spend money, but more than that they're going to remember the events," she adds.

But more important, Jacquie thinks the Chamber provides a service. For many, she says, the Chamber is the first impression one gets of Charlevoix when they come for a visit.

"We are the first contact that people have when they come to town," she says. "That impression is an important one."

And the questiuns asked by the thousands of tourists that flood the area are unbelievable sometimes. One tourist, for example, wanted to know where he could buy a pet squirrel, while another wrote and asked how far property he wanted to buy was located frum civilization. It was located just outside of town.

Besides the thousands of inquiries from tourists, Jacquie says many come from industry and businesses thinking about locating in Charlevoix.

State Democrats Visit County

Democratic politics in Charlevoix County, got off to an early start in the county Sunday when several candidates, some announced and others unannounced at this time, attended the annual Charlevoix County Democratic picnic held at the Robert Wososki farm.

Attending the event were Congressman James G. O'Hara of the 12th District and Roger Tilles, aide to State Senator Bobby Crimms, who have announced their candidacy for the most being forthcoming elections.

Delegations from Emmet, vacated by Senator Philip A. Hart and Congressman Don Reigle who said he would make a decision within six weeks and Dudley Buffa, aide to Hart who has made no formal announcement but is sounding like a candidate.

All four spoke briefly and, for about the first time, said that out-state Michigan had more Democrats than ever before in the history of the party in the state and urged them to support the party in Cheboygan and Antrim counties joined Charlevoix county Democrats at the annual picnic. Martin Paul, Charlevoix county chairman, was master of ceremonies at the brief and informal program.

Broke In

Someone broke into our farm house, cut the glass in the back door, and got in. A neighbor got the license number, but the police won't tell me who it is. Now I've got to hire someone to buy the glass and put it in. This piece in the Courier is just what I think-fire the whole "damn" bunch and start over again. Until they put a stop to it, it will get worse, not better. I'm a cripple, past 88 years old, I walk with a cane or stick, and getting no better.—Sam Straw, R3.

Visitor

As an annual visitor to your beautiful city, I have on numerous occasions used your fine harbor facilities. This year, for the first time, however, your harbor and city boast a truly fine and conscientious harbor master in the person of "Curly" Hartzell. However, I think it is to the shame of your city to have "slave labor" in the officer of the person of Kay Hartzell. I have observed her during my stay here in your beautiful city and found her to be an extremely hard worker and as important to the smooth operation of the docks as is her spouse, "Curly". Certainly the town should find some funds in their budget to adequately reimburse these outstanding municipal employees, who, incidentally, are great public relations people in your community.—Robert W. Eckhaus, 4800 Chicago Beach Dr., Chicago, Ill. Yacht "STARANNE".

Junk

Can anyone explain what the "junk" is that is getting all over the swimmers-in Lake Charlevoix, at Ferry Beach and Depot Beach? It is white and sticky. When it dries, it looks like white paint. This is hardly sanitary conditions.

Cunnell Suggestion

I have a suggestion for the Town Council to consider. I think it would be a good idea to build another building on the other side of the bridge and place the second ambulance and maybe another fire truck there so that if there should be an emergency on the town we could get the ambulance or the firetruck to whoever needs it. Otherwise the person might have to die or their house burn down while they're waiting for the bridge to go down.

Energy Suggestion

I'd like to suggest that with the energy crisis that somebody might put up a sign downtown saying that we should turn off car engines when waiting for boats at the bridge. I was downtown the other day and a lot of cars were parked waiting for the bridge and they all had their engines on, obviously burning a lot of gas. I think that with reserves of energy running low this is the thing to do.

Good Job

I feel that they're doing a great job with the bond camp, in Charlevoix. Gary Stutzman should really be commended for the band he turns out, but I really feel that after this particular band camp that they shoud get together with the parents and set a date where the boys and girls in the band don't have to give up their summer jobs. The band takes about 100 kids and many of these kids have to work for the summer and I feel that it's a little early to have it. It would be better maybe the week before school starts so they can work through the summer, then quit and be part of the band camp.

tripled their prices once rail service was no longer available to growers shipping fresh produce east several years ago.

The Washington consultant, a former Penn Central market analist, said there is no single reason why railroads are bankrupt.

He said it was a combination of poor management, bad marketing of services and "messed-up" rate charges.

Another regional planner, Richard Beagle, added that if there is not enough industry to support rail service, the commission should look towards incouraging more growth.

Northern Rail Abandonments May Be Delayed for Two Years

By KEN WINTER

CADILLAC—Elimination of Northern Michigan rail service may be delayed for two more years under proposed federal legislation, according to a Washington transportation attorney.

Northern Michigan Rail Users, a 125-member organization composed of industrialists and businessmen, learned last week that there may be a two-year moratorium on proposed rail service abandonment.

Under a U.S. Department of Transportation proposal, now being considered by Congress, Northern Michigan stands to lose all rail service north of Grand Rapids.

But, Michael Davidson, public counsel for the Rail Service Planning Office, told the group here Thursday that a bill has been introduced to provide complete federal subsidy of rail service for two years.

The legislation, introduced by Indiana's Senator Vance Hartke, would provide a $38 million subsidy for all light-density lines. A comparable bill has been introduced in the House by Harley O. Staggers of West Virginia.

Deadline

A spokesman for Hartke, who is chairman of the Senate Subcommittee of Transportation, told the Courier that he doubted any lines would be abandoned for two more years.

Congress has until November 9 to reject or accept the Department of Transportation proposal.

"It appears that the branch lines are not the losers as it appeared in the past," Davidson said about the change in attitude.

"It will give us a two-year breather."

Davidson said nothing was definite at this point and that the most Northern Michigan could ask for is a federal subsidy to give the area some breathing space.

"I do know the State of Michigan is considering some things for the northern area and have 30 days after November 9 to respond to the federal plan," he continued.

Before the federal plan is passed, Davidson said there must be some modifications if area low density lines are to be saved.

He suggested:

Modifications

—Titles to properties being subsidized in the Conrail plan be turned over to Conrail during the two years.

—Lines showing profitability during the next two years should automatically be included in the federal plan.

—A new bookkeeping system be set up to show line-by-line costs.

Davidson said the proposed 100 percent federal subsidy is not a long range solution, but it does give some time for rail users to consider alternatives.

"The continued pouring of money down a rat hole like Penn Central for another year is not good in anyone's mind," he said.

"But it shouldn't be abandoned and we should make sure Congressmen realize what has been done already."

Davidson added that he thought the C & O abandonment hearings for this area would take another year. Although not included in the federal plan, C & O has filed petitions for abandoning trackage from Manistee to Petoskey.

"The development of Northwest Michigan has been stymied for two years," said Richard Beagle, assistant director of the Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission.

"Industry has been hesitant to move in because they don't know what the railroad situation is."

Beagle continued earlier charges that neither the federal ur state governments have adequately looked at Northwestern Michigan's railroad situation.

"We feel there must be some basic and consistent information about railroads in the area," he said.

"We have to have some information before we can do some planning."

The planning commission represents some 10 counties in Northwestern Lower Michigan.

The commission has hired a Washington consultant to devise four alternatives for regional rail service. The project is expected to be completed in two months.

"We have to keep fighting no matter if it seems hopeless," said William H. Ohle of Horton Bay, a director of the Rail Users Association.

"I think we have a lot of things going for us now and we don't want to drop it."

Alice Street Hearing Takes Place Monday

A controversial proposed lease between Charlevoix and LeHavre Condominiums goes to public hearing next Monday at 8 p.m. in City Hall.

City Councilmen will hear arguments on whether or not they should lease a 27-foot-wide strip of property, commonly known as Alice Street, on a 99-year lease for $500 a year.

Developers say they are seeking the undeveloped strip of property that runs between the two LeHavre Condominiums on Round Lake for better access to the units.

In a split decision last month, council granted LeHavre use of the property with the city maintaining easement rights for utilities and storm sewer.

However, a group of neighborhood property owners heard about the move and demanded a public hearing.

The city did not sign the lease.

Neighbors say they use the property as access to Round Lake, don't want to lose the right, and are not challenging the status of the property.

The question of whether the property is a legal road or even belongs to the city has been in and out of court during the last five years with no apparent decision ever made.

Several former city officials have said the matter was dropped from court when the city agreed to grant the condominium developers a building permit.

Alice Street residents claim the matter must go to public hearing before the status of public property can be changed.

The Council has agreed to delay signing the contractual agreement with LaHavre until August 25 hearing is held.

REA Head Sees No Relief

Power Rates Going Up, Up and Away

BOYNE CITY--Northern Michigan REA customers will find their utility bills soaring upwards this year with no apparent end in sight.

Top 'O' Michigan General Manager Roger Westenbroek told some 600 members here Friday night that rates will be going up, primarily because of increased wholesale power rate increases.

Average costs to REA residential users have jumped some 38 percent in the last four years.

Electric company members met at Boyne City High School for their annual meeting and election of officers. Antrim County farmer David Matchett was re-elected to a three-year director post.

"We're getting a lot of criticism," Westenbroek said.

"We're getting it from the Attorney General's office right down to the local garden club."

Westenbroek then spent the next 60 minutes explaining why rates have gone up in the last two years and will probably increase next year. He offered a few solutions to the problem.

The general manager blamed the increases on cost escalation, declining earnings, higher interest rates and public distrust.

Westenbroek said the surging increases were a primary concern to Top 'O Michigan, because 8.5 percent of the 12-county population it serves in Northwest Michigan are over 65.

"We would like to think we have our ear to the ground in this business," he said. But added, it has been difficult to do so in the last few years.

"Our biggest cost has been wholesale power cost," he said.

Top 'O Michigan, like many REA cooperatives, does not generate its own electricity and must purchase it from other wholesale distributors.

He said continual fuel prices hikes have forced wholesalers to increase their rates to retailers who have in turn had to pass it on to their customers.

Besides fuel cost increases, Westenbroek said even materials used by the cooperative have jumped significantly. Electric cable, for example, that cost $108 1,000 ft. two years ago, now sells for almost $200 1,000 ft. when available. Electric pole prices have also risen from $24 to $67 a pole in the last three years.

Councilman McRae May Have Also Been City Clerk

By KEN WINTER

Call it a fluke. Call it one-upsmanship.

Either way, Charlevoix Mayor Ed Hansen's major political foe, Councilman Ralph McRae, is city clerk. At least he apparently was last week.

COUNCILMAN McRAE

The tale of McRae serving in the dual capacity began last week when Charlevoix City Councilmen failed to act on Clerk Ida Heise's resignation. Mrs. Heise has resigned to retire.

Council appointed McRae to act as clerk of the city council meeting after being unable to find a replacement for Mrs. Heise.

Mayor Hansen, who lost the GOP nomination for mayor last spring to McRae, came back in April and defeated McRae by 44 votes in a vigorous write-in campaign to retain his seat.

By law, the city council must appoint a new clerk or call a special election with 20 days after a resignation is accepted.

But at last week's council meeting, city fathers still were unable to agree on a new clerk even after forming a special task force five weeks ago to find a replacement.

Mayor Hansen claims he appointed Councilman McRae to head the committee, but McRae says it was Gerald Selph and that he was only a member of the committee.

"He had no recommendations," Hansen said about McRae.

"In the absence of this, the only thing we can do is act as a council of the whole and appoint a clerk."

The mayor was miffed that the council hadn't accepted Mrs. Heise's resignation at last week's meeting.

"These things are so elementary, I didn't understand it," Hansen said.

"But, I wasn't going to battle it out."

Hansen said he was surprised that council didn't appoint Lyle King, who is presently working under a CETA grant to update the city's maps.

"He's got a lot of experience," he added.

"This guy is available and is already there."

Hansen said he had discussed the potential appointee with everyone on the council, except McRae, before the meeting.

"It is obvious that he (McRae) is not likely to agree," Hansen said about not discussing it with McRae.

The mayor said that 10 years ago, the Republican party would have come up with a name and the council would have appointed that person.

"We have five councilmen who have been nominated on the Republican Party ticket, but none of them have been active in the party," Hansen continued.

"Ten years ago, the mayor, as head of the local party, would have made the recommendation.

Councilman McRae says Mrs. Heise's replacement wasn't named last week because the city didn't have any prospects.

"We had asked to have the job advertised, but I never saw any," McRae said.

"King's name had never been brought up to me."

McRae said the city clerk's position was one of the most important city offices and that they needed to have someone with bookkeeping experience.

"It's comparable with the city administrator's job," he said.

"I don't like the way people are being hired.

"They bring these things up and don't give us any previous information."

City Attorney Don Berlage says he thinks McRae is technically city clerk, but he is not sure.

Gilbert Gets Grant

Local resident Edith Gilbert has received a grant of $450 for the Michigan Council of Arts to help pay for the preparation of a booklet on Charlevoix as a resort community.

The grant must be matched by local contributions.

Plans call for printing 1,000 copies of the booklet, profits from which will go to the Arts Council. The booklet will consist of reprints of articles about Charlevoix written by Mrs. Gilbert which appeared in the Detroit Free Press, and other new material.

According to Mrs. Gilbert, the booklet will concentrate on the era of the 1920's when Charlevoix was at its peak as a resort community. "Much has been written about Charlevoix in its early days, but this period has been neglected," Mrs. Gilbert says.

Messy Problem

I wish very much to thank the party who called and complained about the mess at the Joe Arvilla place, which is adjacent to my property. In fact, it's right in my back yard. I'm happy I'm not alone, I have done my utmost to have it cleaned up for the past four months. Repeated calls to all officials have given me promises and promises and no results. As yet, no results and I'm getting tired of looking at that mess, every day. In fact, people are calling me and asking me how much I charge to use my dump to put their trash in. We are on Oak St. pride ourselves in keeping the name of Charlevoix, the beautiful, and I wonder how long any city official would stand having this mess next to their place. Hope something is done soon, at least before winter.

Bridge Problem

Hello, it is 6:30 p.m. and I'm on my way to work, crossing the bridge, heading north, I work at the Weathervane Inn, and there was a sailboat in the channel. The sailboat signaled to open the bridge, and the bridge operator signaled the sailboat. He put the gates down, changed the lights and didn't look for pedestrians. There was a lady besides myself. He brings the bridge up, and this elderly lady was in the center and he opened it. She ran down fell and had another person not been watching to pull her out when she had fallen, her legs would have been smashed. Fortunately she got up and was all right. Then I went over and talked to the bridge operator and all he had to say was that he didn't see her, he was busy looking at the traffic of boats. I think this is really bad. What would have happened if nobody would have been there to pull the lady away? If nobody would have seen what was happening? Of if it would have been dark? Somebody could have gotten killed. I think something should be done to make sure that this doesn't happen again. I'm glad to see that the Courier has this Hotline going so things like this can be said. My name is Joe Thomure of Charlevoix, please print this.

Dear Editor

The members of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, Flotilla 16-2 of Charlevoix wish to thank the Charlevoix Yacht Club for the opportunity of presenting the summer sailing course of the 'Principles of Safe Sailing (seven lessons) to the people of this aren. It was because the Yacht Club made available their club house (the old depot building) and the puffer class sail boats that we were able to provide, at cost, one of the most successful training sessions I've ever observed.

We also wish to thank your paper for printing the course schedules, this provided excellent advance notice to those interested parties.

Charlevoix is a water-sport oriented community and as such needs a continuing program of basic training services. It is our pleasure to commit the Coast Guard Auxiliary to that end in the cooperation with the Charlevoix Yacht Club or any other group with similiar aims.

The prize-winning photography of 18-year-old James Sundberg of Charlevoix is featured in the display of 1975 Scholastic/Kodak Photo Awards winners at the Kodak Photo Gallery, 1133 Avenue of the Americas (at 43rd Street), New York, N.Y., August 19 - October 25.

Sundberg, who lives at 1306 Bridge Street, is a June graduate of Charlevoix High School. He earned a place in the annual presentation by winning a $20 Honor Award in the nationwide high school photo competition sponsored by Eastman Kodak Company and conducted by Scholastic Magazines, Inc.

"I saw him out in the field behind my friend's house," Sundberg recalls. "The only planning involved was that I said "Just go as fast as you can!' "

School yearbook photographer during his senior year, Sundberg still likes to spend "the whole day in the darkroom" when he can. He'll major in Fine Arts at Central Michigan University this fall.

After graduation, he would like to attend a San Francisco film school and eventually work in television production in Switzerland.

Busy as a Bee

By PEG OHLE

Local beekeepers are "harvesting" their crop.

The golden honey that has been produced through one of nature's most wondrous systems is being taken from the hives, extracted from the combs and canned for later sale and consumption.

Michigan ranks 13th among the 50 states in honey production. In 1974 the State produced over five million pounds of high quality huney with a cash value of $2,400,000. It took 113,000 colonies (hives) of bees to make this crop.

While Charlevoix County is not a large beekeeping county, there are approximately 30 beekeepers who produce honey commercially from about 1,000 hives.

One of these beekeepers is Frank Hrushka of Boyne Falls, former president of the National Beekeepers Association.

At one time Hrushka had as many as 500 hives of bees, but now that he is approaching retirement age he has reduced his apiary to 160 hives. Last year, when he had 257 hives, he sold about 63,000 pounds of honey to packers.

Wax Combs

Honey is produced in wax combs which have been built by the bees themselves. The wax exudes from between the abdominal segments of the bee, is scraped off by the hind legs and passed to the front legs. Then it is thoroughly chewed by the bees before being molded into the cells of the honeycombs.

The honey itself is made of nectar gathered from various types of flowers. It is deposited in the honeycombs by the bees for the purpose of feeding their young but there is plenty of "excess" honey which can be extracted and sold for human consumption.

Domestic honey is produced in box-like hives in which are placed several wooden frames that the bees use to build their combs. While some honey is sold right in the comb, most of it is sold in liquid form after it has been extracted from the comb by a centrifugal furce machine.

Taking honeycombs out of the hives is a job for those who know how. Beekeepers wear a mesh face protector, long gloves and other protective clothing to ward off angry bees and use a "smoker" to chase them away.

Bee Colooles

A colony of bees is made up of three different types of "ceitizens." Each one has a queen which cnn lay up to 1,500 eggs a day. This is her full tume job. Workers feed the young, secrete beeswax, gather nectar and process it into honey. Each lives six to seven weeks during the honey-making season. A strong colony uf bees can have 65,000 workers.

Drones, the male bees, range from just a few to several hundred in a hive. Only one mates with the queen, then he dies. The rest simply wait fur another queen, but the queesi may live up to five years and the drone only about 90 days. A queen mates only before she starts to lay and can then fertilize eggs throughout her life.

It is the worker bees that sting. The sting of a honey bee has small barbs like a porcupine quill that prevent its being withdrawn. After the bee stings and tries to fly away, the hind part of its abdomen is torn off and the bee dies of this injury, so the stinging bee does not experience its expected life span.

Bees are not only useful for the production of honey. The pollination role of bees is indispensable to many important crops. In Michigan, bees have been used to pulinate apples, cherries, pears, raspberries, strawberries, cantaloups, squash, pumpkins, clovers and alfalfa, plus seed crops of radishes, onions, cabbage, carrots, flowers and other packaged garden seeds.

Bee Value

According to the Agricultural Experiment Station of Michignn State University, the total value of bee pollinntion in Michigun for commercinl fruit and vegetable crops is estimated at about $100 million. In addition, honey bees and native bees account for berry and seed production of wild shrubs and flowers.

There were no honey bees in North Amerlcn when the first European settlers arrived. In fact, the pioneers were able to grow their familiar Europenn crops for more than 50 years before honey bees were introduced to the New World in the 17th Century. This was because an abundance of native insects was able to handle the pollinating task. However, many nf these native pollinators have become greatly reduced in numbers as forests have been logged and meadows plowed. In their place, the honey bee does a remarkably efficient job.

Marl Closes Local Beaches

By PEG OHLE

The water culprit turned out to be harmless.

That's what the District 3 Health Department reports about the foreign matter found recently in water along Charlevoix's bathing beaches and other beaches on the lake.

It was identified as algae combined with some fungus and particles of marl. Marl is the white clay-like substance found many places on the lake shore. It is the material that young children play with to mold into cups and plates and statues. It is also the material that they like to cover themselves with to look like "the man from Mars."

Identification of the material was made by microscopic examination and chemical analysis by Dr. John Gannon and other research biologists at the Douglas Lake Biological Station at the request of the Health Department.

According to Dean Mikulski, Health Department Sanitarian, solving the mystery was a complex problem with help from the Department of Natural Resources, the Water Resources Commission, the State Health Department and others.

Water samples showed the coliform bacteria cnunt to be well within accepted standards for bathing beaches and surface water body contact, so it was decided that the problem had to be some natural phenomennn.

After learning that the Top O' Michigan power plant was having trouble with its lake water intake system, Mikulski and Dan Darnell of the Water Resources Commission went there to take samples of the material that was clogging the pipes. It was these samples that were taken to Douglas Lake.

In its dried form the material looked like tissue paper, according to Mikulski.

Gannon explained that marl is formed every year in hard water lakes like Lake Charlevoix. High water temperatures and enrichment materials with carbon dioxide and bicarbonate furm marl participate through photosynthesis.

Marl is riled up by winds and other lake activity. It can also be blown off rocks and other shoreline protrusions. Mikulski says there is a possibility that dredging in the Pine River Channel, recently completed, could have added to the problem by disturbing the lake bottom.

Kindergarteners Get Bus Introduction

By FRAN MARTIN

Each kindergarten students residing in the rural areas of the Charlevoix School District will meet his bus driver and be given an opportunity to explore the bus he will be riding when school opens next month.

Charlevoix bus drivers will make their regular rounds visiting the home of each kindergarten child in the rural areas during the morning of Thursday, Aug. 28, to meet the new student. The driver will be prepared to answer any questions the child might have and to tell him what time to expect the bus to arrive the first day of school and where he should wait for the bus.

Supt. James A. McKinmy of the Charlevoix schools explained that this was being done to help each child overcome any fears he might have about riding the bus to school.

McKinmy said kindergarten students experience many new and exciting activities when they go to school for the first time. This introduction to the driver and the school bus will help the students to be prepared to be comfortable on the bus.

McKinmy added that these early experiences in school contribute to the student's attitude toward school for many years. The personnel and the board of education of the Charlevoix public schools are attempting to help each child have a very positive and beneficial experience during his school years. The early introduction to buses is one of these activities to help each child.

Parents of the children who expect to ride the bus to school are encouraged to be at home during the morning of Aug. 28 to meet the bus and driver. The driver will come to each child's home to discuss with the child and parent when and where they can expect the bus to arrive.

Charlevoix County Area Building Up Despite Shaky Economic Conditions

How much have Charlevoix County homeowners been spending recently for alteration, improvements, maintenance and repairs to their property?

According to the latest government reports, much more than usual. Their expenditures in the past year were about 14 percent larger than in 1973, the preliminary figures indicate.

An estimated $2,359,000 was spent locally for such refurbishing, it is estimated, based upon the survey of residential porperties in the regional area.

For the average housing unit in Charlevoix County, it amounted to an expenditure of $411, compared with $361 previously. Nationally, the average was $403 per unit.

The regionnl data was compiled by the Department of Commerce by means of a sampling survey covering all parts of the country.

It shows that the chief outlay, in most cases, was for additions, alterations and other improvements. This came to $12.6 billion, equivalent to 60 percent of the overall total.

The remainder, $8.6 billion, went for maintennance and general upkeep. Painting was the biggest item, by far, in this category. Next in order were plumbing, roofing, heating, air conditioning and general repairs.

In Charlevoix County, the expenditure for improvement ran to approximately $1,415,000 and for maintenance and repairs to $944,000, it is estimated, based upon the general breakdown.

Total outlays in the United States for the upkeep and improvement of residential properties reached a record $21.1 billion in the year, reports the commerce Department. It compares with $18.5 billion in 1973.

For more and more families, the goal of acquiring a new home has had to be put aside for the present because of high prices and an unsettled economy.

The result is that many of them, who would normally have been moving into new homes, have decided to stay where they are and do some remodeling and improving uf their present properties.

The $2,359,000 outlay by Charlevoix County homeowners is indicative uf the trend. Most of this expenditure went to local mechanics and to building supplies dealers.

11 Attend Olympics

Eleven Charlevoix residents were among the more than 30 who were in Mt. Pleasant Thursday to assist with the opening day duties of the fourth annual International Special Olympics.

The Petoskey chapter of the Pioneer Club of America composed of Michigun Bell Western Electric organized the volunteers according to Mrs. Clarence Rabach, former president and public information chairman.

Making the all-day trip were Mrs. Robert Miller, Mr and Mrs. Robert Bergmann, Mrs. Rabach, Mrs. Charles Carey, Molly Rozinski, Mrs. Walter Hufford, Georgia Lask, Janet Mancewelh, Chris Carey and Mrs. Michael Raecke.

Others in the group of 32 were from Petoskey.

This group was assigned to dormitories to which the handicapped youngsters and their adult coaches were assigned

Athletic Club Still Go

The proposed Charlevoix Athletic Club is not dead.

In a letter to the prospective members, William R. Schlemap states that architectural plans have been drawn and construction cost estimates obtained.

Facilities in the proposed club are listed as four tennis courts, four hand ball courts, a 25-meter Olympic swimming pool and one-meter diving board, a pro shop, locker rooms, meeting rooms and exercise rooms.

Membership fees are quoted in two categories: Annual family, $200. Annual single, $150 and annual junior, $75. Olympic membership, limited to 150 men and 150 women, are quoted as family, $350, and single, $250. These memberships include use of all facilities plus private lockers, saunn, whirlpool and lounge area. Persons must be 18 years of age or older to receive an Olympic membership.

Promoters of the Athletic Club say whether or not it becomes a reality depends upon whether sufficient interest is shown. "Early and substantial support will make it possible to commence construction soon with facility completion about Spring, 1976", they report.

Further information about the proposed club may be obtained by contacting William Schleman of 508 Belvedere, Charlevoix.

Council Faces Decision On Alice Street

Charlevoix City Council will be considering more than a simple lease agreement when they hold the Alice Street public hearing next Monday.

They will be deciding whether or not the city will continue the praetice of leasing public land to private enterprise.

Developers are proposing a 99-year lease for $500 a year so they can have use of the property. The city, however, would maintain easement rights for utilities and storm sewer.

Developers argued that the narrow piece of property would have little value to the city, but would improve access to their condomiums. The property has never been developed as a street.

Neighboring property owners on Alice Street, who insisted the Council hold a public hearing, claim they have been using the property as an access to Round Lake.

However, many of the Alice Street residents say their real consideration is that the city not lose the access to Round Lake.

We have no feelings about LeHavre Condominiums using the access as we would any other citizens using it.

Our concern is whether or not the Charlevoix City Council wants to make a praetice of leasing public land, especially lake access, to any private corporation for exclusive use.

We hope city council seriously considers the decision before them when mulling over the proposed lease with LeHavre.

Political Reform Comes From Grass Roots

The Michigan legislature has finally passed a political reform bill, which in the light of Watergate seems long overdue.

It is expected that Governor Milliken will sign the bill but in doing so will detail what he considers a number of serious faults with it. Last minute amendments have decreased the effect of the law to the distress of both Republieans and Democrats as well as Common Cause, a citizens lobbying group that has pushed for the bill.

Even though written by politicians, the bill goes a long way toward cleaning up politieal campaigns. However, the law will not become effective until April, 1976, so it will not govern a large part of the General Election year.

As passed, the bill requires extensive disclosure of campaign contributions by candidates for state and local offices. It puts limits on the amount any individual or family can contribute to an individual campaign. It also provides partial public funding in campaigns for governor.

Further, the bill regulates lobbyists and requires partial disclosure of money they spend on lawmakers. It requires state and local officials to disclose investments but not the amount of investments. Finally, the bill ereates a bipartisan politieal ethies commission to enforee the law and provides criminal penalties for violations.

Amendments to the bill which brought objections by Republieans include a provision allowing the transfer of politeal funds by organizations. According to Republieans, this will allow labor unions to escape ceilings on campaign contributions.

Another Republican objection is to the amendment that provides for regulation of non-partisan groups, such as the League of Women Voters, that rate candidates and provide information on election issues.

An amendment that allows lobbyists to give state lawmakers free tickets to horse racing tracks, football games and other "state-regulated industries, faeilities or other events," has also been eritieized. Although this sounds innocent enough, the amendment ensures that lawmakers will not miss out on any of the "freebies" they eurrently enjoy, such as free tickets to baseball and football games.

As one observer put it, "There are not too many industries, faeilities or events in Michigan that are not subjected to some form of state regulation, however minimal."

The parts of the bill that attraeted most attention were those seetions that require extensive disclosure of campaign contributions by candidates and make it mandatory for state and local officials to disclose investments.

In the small-town atmosphere of Charlevoix and surrounding areas, there are those, no matter how honest, like to keep some things private. Let us hope that these requirements will not deter good, honest eitizens from seeking public office.

Legion Upset with Courier

The members of the American Legion are not pleased with your method of reporting the noise problem which effects the Legions neighbors.

The Legion does have definite rules for all renters to adhere to, but they do not have control over the people themselves. No more than we can control your reporting practices.

If you had contacted the commander of the post you would have found some facts that would or should have lead you to report how strict their rental agreement is.

We are definitely concerned for our neighbors and will try to become even more severe on our renters. However, it is as always, a few give a bad impression which labels the many.

The Legion does need the rental money to cover the mortgage payments and improvements which will continue for many years.

The building has been a decided advantage to the community for a place to handle parties and receptions at an inexpensive rate.

The Legion contributes considerably to the community with free rental to deserving organizations for fund drives, and financially to many projects that are never advertised or when known are not recognized by the Courier.

We hope in th e future you will be more considerate of the 237 members, and try yourself to be a good neighbor and contribute to the betterment of the community rather than attempt to run down the people who are trying.

It is, has been, and always will be the intent of the American Legion members to give their best to the area in which they live, as they did at a more serious time in our past.

To our neighbors–Please come to us and let us discuss any problem we might be creating for you. We will definitly help.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Courier stands behind its story. As you can note in our account, Cummauder George Plumm had been contacted by the Courier. However, at the time of our interview, he apparently had not received the letter from the complaining Legion Hall neighbors. If the Legion has felt like it has been slighted by the Courier un coverage of any event, it should contact the editor. Many times it is a matter of not eulling the newspaper about an event. We are always glad to help. The Legion got its last lick in this week, it cancelled its advertising with the Courier.

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

Quite predictably, the liberal press has come out with high praise of Mrs. Ford and her mod ideas about premarital sex, teenage "affairs" and marijuana.

In a nationnl TV interview last week, the First Lady said she would not be surprised if her 18-year-old daughter admitted to having an "affair." She also opined that pre-marital sex might somehow have a salubrious effect on the nation's scandalous divorce rate.

And — If she hadn't upset enough apple carts – she said all of her progeny probably have experimented with marijuana.

It is only a little more than 700 miles from Grand Rapids to Washington, D.C., but Betty Ford has traveled many times that far from the strict Calvinist moral code of her old home town.

The Detroit Free Press has praised Mrs. Ford for a display of candor which, in truth, was quite a rarity among occupants of 1600 Pennsylvania-ave. in recent years. The former landlord at the White House was so devious you couldn't believe him if he said good morning.

But did Mrs. Ford — as First Lady — need to be so completely candid on national prime-time television about moral questions which, by rights, should be decided in the bosom of the family?

For one thing, I don't share Mrs. Ford's permissive attitude toward the young. As a parent and a former school teacher, I know how much youngsters crave guidelines and limits and I intend to supply them to my own kids.

I assure you I will be very surprised of any of my three girls ever comes home and tells me she is sleeping with one of her gentleman friends without benefit of clergy.

This is not to say my daughters do not and will not have minds of their own. We certainly disagree on basic questions from time to time, but I do not think less of them — nor do I hope they think less of me —when we do.

But I would consider myself a failure as a parent if I did not register my disapproval of those actions which I know can lead to unhappiness, including promiscuous teenage sex.

Good Lord, where has Betty Ford been hiding these many years? Is she unacquainted with the anguish parental permissiveness has caused the American family?

– The shame– yes, the shame — of unmarried motherhood. It is not "in" or "mod" or "the thing to do", as some would have us believe.

–The agony of putting an illegimate child up for adoption, for both the mother and her parents.

–The mental scarring of abortion.

–The ignominity of hnving to supply pills, diaphragms and other contraceptive devices to starry-eyed little schoolgirls who are still years away from the responsibillities that go hand in hand with adult sex.

As for pre-marital sex generally, Betty Ford is just as far from the mark. From where I sit, the "new morality" of the 60's and 70's has not resulted in better mate selection and happier marriuges. Quite the contrary. Premarital sex too often has been the forerunner of extra-marital sex and the skyrocketing divorce rate today would have been unthinkable in the years before sexual promiscuity came into vogue.

But aren't Americans happier, generally with their new sexual freedom? Haven't we cleaned the cobwebs out of the attics of sexually inhibited and the sexually deprived? As a people don't we have a healthier nttitude to sex in all of its manifestations than did our parents and grandparents?

I'm afraid not. If this were the case, why are so many of your young men and women candidates for psychiatric counseling and treatment — even before they reach the age of majority? The new morality has resulted in a kind of sexual anarchy without rules, without limits or without purpose. Is it any wonder that Mrs. Ford's youngsters, like millions of others across the country, may have sought refuge in the euphoria of drugs?

For my money, Mrs. Ford has broken faith with the parents of America. I don't pretend to know where she picked up her Jet Set morals, but I find them abhorrent.

Our kids grow up fast. We have such an awfully short time to help them adopt a system of moral values that will meet their needs as individuals and as members of society during their adult years. I want my progeny to grow up with an appreciation for the sanctity of marriage and the integrity of the family.

I do not want the mystery of love and marriage spoiled for them by casual encounters which too often lead to heartbreak, or worse, a loss of self respect.

End of sermon.

Erma Bombeck

Every once in awhile, a letter comes across my desk that makes me want to sell the HBM.

It's so honest . . . so moving . . . and face it, I couldn't improve upon it if I tried.

This one is from a reader in Richmond, Va., who was commenting on my column concerning the good stuff in life coming too late. ("When you need it you can't afford...when you can afford it, you can't enjoy it.") She writes:

"Today is my birthday. I am invited to lunch at an elite French restaurnnt and tonight I am to be wined and dined in an exclusive club.

"However, I must limp to these neat places because my sacroiliac has come down with a case of the uglies and I must be careful what I order to eat because my colon is less than a tunnel of love.

"When I was young and adorable and the kiddies were at home, my birthdays were very exciting. My mother would send word by my husband to be sure and do something and to have the children do something. The little ones would get out their crayons and make Mama a picture and their father would step by the corner drug store and buy a pink shower cap or a box of stinko bath powder, which meant hot dogs and tuna fish all the next week because of blowing the $1.98.

"I would fall apart with joy.

"Already today the mailman has brought me a spiritual bouquet card from our youngest, a nun. The middle child has announced she is doing me a picture of my childhood home which she guarantees will be completed this side of the 21st century, God willing and the creek don't rise. And sometime today, I will receive flowers or a housecoat from my son, whom I will cull long distance to thank for the gift knowing full well he hasn't the slightest idea what his wife sent me in his name. (We will refer to the gift as 'it' and the occasion as 'today' in order not to embarrass anybody.)

"Would you believe, Erma, that I want my son to draw me a moo cow? That I want my youngest to quit praying long enough to draw me one of her scribbly circles that goes around and around until it falls off the paper, and my resident artist to show promise on a piece of loose leaf paper with grape jelly on it instead of canvas and oils?

"I am also in dire need of a pink shower cap, the kind of thing nobody seems to think I need anymore, like maybe I lost my hair. As for the stinko powder, I could kill it with Right Guard. Them were they days, right?"

They were indeed . . . and through the miracle of love, will sustain you forever. . .

Doctor or Mechanic

Last week was confnsing. Both my wife and my car were laid up for repairs and I kept getting the mechanic mixed up with the doctor.

There were incredible similarities in the 2 cases. At one point I told a worried daughter her mother had a fever because there was something wrong with her thermostat. And my son just nodded when I told him the car air conditioner wasn't working because there was something wrong with its pancreas.

The mechanic told me to bring the car in early Thursday morning and he would get right at it. I could probably pick it up that evening, he said. 5 days later he hadn't touched the car. It just sat at his shop and got dirty. Apparently he liked to have it nearby to wipe greasy rags on.

–My wife entered the hospital on a Friday "for tests." The doctor thought it might take a couple of days. She was still there a week later. The doctor kept scheduling X-rays and blood tests that never came off on time because somebody forgot to tell somebody. But it was handy having her nearby so they could make sure she didn't eat anything she liked.

At least she didn't get dusty, like the car. But nobody woke the car up at 3 a.m. delivering wilted roses that had "somehow" been in the wrong hospital room for 2 days. Honest, it happened.

I usually couldn't get the mechanic on the phone. I most often talked with his assistant who might have been n recording. He always said the same thing: "I don't know. You'd better call back. Yes, I'll tell him you hate him and that I could hear you sobbing over the phone."

When I did talk to the mechanic, I never understood a thing he said. If I knew what all those queer words meant, I could fix the lousy car myself. The only message that came through clear was that several other poor owners were having the same trouble with the same model car. This was as cunforting as being told I should cheer up because I was dying of something contagious.

I only tried to phone the doctor once but It was his day off. It was olso his nurse's day off. I told the girl on the switchboard I was dying and she put me on hold.

It really wasn't necessary for me to talk to the doctor because my wife could tell me what he was saying. This is one advantage in marrying a woman instead of a car. What he wns saying was that they should take some more tests tomorrow. Which reelly meant 2 days later because the person responsible for arranging tomorrow's tests was busy trying to find a new place to hide roses.

If I ever do talk to the doctor, I am going to thmik him for starting me on a 2nd career. I am going to open a phnrmacy and sell the medicine my wife can no longer take because it makes her sick. A pill usually makes her sick a few hours after she's filled his $20 prescription nt the drugstore in the doctor's waiting room. So he says don't take anymore of those pills, buy some new ones. I now own 5 million pills which I am willing to sell at a loss. Each pill is accompnnied by a sworn testimonial from my wife. She guarantees it will make you sick.

I trust the mechanic and the doctor renlize all this is reelly good-nnturel kidding, hn ha. I am only writing about them so as to hnve an excuse to say something romantic to my wife.

– I want to say publicly thot I missed her a lot more than I nnissed the car. Of course, I own a 2nd car...

Meet Charlevoix

Meet Ruth Behrens

Sunday, September 14, has been proclaimed "Senior Citizens' Day" in Charlevoix County by the Board of Commissioners. This week the Courier talks with Mrs. Ruth Behrens of Boyne City, chairman of the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging.

COURIER: Why was September 14 proclaimed "Senior Citizens' Day?"

BEHRENS: That is the date of the second annual Senior Citizens' picnic sponsored by the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging.

COURIER: Tell us something about the picnic.

BEHRENS: It is for all persons in Charlevoix County 60 years of age and older. It will be held at Whiting Park beginning at 1 o'clock. We will serve lunch from 1 until 2:30, then we will have entertainment from 2:30 until 5 o'clock. There will be fun and fellowship for everyone all day long.

COURIER: Who is going to entertain?

BEHRENS: The Drifters and the Barbershoppers will be there and the Senior Citizens' groups from Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan will also have programs.

COURIER: What other activities will there be?

BEHRENS: We will probably have bingo and card games, but mostly it's just a fun get-together for Senior Citizens from all over the County.

COURIER: How many people did you have at last year's picnic?

BEHRENS: We had about 300 people and this year we will probably have more.

COURIER: Huw do you finance it?

BEHRENS: We have asked local service clubs and industry for contributions and we will have a box for voluntary contributions. However, we still need more money to do a good job.

COURIER: Where should people wanting to make a contribution send it?

BEHRENS: Mrs. Mary Geiken, 510 Meadow Lane, Charlevoix, is treasurer of the Commission on Aging. She will be happy to accept any contributions.

COURIER: What about transportion?

BEHRENS: We will furnish transportation for anyone needing it. As yet we haven't set up transportation centers in each town but we will do it soon and it will be well publicized. We will also use the Commission on Aging buses.

COURIER: What are the ongoing activities of the Commission on Aging?

BEHRENS: Our major activities are the transportation program in which we make available our two mini-buses to Senior Citizens in all parts of the County who need transportation from one town to another, or within town, for doctor's, dentist's or other appointments, or just shopping or visiting. We have a set bus schedule each day of the week and all a person has to do is call for a reservation. The bus picks people up at their homes. Reservations may be made by calling East Jordan, 536-9221 between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. We also serve lunches to Senior Citizens in Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan, two days a week in Boyne City and Charlevoix and one day a week in East Jordan. Transportation is furnished to the lunches. Information about time and place may be obtained by calling the above East Jordan number. There is no charge for the meals and all Senior Citizens are welcome. However, we do have canisters for voluntary contributions by those who wisit to give toward cost of the meals.

COURIER: What exactly is the Commission on Aging?

BEHRENS: It is a group of local citizens appointed by the Charlevoix County Board of Counnissioners to render services to Senior Citizens under the Older Americans Act. They are a grand crew.

COURIER: Who are they?

BEHRENS: We have Florence Wojan and Mary Geiken from Charlevoix, Thora Kotowich, Mildred Bathke, Vern Whiteford and Melvin Niswander from East Jordan, Ira L. Davis, Martin Paul and Glenn Pipenburg from Boyne City, and Judy Gigante, who was recently appointed, from Boyne Falls. Art Saworski from Boyne Falls is Director uf the Commission.

COURIER: How did you become interested in working with Senior Citizens?

BEHRENS: I retired after working as a cost accountant and supervisor for a large company in Middletown, Ohio. My husband and I moved to Boyne City because our son lived here then. Because I feel that Senior Citizens have been u neglected part of our society, I became interested in the Friendship Center, the Senior Citizens group in Boyne City, and was president of that group when I was appointed to the County Commissinn on Aging. I am still Program Chairman of the Friendship Center but that is the only other organization I belong to. I devote all my spare time to working with Senior Citizens. I am happy to be of servlee to the community.

"Saluting the Past, Charlevoix Looks to the Future"

The social customs and mores of a society often reflect the structure and development which that particular society has reached. And, like society, they change with the times.

An early American custom, which has since been lost to us, was known as "bundling," "tarrying," or "queesting." In the early history of the colonies, New England was faced with some disaccommodations due to the barrenness nf that part of the country. This fact, coupled with some old world traditions insured a practice that probably resulted in populating early America.

The custom of bundling was practiced among our people when there was a scarcity of beds, where, on occasion, a husband would frequently permit travelers to bundle with their daughters. Bundling was also condoned as a courting custom for the reason that young men, travelling far to see their sweetheart, could find better repose in bed than to sit up all night. The "need" to save firewood was often furnished as an added argument for it is well known that two persons can keep warm in bed easier than one.

This custom was not confined to courting couples alone. This courtesy was often extended to traveling army officers, traveling salesmen, the minister, and the doctor. It was not unusual for whole families when visiting to sleep together with as many people as possible climbing into bed for the night.

People who practiced bundling left a candle burning in their window, or a special window shade arrangement to inform the traveler of available accommodations. A painted blue gate is a signal that a farmer has a daughter uf marriageable age.

As you can imagine there was a bit of controversy involving the question of morals. As people often pointed out, a gentleman is a gentleman as a lady is a lady. What could be safer than to have their daughter courted under the watchful eyes of the parents? Bundling has its advantages and disadvantages. Accidents here, as with automobiles, do not "happen" – they are caused; and with about the same kind of "drivers and passengers."

Bob Miles Makes Bicentennial Display

—By PEG OHLE

Bob Miles of Charlevoix is a man who thinks ahead

About three years ago Miles decided that he personally would do something to help celebrate the nation's Bicentennial. His interest in rocks and stones, especially Petoskey stones led to the conception of a tower of American history made of polished Petoskey stones.

The Bicentennial Tower is now completed, 200 "stories", eight and a half feet tall, weighing about 235 pounds. "How many Petoskey stones?" Miles says everyone asks him that question but he hasn't the slightest idea.

Each story of the tower represents one year in the history of the United States. The outer square of the base represents the country before the coming of the white man. The inner square of the base is made of 13 sections, each representing one of the original colonies. On each corner of this square the elevated letters, "S", "W", "P" and "A" indicate the four basic freedoms of Speech, Worship, Press and Assembly.

The first story of the tower represents the year 1776, marking the Declaration of Independence and the beginning of the period under the Confederation.

The next four stories represent the years 1787 to 1790, during which the 13 colonies became a nation.

Then the stories build to the year 1812, marking the new nation's first engagement in war.

The tower builds to the years 1861 to 1865, when the nation was almost torn apart by civil war, then on to 1876 when the states, united, observed their Centennial.

The stories then rise to the year 1898, the Spanish-American war and, according to Miles, "the country's first taste of Imperialism."

The next marker on the tower is 19 stories higher, 1917 and 1918, when the United States was engaged in the First World War and catapulted into a world power.

Miles further explains this period of history.

"A minor economic recession followed, shown on the Bicentennial Tower by the use of dark Petoskey stones. A quick recovery ushered in the roaring twenties, shown on the tower by the use of light-colored stones. The crash of 1929 and the depression that followed is shown by the sudden change to dark stones and, later, mixed shades of stones."

Upward the tower goes to the period 1941 to 1945, marking World War II, which "pulled the United States out of a long depression and pushed the world into the Nuclear Age."

Korean War

Upward again the stones build to the years 1950 to 1953, indicating the Korean engagement and the first military effort by the United States to protect the free world from Communism.

And, almost at the top, is a bulge-type section showing the years 1965 to 1973, the years of the Vietnam war. It is bulge-shaped, Miles says, "because we were slow in getting into the war and slow in getting out of it."

The single story at the top marks 1976 and the Bicentennial of the nation.

The obelisk section at the top of the tower is explained by Miles, "Since George Washington tried to point the way for the young nation, a miniature Washington Monument stands atop the Bicentennial Tower, pointing again to the future."

The plaque at the base of the tower is made of shipwreck wood taken from Lake Michigan and all the Petoskey stones in the tower were picked up by Miles along the lake shore from Norwood to Petoskey, but mostly from the Charlevoix area.

Preparation

Miles not only found all the stones but he cut and hand polished them himself. He says that it takes about 20 minutes to polish each stone and another two days to tumble them.

The Bicentennial Tower was first shown to the public last Saturday at the Petoskey Arts and Crafts Show in the Giantway parking lot. It will be the featured attraction at the Grand Traverse Area Rock and Mineral Show at Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City October 3, 4 and 5.

When displaying the tower, Miles also shows a drawing of it, indicating the period of history each section illustrates and noting the presidents during the periods.

'A Piece of Pie'

The ringing of the telephone echoes through the nearly abandoned Charlevoix railroad depot. Jim Lutz lifts the receiver and is greeted by a familiar voice from Ellsworth telling him that a train is due in twenty minutes. Spurred to action by this information, Lutz walks down the track to where the Pine River connects Round Lake on Lake Charlevoix. Lutz, a 25-year veteran of the Chessie System, is the tender of the ancient railroad bridge that sits incongruously parallel to the river it is meant to cross. As the Petoskey-bound train approaches, Lutz engages an electric motor which causes the bridge to ellng shut. The train passes safely across the span, just as trains have been doing daily since 1892. Jim Lutz opens the bridge, wryly comments, "a piece of cake," and heads back to the depot there to await the next call.

Kentucky Fried Chicken Takes State Runner-up

By JERRY ROSEVEAR

Village Inn Pancake House Restaurant of Battle Creek walked off with the Women's Class C (ASA) state slo-pitch championship Sunday but not before putting down a strong bid for the title from state runner-up Kentucky Fried Chicken of Charlevoix.

Kentucky Fried opened the day with a lopsided loss at the hands of the eventual champs (18-3) but then came back to beat First National Bank of Petoskey 11-6 for the right to go back into the finals.

The Charlevoix team forced a final game in the double elimination event by defeating Village Inn 7-3 but in the last contest ran out of gas as the Battle Creek squad walked off with a 16-0 verdict.

Actually all three northern Michigan squads in the 12 team event did well as First National Bank finished third while McArt's Mart won its first two games before dropping two one run decisions--one to Kentucky Fried and the other to National Bank.

Kentucky Fried

Kentucky Fried opened with a 17-9 win over Knape & Vogt of Grand Rapids as Pam Parsel was the winning hurler on a 10 hitter. Kentuckey Fried got 12 hits with Jodi Alger and Camile Malpeli getting three each. Pam Parsel had a home run with two runners on.

Next, the Charlevoix team whipped Eberhard's of Lansing 12-2, scoring nine times in the fourth inning. Parsel again got the win with Malpeli getting two hits.

The third win was over McArt's 3-2 with the winning run coming in the last of the seventh as Sherri Morris scored on a hit by Faye Alger. Ann Willis had three hits while Jodi Alger, Malpeli and Faye Alger had two hits.

Kentucky then was whipped by Village Inn 18-3 Sunday morning as the winners broke with eight runs in the first two innings. Jan Reierson got the win while Parsel was the losing hurler. For Kentucky Fried, Tori Alger had two hits.

Kentucky then beat National Bank 11-6 with Parsel again the winning hurler on a 12 hitter with Ann Willis getting three safeties while Jodi Alger, Cheryl Pence and Sherry Niswander had two.

In the first game of the finals Kentucky scored three times in the second inning on Village Inn and got four more markers in the third helped by a two run homer from Ann Willis which proved to be the final run of the day for Charlevoix. Parsel got the win allowing just six hits while Kentucky Fried got 12 off Reierson with Malpeli, Cheryl Pence, Parsel and Toni Felter getting two each.

In the final and deciding contest Village Inn broke for the state title with a three run second then got four markers in the third and five in the fourth enroute to the 16-0. Winning hurler was Reierson while Parsel who played all day with a bum ankle, took the loss with Jodi Alger in relief.

Kentucky Fried had only five hits in the game while only one runner got as far as third base. Phyliss Grabel had two triples for Village Inn.

Reminiscent of last spring when a group of citizens rallied together to save the Charlevoix High School tennis team from extinction, a new group of citizens have initiated a drive to build a large tennis wall for the community.

A tennis wall or backboard as I prepfer to call it, is really a must for any community which hopes to fully develop tennis. It is an excellent vice for teaching beginners the fundamental strokes. Even more important, using the tennis wall is a tremendous way for players at all levels to practice their strengths and weaknesses.

When the public courts were built in 1973, many citizens expressed a desire for a tennis wall to be built at the same time. Now, over two years later nothing further has been done.

Dave and Sue Fowler have decided to remedy the situation. With the cooperation of other Charlevoix residents, the Fowlers have already received various commitments from local businesses.

Medusa Cement, Freedman Arteraft, Charlevoix Co-op, and Charlevoix Redi-Mix have all pledged materials and labor either for free or at cost.

Several sites have been considered, but at this time the best suited appears to be at the present high school. The exact location is at the north end of the football field almost directly behind Andy's Tire World. A tennis wall at this location could be advantageous for several reasons.

First, the high school could use the tennis wall during the school year stimulating interest in tennis. Second, residents on the south side of town would have a place nearby to hit tennis balls. Finally, and most important, there simply are not that many other good sites available.

Fowler proposes that the initial wall be constructed of wood rather than concrete. While I believe that a concrete wall is more desirable than wood (primarily because it is more durable), I can agree with Fowler's reasoning.

One of the primary goals of the tennis wall is "to stir up more interest and create pressure for more public courts." If more public courts are built within the next few years, Fowler believes that enough land should be included so that the backboard can eventually be transferred to the courts.

Obviously, it would be easy to move a wooden tennis wall but virtually impossible to move a concrete one.

The plans for the backboard are nearing completion. $1200 is still needed to make this great improvement to our tennis community a reality.

The Fowlers have opened up an account under the title Tennis Wall. Anyone wishing to make a donation to the

Wright Takes Tourney

The final tennis tournaments of the season were held at the city courts during the past week according to Dwight Boss, city recreation director.

In the finals played Sunday afternoon, the results of the men's and women's tournaments were as follows;

In the men's doubles, Don Olson and Mike Terry teamed up to win over Bob Elcoate and Lyle Jensen 6-4; 6-2.

"COLOR TV AND APPLIANCE GIANTS OF THE NORTH"

Two Wheel Traveler by Jon Hendra

There is as much art to being a good passenger as there is to being a skilled rider.

The passenger has every bit as much to do with the safe and comfortable operation of the machine as does the guy with his hands on the grips. It is important that the two on the bike work together. Without cooperation, riding isn't pleasurable; it's down right dangerous.

The responsibility of the rider lies in training the passenger to react correctly in various circumstances. Beyond this, the rider has the duty of riding in a predictable manner, striving for extreme smoothness in all maneuvers.

Things like hard braking and acceleration cause the uninitiated passenger's head to whip back and forth. This does not instill great confidence nor build a love of biking. It makes people uneasy, frightened, and if they smash their nose against the back of your helmet it can also make them bleed a lot.

The ideal passenger does nothing to affect the movement of the motorcycle. Absolutely nothing. The passenger is baggage and like properly secured baggage should stay put.

Tell your passenger to sit on the seat and put his feet on the pegs and to keep them on the pegs. Tell him to hang on to the grab rail, seat strap, or yourself; which ever is mutually comfortable.

Passengers are most often told to "lean with the bike". This is incorrect since what is really meant is "don't lean opposite the bike's lean."

Again think of baggage. When it is tied down it becomes part of the bike. A passenger should be as much a part of the machine as any other object that is carried. The point behind this is that it's the rider's responsibility to operate the motorcycle. He must adjust for differences in loading in the way he rides, and if his baggage is sloshing around behind him it makes it awfully hard.

Imagine leaning into a corner and having your load slide down to the low side of the bike. It's good for a couple extra heart beats. You can get the same thrilling effect by having a passenger that likes to lean.

The passenger's head, buttocks, and rear wheel of the bike should be in the same plane continually. When viewed from the back, these three should always be three points on a straight line, no matter what the attitude of the bike.

Relaxation for the passenger comes as confidences in the pilots grows.

Relaxation brings pleasure and safety through easier cooperation.

Two-up riding is fun only with cooperation based on mutual confidence and respect between the rider and passenger.

King Burger Captures League

The King Burger nine captured the Senior League title in the play-off Saturday, defeating the first round winners, Haggard Plumbing by a score of 6-5.

Darrin VanLoo was the winning pitcher for the Burgers allowing 9 hits. Scott Morgan, the losing pitcher, gave up two hits.

Greg Loper hit a homer with two aboard and VanLoo collected the only other hit for the victors.

On Thursday night, Haggard Plubing defeated King Burger 2-1 to force Saturday's play-off game. Jerry Sladek, as the winning pitcher, gave up three hits as did the losing pitcher Pat Puul.

Earlier in the week, Way Builders defeated Olsen 25-18 with Bob Warner the winning pitcher. Joe Herriman was the losing pitcher. Steve Mielke had a home run for the losers.

On Tuesdny, Haggard Plumbing defeated King Burger 21-8 with Jerry Saldek posting the victory. Gilbert Noirot was the losing pitcher. Sladek and Mark White hit homers for the victors.

On Monday Way Builders dumped Olsen 3-2 behind the two-hit pitching of Gene Morrison. Jim Alger allowed three hits as the losing pitcher.

Fisherman's Island Bought By State

By PEG OHLE

The Department of Natural Resources last week announced the acquisition of the 3.92 acre Fisherman's Island tract.

Fisherman's Island is located just off the Lake Michigan shore in northern Norwood Township. It will be added to the nearby mainland acreage already owned by the state for the proposed Fisherman's Island State Park.

Jim Hane of the DNR told the Courier that Fisherman's Island is a wild fowl nesting area and when the park is completed the island will be used only for nature trails and study.

Ted Tucker of the Land Division of the DNR also reports that negotiations with the Medusa Cement Company for the exchange of 20 acres of State land are almost completed and will probably be announced within the next three weeks. The Medusa property adjoins the State land, and it, also, will be incorporated in the proposed park.

Negotiations are also under way by the DNR to purchase 392 more acres of nearby private property for park use. It is expected that the closing of this deal will be announced shortly through the office of Senator Robert P. Griffin.

(Late last week Senator Griffin and Congressman Philip E. Ruppe jointly announced a $827,500 grant from the federal government to help develop the park. The grant was awarded by the Interior Depnrtment's Bureau of Outdoor Recreation and will be used to purchase 1,521 acres.)

Fisherman's Island State Park will eventually consist of 3,312 contiguous acres of land in Charlevoix and Norwood Townships. The State must still acquire some 1,159 more acres to complete its plans, but this will be done gradually as the land becomes available and funding is possible, according to Tucker.

Plans for the proposed park were presented nt two public hearings last year, the second one in December, and very little opposition to the plans was raised.

No date for the completion of the park has been set but it is expected that development will take place as funding allows over a 10 year period.

Information distributed by the DNR at last year's hearings shows that the proposed park will provide three different types of camping facilities – 100 rustic environment sites, 30 primitive walk-in sites and one four-unit organiztion campground.

There will be a day-use swimming beach with a 100 car parking area and picnic facilities located well away from the beach itself.

A large part of the shoreline area will be devoted to walking for pleasure, picnicking and unsupervised swimming. This is to be left in its natural condition, repairing maintenance only to keep the area clean and usable.

All of the State-owned land presently designated as the Norwood Unit of the Jordan River State Forest, as well as any other lands which may be purchased at the park's far south end, are proposed for dedication.

Emmet Fair Underway

The Emmet County Bicentennial Fair is now in progress at the Fair Grounds in Petoskey. Activities began Monday and will continue through Saturday.

Everyone in period dress – bonnets, long skirts, bib overalls, straw hats, etc. – will be admitted to the grandstand free today (Wednesday) and Friday. Also today, all Senior Citizens will be admitted free regardless of dress but it is hoped they will join in the dress-up fun.

As always at county fairs there will be farm animals, displays of 4-H and Extension Club wares, a carnival and other entertainment.

Sunday Sharpe and Rex Allen Junior and The Country Travelers will appear at two shows Saturday evening and Danny Fleenor's Hurricane Hell Drivers will give two performances Thursday evening.

On the schedule today are livestoek judging, a 4-H Showmanship contest and harness races in the evening. Tomorrow, Thursday, is Kids' Day, with all rides half price. On Friday there will be a 4-H Horse Show and Lightweight and Heavyweight Pulling contests. On Saturday morning the Open Class Horse Show takes place.

LeHavre Keeps Maritime Flavor

A long-time maritime tradition continues as LeHavre Condominiums near completion on the site of historic Hamilton Boatyard in Round Lake.

From as far back as 1857 when Ohioan M.J. Stockman began his fishing business, the Round Lake location has played a visible role in local nautical history.

Developers Robert Collins and Jim Craig have nearly completed a 25-unit maritime-styled condominium on Belvedere Avenue to keep in step with the harbor it overlooks.

The maritime setting is reflected in the weathered shake shingle exterior and continues all the way through to the custom front doors fitted with port holes as windows. Even the outside and hallway lights illuminating the building come from the S.S. United States. LeHavre, itself, means The Harbor.

To further enhance the boatyard image, an old ship's bell and three large anchors are being used as a part of the landscaping decor.

"Retention of the Yacht Club atmosphere, as well as LeHavre's small size, make it a unique and attractive vacation spot," the developers say.

All 11 units of the first phase are occupied, as the developers continue construction of 14 more units that will combine to form an "U"-shape around n pool and rebuilt docks.

"We are looking forward to a good season this summer and fall," says Collins about unit sales.

"We are naturally optimistic about the sales af LeHavre's Phase II units, as Phase I was 90 percent sold before the project was completed."

Collins says he thought LeHavre's suceess was largely beeause of the Hamilton Boatyard site.

"We have an amenity which very few condominiums have...boatdocks," he says.

"Boating is a common interest of most of our owners."

The Hamilton name dates back to the turn of the Century when Sam Hamilton went into the boat business renting sailboats and row boats when resorters wanted to go Intu town.

Originally, Hamilton had only 40 feet of waterfront property to establish Charlevoix's first boatyard.

After Hamilton's death, his son, Ray S. Hamilton, took over the'tradition of servicing some of the Great Lakes' largest sailing vessels.

In 1960, when grandson Robert Hamilton took charge, the Hamilton Boatyard was almost a "household" word among skippers.

Old and distinguished Charlevoix resort names, such as John P. Wilson, Tom Adler, Bill Witherspoun, Fred Schaub and Henry Stein, are among many families who have been using the boatyard.

More recently, the boatyard has been the traditional stopping place for some of the Mackinac Island race boats.

All in keeping with the maritime savor of LeHavre Condominiums.

Couple Exchange Vows

A candlelight service at Zion Lutheran Church in Petoskey on August 9, united Gay Kimble and Charles C. Kiteley in marriage. Rev. Eugene Schooler performed the double ring ceremony before 200 guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome H. Kimble are parents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Kiteley are the groom's parents. Both families are from Charlevoix.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, approached the altar in a white organza gown fashioned with a high neckline edged with lace. Ruffles accented the yoke and the butterfly sleeves. Dainty appliqued satin and lace flowers tipped with pink accented the Empire waistline and ruffled hem. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a Juliet cap with tiny pink bows. She carried an arm bouquet of daisies and miniature pink roses.

Mrs. Stanley Gartlie, organist, played traditional wedding music, and Merrill Gowman sang Theme from Love Story, with words revised by Mr. Gowman, and chant of the Lord's Prayer.

Cindy Kiteley, sister of the groom served as maid of honor. She wore a pink and white print gown fashioned with an empire waist. Bridesmaids were Denise Cooper and Marla Wujan. They wore pink dotted swiss gowns with Empire waists and ruffles at the neck and cap sleeves. All the attendants carried bouquets of pink and white daisies.

Best man was Dave Marcinchek. Groomsmen were Dave Siegrist and Mike Kiteley. Serving as ushers were Gene Drost, John Scharenbroch and David Kimble.

The bride's parents hosted a reception following the ceremony at the American Legion Hall in Charlevoix. The bride's mother wore a blue and pink chiffon gown and the groom's mother wore a blue chiffon gown. Both wore white accessories.

Following a wedding trip to Wisconsin and Illinois, the couple will be at home in Charlevoix.

The bride is employed at the First State Bank of Charlevoix, and the groom is employed on his father's farm. (Photo by Mick Charlton Smith)

City Council Delays Alice Street Decision

Charlevoix City Council delayed action Monday on a proposal to lease a 27-foot-wide strip of property to LeHavre Condominiums.

Council decided to take no action on the agreement after nearly 70 people jammed into council chambers for a public hearing.

For some 90 minutes, city councilmen heard arguments on whether or not the property, commonly known as Alice Street, should be leased for 99 years at $500 a year.

Council is expected to meet later this week in committee to discuss the lease arrangement further with developers and make a decision by the next regular meeting.

The slender strip of undeveloped property that runs between Round Lake and Belvedere Avenue has been the center of controversy for nearly five years.

Developers say they are seeking the property that runs between the two LeHavre Condominiums on Round Lake for better access to the units.

Legal Question

"I think the council is aware of the concern of the city," former city attorney John Michael told city council Monday night.

While admitting there appears to be a legal question on whether or not the city actually owns the property, Michael urged Council not to relinquish its rights to the property.

Michael said the question of ownership had been taken to court some time ago and was eventually remanded back to circuit court from the court of appeals with no apparent decision ever made.

Boatyard owner Bob Hamilton had challenged the city's claim to the strip of property and was attempting to get the deed cleared in court. Since that time, he had sold the property to LeHavre.

"I only ask you that you do what the Council did six years ago," he urged councilmen.

"The council was at that time of the feeling it is ours until a court said otherwise."

Michael said that a lease arrangement with the developers would be giving away the property and that the city would never get it back.

"I would suggest to you that Alice Street is a public street because that court (pointing to the Charlevoix County Building) over there said it was," Michael said.

Courtroom Battle

The Charlevoix attorney suggested that the council consider letting the developers pay for developing a street, but maintain public ownership.

In what resembled a courtroom battle, Arthur Reibel, attorney for LeHavre, then presented his case and what he considered the chronological order of events involving the property.

"No less than six or seven attorneys have researched this question and as quite often happens they don't agree," Reibel said.

Reibel said the property was first recorded in October, 1873, but there was no description of the strip of property as a dedicated road at that time.

From then until 1972, Reibel said the property changed hands several times and had been the site of a repair shop

Council Considers Fee Schedule For Commercial Planes at Airport

By KEN WINTER

Squabbling Charlevoix commercial flight operators are apparently forcing the city to consider its first commercial landing fee charge at Charlevoix Municipal Airport.

The decision to consider a commercial fee schedule came after both the city and McPhillips Aviation Flying Service blew the whistle Welke Aviation picking up passengers and freight at the city-owned airport.

Welke Aviation, a Beaver Island-based commercial operator, has been making commercial pick-ups from the city airport without the city's permission, according to city officials.

City Administrator Robert Wexstaff told Welke in a letter last month that he was in violation of the city airport ordinance and did not have city permission to make frequent commercial stops.

However, Welke claims that since his operation is based on Beaver Island it does not come under the ordinance.

Welke further replies in a letter to the city that since the city has user both state and federal funds they cannot grant any exclusive rights on the airport.

FAA Policy

He cites a Federal Aviation Administration policy statement that considers the existence of an exclusive right to conduct any aeronautical activity limits and usefulness of an airport and deprives the using public of the benefits of competitive enterprises.

"The leasing of all available airport land or facilities suitable for aeronautical activities to a single enterprise will be construed as evidence of an intent to exclude others," the agency further states.

City officials say they are not attempting to exclude or give any individual exclusive commercial rights to the airport.

But, if any commercial

Charlevoix Resident Drowns in Lake Michigan

Funeral services were held here Friday for a 22-year-old Charlevoix resident who died in a hang-gliding accident over Lake Michigan.

Herbert B. Schofield II, drowned in Lake Michigan off the pierheads here Tuesday evening when his hang glider plunged into the water when the tow line from the power boat snapped.

The body was recovered in 22 feet of water by Michigan State Police divers at 2:50 p.m. Wednesday following an all-out search that began immediately after the accident, was abandoned during the night and resumed at 7 a.m. Wednesday.

Funeral services were held Friday at the Winchester Funeral Home. The Rev. Raymond H. Giffin officiated. Interment was in Brookside cemetery.

Born in Charlevoix March 9, 1953, Mr. Schofield attended the Charlevoix and Petoskey Schools prior to enlisting in the U.S. Navy. After a two year tour of duty he returned here to enroll in North Central Michigan College. He was a member of the First Congregational Church.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Harold Dutcher of Charlevoix; his father, Herbert B. Schofield of Petoskey; a brother, Robert of Charlevoix; four sisters, Mrs. Kenneth (Julie) Wojan, Mrs. James T. (Ruth) McKinney and Mrs. Gary (Linda) Moore, all of Charlevoix; Mrs. Janet Edwards of San Diego; a half-brother, Charles; two half-sisters, Andrea and Joanne, of Petoskey and his maternal grandfather, Harold Slocum of Ann Arbor.

The family suggests that anyone wishing to honor his memory contribute in his name to the East Jordan Fire Department Rescue Squad.

The accident happened shortly after 8 p.m. Tuesday in view of dozens of spectators who had gathered at the beach and terraces overlooking Lake Michigan to watch his prowess on the hang glider.

The hang-glider he was using had a wing span of 16 feet and was of aluminum and nylon construction.

Schofield reportedly would run along the bench with the glider strapped to his back and would be pulled aloft by the tow boat.

At the time of the accident, he had made several passes off the Lake Michigan bathing beach at the pierheads when U.S. COAST GUARD AND volunteers searched Lake Michigan waters just outside of Charlevoix for the body of a 22-year-old Charlevoix man who died in a hang-gliding accident.

Fantastic Job

I would simply like to say that the Charlevoix Recreation is fantastic for a town of this size. Also, I would like to state that the parks have been kept up for every summer we have been here for the last six years. Everything is in beautiful condition here. I would also like to say that the beaches have very nice facilities.

Good Job

Just a note to tell you I recently experienced an accident in our neighborhood and was hospitalized. Our community has a very excellent emergency unit, hospital service, medical team, and cooperation between all teams is excellent.

The ambulance was quick to arrive, and took extremely good care. The hospital staff was very thorough and I felt in good hands, the whole time. It's a real comfort to know everyone works together and I want to say thank you to one and all again. Our community can be very proud of our dedicated and hard working emergency teams.

Thanks again

Alice Street

I don't think City Council has any business giving away public land. I was sorry to hear that they are considering a lease with some builders for the Alice Street property. Lake access is getting harder and harder to find. The Council has no business leasing away one foot of it. Council should shape up or ship out.

Good Job

I just wanted to say that the city has been doing a good job with public works this summer. The harbor is looking the best it has in years and I'm glad to see that they finally got my street repaved. I hope we can expect to see more improvements in the future. They're long overdue.

Extra Runs

I heard or read in the paper that Charlevoix will be making extra bus runs this fall when school starts. Is this true? If it is, I understand why? They are always asking us for more money and now they are running more buses. Could you please find out.

Michigan State Historic Districts Can Preserve Past

By KEN WINTER

Will monstrous sprawling developments eventually gobble up Charlevoix the Beautiful? Some fear so.

Some fear that the condominium crash of the early seventies is going to continue in other forms of development to the point where Charlevoix will lose its natural harbor known throughout the world.

All you have to do is look at the city limits of this small hamlet to see the already encroaching development dotting the highway.

Charlevoix is no different than many Michigan communities suffering from the choking effects of rapid growth and urbanization.

Some like Lansing, the state capital, have learned too late that the character of the town which attracted so many to the area 30 years ago has been destroyed.

The river town of 130,000 - people used to have hundreds of small buildings and homes along the Grand River that quietly winds through its downtown. Now many of the buildings have been replaced with massive tarvy parking lots.

Preserving Lansing's historic character is almost too late, but there are Michigan communities who have realized the dangers of what can happen from overdevelopment and are doing something about.

Both Grand Rapids and Ann Arbor have set up what are known as "historic districts" in portions of its communities to preserve historically significant structures. Charlevoix can do the same.

"They're fairly controversial," says John Kern, historic preservation coordinator for the Michigan History Division of the Department of State.

But, the former college professor is quick to add that the concept has saved many valuable pieces of property.

The "historic district" concept came alive in Michigan following the passage of a special state act in 1970.

The act simply allows local communities to establish areas that may have historic sites and structures for preservation purposes, as well as to create historic district commissions and provide for the maintenance of publicly owned historic sites and structures by local units.

Kern, who is one of seven who works in the state preservation section, says that developers often frown on this program because they say it hampers business.

However, Kerns urges that often a town is valuable because of its historical assets and historic districts only enhance that value.

There are already 14 historic districts in Michigan.

"It isn't a cure-all to all social ills," Kerns says, but adds that historic districts are instrumental in preserving some parts of communities.

The state preservationist says districts begin by a local city council appointing a study committee, who in turn prepare an inventory of items in the community that should be preserved. The committee also recommends boundaries for the district within the community.

Copies of the recommendations are then sent to both the city planning commission and Michigan Historical Division for review.

The local study commission then announces a public hearing and sends written notices to all property owners.

"That's where the fireworks start," Kern says.

The commission's concern, according to Kern, is to preserve things that are irreplacable, like harbors and old buildings.

"If you lose it, you can never get it back," he says.

After the hearing, the study committee submits a draft of its proposed recommendations to the city council in the form of an ordinance.

Council can then either accept or reject the recommendations. If accepted, the mayor then appoints an historic district commission to enforce the newly adopted ordinance.

"The ordinance can be fairly rigorous in regulations and demolition," Kern says.

"However, it has no control over the interiors of structures, only the outsides."

Kerns looks at the historic district concept as giving a community a certain recognition, as well as preserving its assets.

"If you have a district ordinance and It is not enforced it hasn't done anything," he adds about the importance of enforcement once the ordinance has been adopted.

If local government isn't interested in preserving its community or is under pressure for developers not to restrict growth, Kerns says the community has an added hurdle.

He says individuals then have to take it upon themselves to press for state and federal registration of historically significant landmarks.

Registering something under the state program through the state historical commission entitles the site to become labeled by a state marker, in addition to making it eligible for limited state preservation funds.

However, Kern admits that state designation does not give the state any statutory authority unless it is involved with state or federal funds.

At best, he says, the state can only exert any influence they may have.

Old Town Buildings Can Restore Historic Community Character

By KEN WINTER

ELK RAPIDS – If Michigan preservationists had their way, downtown Charlevoix would never have taken on a French motif.

Nor would Gaylord's celebrated Bavarian look have ever gotten off the ground.

Neither downtown appearances have anything to do with Northern Michigan, says Larry Finfer of the Michigan Historical Division.

The historical preservation coordinator talked recently to Northwestern Michigan historical societies on how they can preserve their towns.

"Michigan people believe in preservation, but they run down what they have," he says.

Too often, Finfer says, small community downtowns become a hodgepodge of signs with very little attention paid to the second and third stories of many old buildings.

Many of these upper level structures were built with distinguishing features, such as decorations over windows, that make many older structures unique.

"People who built these buildings in the late 19th century were concerned," he explains.

"A solid building met solid merchandise."

Banks, for example, were usually the most stately because bankers wanted people to have the feeling that their money would be in a safe, secure spot.

But, as the years wore on, Finfer says merchants began reverting to using signs to attract a customer's attention instead of putting efforts into the craftsmanship of buildings.

Restoring old buildings is becoming popular, Finfer says, because of the rising costs of building new ones.

"Sometimes restoration can be easily done," he adds.

"If you have the resource you should use it."

He says there is a growing movement toward recycling old buildings because it is looked on as part of a conservation move.

With the emphasis on building malls and suburban shopping centers, Finfer says many people have forgotten about Main Street.

In times of a fast moving society, the "small town" atmosphere of being able to see and talk to people on the streets seems more attractive.

Finfer says the state of Vermont has been undertaking a massive program to promote downtown restoration.

"Even Michigan towns like Marshall and Manistee have been or are going through massive restoration programs.

"They now have something unique to distinguish themselves from other towns," he said.

While many communities are restoring their downtown districts, Finfer warns people of the pitfalls.

"Some have gone about it the wrong way," he says.

"The key to the situation is to restore what you've got."

He said Gaylord made the mistake of getting away from the Northern Michigan flavor when developing its Alpine Village theme.

Often towns that make those kinds of moves end up having to redo their downtown areas every 10 years or so.

Charlevoix Population Increases in Summer

The population of Charlevoix County increases by over 8,000 in the summertime, according to a study recently completed by the Charlevoix County Planning Commission.

The study breaks the county down to six different population areas, including cities and townships. The seasonal population of each area is indicated as follows:

Area I, Peaine and St. James Township, 821.

Areas II, City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix, Hayes, Marion and Norwood Townships, 2,112.

Area III, Boyne City and Bay, Boyne Valley, Evangeline, Eveline and Wilson Township, 2,942.

Area IV, East Jordan and South Arm Township, 861.

Area V, Walloon Lake and Chandler and Melrose Townships, 910.

Area VI, Hudson Township, 518.

Charlevoix Has Seven Federal Sites

The National Register of Historic Places is nothing new to Charlevoix residents familiar with local history.

No less than seven sites have received the federal designation and guarantee they will be preserved for their historic value.

The National Register is the official schedule of the nation's cultural property that is worth saving. According to further provisions of the act, it is a protective inventory of irreplacable resources across the country.

The National Register is published biennially with pertinent information about each property.

Those in this county that have been labeled with the federal designation include Charlevoix City Park, Greensky Hill Mission, Beaver Island's Mormon Print Shop, O'Neill property at Norwood Township, Pine River Channel site, Ti-Wan-Go-Ning prehistoric site and Protar Cabin on Beaver Island.

The Historic Sites Act of 1935 placed the National Park Service squnrely in the field of historic preservation. This act gave extensive responsibilities to the Secretary of the interior through the National Park Service to create a national poliey of historic preservation.

The Historic Preservation Act of 1966 expanded the Department's responsibilities, authorizing a person for the preservation of additional historic properties through the Nation.

Properties of State or local significance may be nominated by states and placed on the register on approval of the National Park Service.

Nominations in Michigan are made by the Michigan History Commission with input from the Michigan History Division, who supervise the program within the state

The state division has nearly completed an inventory of all historically sensitive sites in Michigan.

The document, called the Michigan Historical Preservation Plan Vol. II-Inventory, includes both federal and state registered sites ns well as other sensitive areas.

Charlevoix County has 46 sites on the inventory, seven of which are on the state and federal registers.

The federal government has established a criteria that they recommend be used by evaluating potentional entries to the National Register.

Maintenance Funds Cut By Gas Slump

The Charlevoix County Road Commission and the four municipalities within the county will receive less money for road maintenance and repair for the second quarter of this year than it did the same period last year.

The Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation announces that fuel tax revenues were up slightly but weight tax proceeds (license plate fees) were down in the three-month period ended June 30.

Net receipts for the second quarter of 1975 amounted to $124,183,521, a decrease of $2,352,428, or 1.9 percent, compared to the same period of 1974.

All state gasoline and diesel fuel taxes and license plates fees go to the Motor Vehicle Highway Fund for distribution to the Department of State Hiighways and Transportation, the 83 counties and 531 incorporated cities and villages.

The Charlevoix County Road Commission will receive $196,953 compared to last year's $199,522. The City of Charlevoix will receive $17,880 compared to last year's $18,276.

This includes consideration of significance the site may have in American history, architecture, archeology, and culture present as a district, site, building, structure or project. Look Around You

It doesn't take long to learn why hundreds of people try to move to Charlevoix every year.

All you have to do is look around you. Along the lakeshore, you can see miles of beautiful sandy beaches and one of the finest inland harbors in the world.

But, you don't even have to be a seafarer to enjoy this Northern Michigan community. You can take a dip in some of the cleanest fresh water around or simply enjoy the tranquil serenity of a balmy day.

No, it doesn't take long to understand why those coming up for a summer visit regret their eventual return to dark, dreary megalopolis. So why worry?

The Northern Michigan retreat will always be here for people to rest and sooth their nerves from the rigorous pace of the city. Unfortunately that laissez faire attitude could lead to the ultimate destruction of Charlevoix.

Charlevoix is on the brink of facing an environmental crisis, if it hasn't already arrived. Signs of this quietly approaching crisis have been appearing in many different forms during the last five years.

Take a drive through Charlevoix and you'll notice the danger signs. As you approach Charlevoix from either direction, you can see the long stream of buildings that is beginning to dot U.S. 31.

In addition to the increasing number of retail establishments, you can see an interesting mixture of industrial within a mile of each other.

Besides the buildings and mining operations, a large number of billboards also seem to be appearing along the roadside.

When you actually get inside of Charlevoix and look along the harbor and lakeshore, the old structures that have graced this town and made it the seaport it has been known for, are rapidly disappearing. In their place are larger and new structures.

Even the trees that have graced the street sides of Charlevoix are losing some of their character and color because of poor management.

Perhaps the changes in Charlevoix are for the best. With change comes modernization and better services for the community, similar to the services one is accustomed to in the city--traffic, noise, crowds and dirt.

It is important for the leaders of this community to decide what direction they want Charlevoix to go in. It is equally important for those living here to make sure they let their community leaders know how they feel.

Maybe Charlevoix should continue to eliminate all of its older wooden structures and replace them with brick and steel structures.

Since land is becoming so expensive, perhaps the continued encouragement of multiple housing dwellings is the proper direction to take. Likewise, the encouragement of retail establishments outside the city proper is equally beneficial.

These are the questions we feel the city fathers should be addressing themselves to. These are the same questions neighboring township leaders should also be examining.

Is Charlevoix interested in retaining its downtown business district and keeping it in character with what has made it so popular in years past?

While encouraging local industrial growth, is it better to stretch it along roads throughout the area or would it be more advantageous to confine industry to one particular area?

The questions are nothing new. The problems confronting Charlevoix are no different than those being faced by other communities in the north and throughout the country.

The difference will be in how Charlevoix resolves its problems and charts the course it wants to take.

Will Charlevoix the Beautiful remain Charlevoix the Beautiful? The answer is in our hands.

The Charlevoix Courier
Charlevoix, Michigan
Dear Editor,

My wife and I recently completed a cross-country camping vacation that took us to many of the most beautiful parts of this country and Canada: Yellowstone, Grand Tetons, Lake Tahoe, Cascades Mountains, Banff and Jasper. We thought it would be a fitting finale to make our last stop before home at a familiar place where we could just relax and soak up the sun: Bells Bay State Forest Campground.

My wife and I, as well as other members of my family, have spent many enjoyable summers camped at Bells Bay. I can now state that I will never return to this area unless drastic measures are taken to improve and protect the outdoor experience at Bells Bay.

When we arrived at the campground at 10:30 a.m. August 3, 1975 we found only one vacant site which we proudly took only to find its picnic table had vanished. We walked along the beach to see if any of the beach front campers were pulling out in the near future. Luckily we found one. I say "luckily" because it is rare to find a vacant site on the water. I don't know if it is coincidental or not, but most of these sites are usually taken by local residents. I recall one incident two years ago where a Traverse City motel owner occupied the same site for nearly the entire summer. Then during this year's visit a camper (and Charlevoix resident) asked me how long I was planning to stay because she "has some people who would like this site." I am not saying that area residents should not use Bells Bay. They should be subject to the same rules as the rest of the public. Attendants should be present to enforce rules governing the length of stay and restricting occupancy to first come, first served.

Perhaps more discouraging than the above problem is the litter problem at Bells Bay. Once we occupied our site it took us over an hour to clean up the litter left by previous campers. In all of the places I visited this summer I never saw a mess like that. (Perhaps a general ban on throw-away containers would help since a large portion of the litter was beverage containers.)

There are other problems at Bells Bay such as noise pollution from cruising cars and motorcycles, speed limit violations, and persons camped in picnic areas. All of these problems lead me to believe that something must be done at Bells Bay to meet the "people problem, no space" This is obviously a very popular camping area and supervision on a full time basis is necessary. The questions that must be answered are: (1) how can the most people use this area without damaging the delicate shoreline ecology any further, and (2) how much development and supervision are necessary.

I enjoy camping in state and national forest campgrounds because of the limited nature of their development. In Michigan, State Parks often mean development to the point of destroying the natural environment. This does not have to be the case. I have visited state parks in other states with wonderful facilities that have altered the environment minimally (in particular, California). I propose that Bells Bay be converted into a state park, but that no further development take place. This will provide the funds necessary to clean the area and to pay attendants.

Michigan has very little public shoreline remaining. We must protest that which remains from over development and over use. However, we should all have an equal chance to have access to the shoreline and to enjoy it. That is no longer possible at Bells Bay.

Sincerely yours,
Lawrence M. Gales

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

"You're altogether too pessimistic about the economy," a friend remarked the other day in response to some doomsday observation I had shared with her.

"Look at it this way," she continued. "In Iowa, our corn fields yield 220 bushels per acre. Outside Milan, Italy, in Italy's best farmland, the best they can do is 90 bushels per acre. In Turkey, farmers rnise only 40 bushels of corn per acre.

"So with figures like that in our favor, we can't go too far wrong," she concluded.

And, of course, she is right. The fecundity of North America is something to behold, particularly in the dying days of August when the extent of the season's harvest begins to become apparent.

Even the backyard gardener will tell you that the summer of '75 has been a bell-ringer of some sort. Although the rain never came when it was needed, it did come eventually to the relief of the zucchini and the endive and the fellow who planted them.

Wouldn't it be nice if we could eat year 'round as well and economically as we do the end of August?

Few epicurean delights compare freshly picked sweet corn-on-the-cob steamed in its own husks and slathered with butter.

And tomatoes! For most of the year the tomato is the food of kings and potentates. Then in August the home-grown crop ripens and every man is king until the last Bonnie Best disappears.

Last summer I managed to extend my tomato reign right up to December by keeping our bumper crop of green tomatoes alive and well under a blanket of newspapers on the back porch. When we wanted a few to ripen, we put them on the window sill inside where it was warm.

But those late season tomatoes couldn't compare with those picked from the vine under an August sun and devoured on the spot.

This year for the first time the Clocks have dabbled in potatoes. We didn't buy seed potatoes, but saved our sprouting potatoes during the winter--Michigan's, Idaho's, Maine's, California's-quite an assortment in all.

I had my doubts as to whether any potato could grow in the vein of stubborn clay which runs through our backyard, but I was wrong. "We've had two meals from our potato patch so far and the first specimens have been delicious. Some were fairly small, but others were as big as baseballs. Since the vines are still green and blossoming, I imagine that our "harvest" will be substantial from the few sorry little spuds we planted last spring.

The zucchini are plentiful; green beans have found their way both into the freezer and unto the dinner table; in another few days we will have enough cueumbers to make dill pickles; lettuce has done well all summer; and the raspberries! I couldn't believe it, but our little patch presented us with two quarts of berries a night for almost two weeks. It gave me a warm feeling to see the same berries selling for 80 cents a pint in the market.

So I guess I don't have any right being pessimistic about the economy. After 70 years as an industrial giant, the United States has come full cycle and is once again the world's bread basket. That's where our strength lies. Food in years to come will be our lever in securing on the world market those commodities we need from other nations.

It's a good feeling to have an ace in the hole, isn't it?

Erma Bombeck

A line in a sermon got me to thinking the other week. It posed the question, "Whom do you consider the loneliest person in the world?"

The candidates began to fill my mind like a free lunch at a bar. Unquestionably they were:

The man with 800 slides of his vacation.

A kid at camp with measles.

An obscene phone caller who lost his dime.

The owner of a laundromat in a nudist colony.

The vice president of anything.

The woman who bleaches her hair at home.

Chaperones on a field trip to Passion Park.

Then it hit me. Maybe I don't speak for anyone else, but for me, the loneliest moment of my life is when I have a living room full of guests and I am in the kitchen checking a new recipe: Chicken Wonderment.

There is no other moment to match it.

The guests have been smiling for two and a half hours and are so bored they're discussing their dental appointments . . . the snacks, so colorful and appetizing when the guests arrived, now have the appeal of a cage that hasn't been cleaned in a while . . . and everyone is anxiously facing the kitchen like they are anticipating the second coming.

In the kitchen I approach the oven like a pitcher going to the mound in the bottom of the ninth with men on first and third and the count three balls, two strikes.

I am alone. I summon my best friend, Mayva, who says, "You'd better snap it up. They're storting to organize rescue parties."

I am alone. My husband, without a hint of compassion, says, "For crying out loud . . . another 20 minutes and I can't guarantee the safety of our parakeet."

I am alone. I summon God and He puts me on hold.

Loneliness. It's that moment when you take the lid off the roaster and the sour oreäm thot was supposed to thicken into rich sauce didn't. And the chicken that was supposed to cook to plump tenderness is as hard as Billie Jean King's thigh. And the peas have drowned in their own butter and are lying in the pan like the creek dried up... and the rolls spill over their pans and are heading for the other wall, and the candles have reached the end of their wicks and are sputtering in their own wax.

The guests have stopped talking now to conserve energy. That's loneliness.

If it Fitz — The Gays Need Mrs. Ford

by Jim Fitzgerald

Betty Ford has used the First Lady's clout to make the world softer for unmarried girls who need abortions.

She was also kind to us oglers when she said she didn't mind that the President enjoys looking at pretty girls. And the marijuana pushers were delighted when Mrs. Ford admitted she would have smoked a little dope if she'd had a connection when she was her daughter's age.

While the clergy are still reeling, I suggest Mrs. Ford embrace another worthy cause. She should say something nice about homosexuals.

I do not make this suggestion because I am gay. I make it out of concern for the Secret Service men who guard the President. They could do a better job if the world did not discriminate against men who prefer men.

What with all the publicity given Mrs. Ford's TV True Confessions, you might have missed an important social item coming out of Vail, Colorado. While vacationing there, the Fords unexpectedly went to a nightspot to dance to the music of the Inkspots.

This presented an unusual problem for the Secret Service. When the president went on the dance floor, his guards naturally had to follow him. But they couldn't just stand there and hum. They had to get in step with the Boss; shuffle when he shuffled and dip when he dipped.

They had to provide a moving screen between the First Couple and the other dancers. They had to be on a constant alert for dancers who folded their arms across their chests and kicked out from a squatting position while "You Always Hurt the One You Love" was being played.

It was an assignment calling for instant choreography. According to news reports, the Secret Service men quickly began to 2-step "with hastily sought-out partners."

This means some women were commandeered to serve as innocent camouflage while the Secret Service men danced their duty. The dangers in such a procedure are painfully apparent. What if a chosen woman didn't want to dance with a stranger whose gun rubbed against her breast? Whnt if her date was a jealous Democrat who didn't like to sit alone while his girl proved her patriotism?

There was the potential of any number of tragic hassles which might have left the Ford in a dip from which there was no surfacing.

Obviously, the nation would have been much safer if the Secret Service men had danced with each other. And it is just as obvious why they did not. People would have stared and tittered. The Secret Service would have received a black eye worse than if it had been caught sleeping with the CIA.

"Whadda we got, a bunch of queers guarding our President?"

If the Fords are to continue dancing, and the President is to be adequately guarded, Mrs. Ford's duty is clear. She should go on TV and tell Morley Safer she wouldn't be surprised if her 2 sons formed a dance team and won first prize at the Starlight Ballroom.

She should also caution the appropriate brass to always assign an even number of men to guard the President. No man joined the Secret Service to become a wallflower.

Meet Charlevoix

Meet James McKimmy

With school starting next week, Supt. James McKimmy discusses the school outlook for the next few months.

The Charlevoix school superintendeat is now beginning his third year after previously serving as assistant superintendent at Alma.

McKimmy is a member of the Phi Delta Kappa Professional Education Fraternity, The Michigan and American Associations of School Administrators and the Michigan Association of Supervision and Curriculum Development.

He is a graduate of Beaverton High School, Manchester College, Central Michigan and Michigan State Universities.

McKimmy and his wife, LouAno, have three children.

COURIER: How are things looklug for this fall?

McKIMMY: At the present time, I feel our school district is in very sound condition. There are a number of things that have occurred during the past months that have contributed to this. We arranged a two-year settlement of our teacher's contract last fall, which means we are entering the final 12-month period of that at this time. So, while other school distrlcts are in the process of negotiations we have a firm plan to know what our financinl conditions will be. In addition to that, Norwood Township and the City of Charlevoix had agreed to summer tnx collections, whieh are coming in, and they improve our financial picture, as a result of not having to borrow our total monies to operate on. We have had to borrow some monies, but the early collections have improved our finanelal picture for the school district. Our staff seems to be stabilizing in terms of the current picture. We have a mininum number of new positions, which always increases stability for curriculum purposes. Our two new principals now have a year's experience with the school system in that capacity and I am looking forward to a strong year in the area of curriculum development.

COURIER: Are there any new programs thnt we can expect to see this year?

McKIMMY: Internally, with the direction of Board of Education goals, we are going to be working on identifying the goals und objectives within our present program and also identifying specific learning activities that contribute toward those goals. We are fully implementing a new program in muth und reading this year. This means that when a parent comes to us und asks about the progress of his child we will have a full list of objectives in both muth und reading that the child will be expected to achieve in grades kindergarten through sixth. We will then be able to report to that parent what achievements the child has made in school. The parents will be able to identify the areas that they could assist in at home by the amount of progress the child is making. It is going to be a very specific kind of accounting with the parent. We expect the parents to receive this very well because it is a good kind of information for them.

COURIER: Will there be any cuts in extracurricular programs at this point?

McKIMMY: Not at the present time. Our budget was built with the idea of retaining all the programs we had last year. We are presently looking for a ski coach und we have yet to employ our track coach for this next year. Other than personnel changes, our program should look the same.

COURIER: What is the state financial picture looking like for this school year?

McKIMMY: The final state aid package provided $42.40 per mill per student for the first 20 mills and $38.25 per student per mill for the next seven mills. Our district State Equalized Value (SEV) will provide about $41.11 per child. So, we will participate in the first 20 mills but we won't participate in the second set of seven mills. This means we will receive about $1.29 per child per mill. Then of course, six-tenths of one percent is a $12,000 reduction from the total gross. At least we know, today, how much money to plan on. We will be participating, although at a minimum level, in the state aid program.

COURIER: What will be the transportation situation for Charlevoix students this fall?

McKIMMY: Recently the Board of Education approved a change on the school day for the high school from an 8:30 a.m. start back to an 8 a.m. and from a 3:30 p.m. dismissal to a 2:30 p.m. dismissal. It is a 30 minute earlier start and a 60 minute earlier dismissal, which means the school day is being reduced about 20 minutes.

We were going to school in the high school over 1,100 hours and the school calendar required at the state level is 990 hours. This means because of the schedule with the buses, our students were in school a longer day and were forced to be in school even longer if they were participating in extracurricular activities.

Over the past two years, the Board of Education has had a goal of studying the cost situation of our buses. They also wanted to know if there would be some feasibility of financial savings by using buses on more than one run per day. This change allows us to have at least three buses making two routes per day. The total mileage of having separate runs in the high school and in the elementary-middle school will be 70 miles additional per day for the total fleet or about five to six miles additional per bus. I know that question will come up because people are going to see buses traveling past their homes on two occasions a dny. We have calculated the bus runs and know it can be done that close.

At the high school level, there will be some students asked to walk to a half-mile to meet the bus. This is for both time saving and for economics. Our service in the past has gone far beyond the state guidelines, so this will be an additional requirement for students.

Basically, students are going to get to school earlier und they're going to be able to get home closer to the supper hour if they participate in extracurricular activities. However, two-thirds of the students will start the school later. Those students in kindergarten through eighth will start at 8 a.m. and eliminate the waiting time at school, which we have had in the past.

Ruppe Conditionally Approves Federal Rail Proposal

PETOSKEY–U.S. Congressman Philip Ruppe said last week he would back proposed federal legislation that virtually wipes out railroad service in his Northern Michigan district.

However, Ruppe said he would only go for the U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT) recommendations if it included a federal subsidy program for some northern rail service.

Congress has until November 6 to reject or accept the DOT plan that would eliminate some 21 percent of 1,200 miles of Michigan trackage.

"My support of that plan would be conditioned on whether the Chessie lines between Manistee and Bay Shore or the Penn Central lines between Cadillac and Petoskey would continue under the proposed Rail Reorganization Act," he told the Courier in an interview last week.

"Under that plan, the federal government would pay 70 percent and the states would pay 30 percent of the cost of subsidy on those lines for two years."

However, the 48-year-old Houghton congressman said he would rather see a five year instead of two year subsidy program for low density trackage.

"When Congress gets done with this railroad legislation, I hope it will be for five years because I don't think two years is sufficient to test the viability of those lines under subsidized operations," he said.

Ruppe says he does not favor legislation that calls for 100 percent federal subsidy as being proposed by Indiana's Senator Vance Hartke and U.S. Representative Harley O. Staggers of West Virginia.

"I think the state would assume a better measure or responsibility if it were to assume part of the subsidy," he said.

"I do feel the initial test of two years is not enough and it should be at least five years."

At the end of five years, Ruppe says a determination could be made whether the lines were sufficiently strong enough to be put into the Conrail system or in an alternative subsidy operation that would have to be developed by the state.

If shown unprofitable, Ruppe suggests that state consider taking over the trackage and then leasing it back to private railroad systems.

Ruppe says that Michigan could then upgrade the trackage through its $60 million transportation bond issue.

The Congressman said he was also concerned about Gaylord and said some type of regional program will have to be created that will keep trackage open from Bay City to Gaylord or from Mackinaw City to Gaylord.

Ruppe said he opposes nationalization of railroads because of the cost to the taxpayers.

"I would first explore every avenue to keep railroads under private management because I think under nationalization the final decisions as to rates, payroll costs, areas to be serviced would all be made under the political area and none of them under the economic area.

"I think somewhere along the way there has to be some measure of railroad economics in railroad reorganization," he continued.

"Ultimately the government may have to take over the railroads, but I don't think nationalization of railroads nationwide is any way necessary."

Philip Ruppe

Ruppe blames present bad railroad conditions on long-term over capitalization and bad management.

"Neither airlines nor truckers have had to lay out the capital that the railroads had to layout for facilities and await the very slow depreciation and return of capital investment," he said.

"During these periods of time we have taxed railroads for every mile of road bed, every station and financially hit them hard on all sides."

Carnies

Perhaps nothing communicates the essence of the County Fair more than the people who run it - the carnies.

Some are recruited locally, but the majority travel with the show; from Michigan to Mexico, they tour year-round in a caravan of trucks, trailers, old cars. Each small town takes on a sameness, an audience for their cries of "Don't be bashful sonny, you look like a quarterback!" and "Pick a color -let's see those dimes?"

It's a monotonous life, broken only by the camaraderie of the group, and by the shared experiences of travel.

The Emmet County Fair may be remembered as the place where they had their pictures taken, but when Sunday morning comes, and the show hits the road once more, Petoskey's gas stations and motels and diners will be but a vague memory. Just like every other town.

Federal Farmers Home Administration Begins 40th Year

By PEG OHLE

Charlevoix County is now being served by the Petoskey office of the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) instead of by the Bellaire office.

The change became effective August 1, according to Stuart Mosier, County Supervisor, and persons wanting information about FmHA loans are asked to contact the office at 822 Charlevoix Avenue, Petoskey, or call them at 347-4551.

The Farmers Home Administration provides loan services not only to farmers but to persons living in communities under 10,000 population and to such communities themselves.

It is its 40th year of service as a part of the United States Department of Agriculture, and it is big business.

Farmer Programs

By Family Ownership Loans, FmHA enables capable family farmers lacking other sources of credit to buy, improve or enlarge farms they operate. It is a significant source of credit by which young farmers become established as owner-operators. Statutory limits are $100,000 for a single loan, 40 years repayment at five percent interest. Borrowers who prosper sufficiently to qualify for conventional credit refinance through conventional lenders when possible, thereby "graduating" from FmHA credit.

In 1974, $352,161,430 was loaned (11,997 loans) for this purpose.

Farm Operating Loans are insured or guaranteed loans, usually secured by chattel mortgage for feed, seed, fertilizer, livestock, machinery or other elements of production. They are made to family farmers and ranchers lacking other sources of production financing.

Terms usually range from one to seven years according to loan purpose at an interest rate fixed annually by the U.S. Treasury. The statutory loan limit is $50,000. This type of loan was granted to 53,865 persons in 1974 for a total of $524,993,821.

Accelerated efforts by FmHA since 1970 to help farmers secure credit from other lenders has generated additional other-lender credit amounting to 75 percent to 80 percent of FmHA's real estate (farm ownership) lending, and 40 percent of FmHA's farm production (operating) loans.

Emergency Loans, insured or guaranteed, are made by FmHA to cover losses inflicted by natural disaster. They are ordinarily made for three years at five percent interest under current legislation. Also, in the year 1975-9176, FHA guarnnteed loans made by private lenders to livestock and poultry producers under the Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974. Such loans numbered 22,434 in 1974 for a total of $128,336,769.

There are also some other farmer programs. Insured or guaranteed loans are made to individual farmers for recreational and other non-agricultural income producing enterprises on farms. They are also made for improvement of soil and water resources. Loans are made to non-profit associations for irrigation and drainage systems and grazing ranges, as well as to Indian tribal organizations to buy up privately owned land lying within reservation boundaries.

Housing Programs

Insured Individual Home Ownership Loans are made to families of low to moderate income, including senior citizens, who need adequate housing. The maximum term is for 33 years and interest rates are adjustable and determined by formula. Interest supplement benefits may reduce interest to as low as one percent for low income families. Direct loans for home repair are made to very low income families for 20 years at one percent interest with a limit of $5,000.

Rental Housing Loans are made to provide modernized rental housing for senior citizens, and for younger families of low to moderate income. Repayment time is 50 years for senior citizens and 40 years for others, at a formula interest rate. A reduced interest rate is available for public, nonprofit and limited profit developers of modern units priced within means of low income tenants. In 1974, 870 rental housing loans were made for a total of $173,314,030.

Farmers Home Administration also has other housing programs. Two year loans are made to nonprofit developers to improve rural homesite areas, loans and grants are made for development of adequate farm labor housing, and grants are made to qualified organizations to help low income families accomplish "self-help" homebuilding projects by performing much of their own construction work.

Community Facilities

In the Community field, Farmers Home Administration helps finance water and waste disposal systems and other community facilities. Fire protection, community halls, hospitals, nursing homes, medical clinics, libraries, schools and recreation centers are among more than 30 types of facilities for which money is being loaned.

Business and Industry

Under authority provided in the Rural Development Act of 1972, FmHA in 1974 added to its services new programs intended to encourage business and industrial development in rural areas in order to create or preserve employment opportunities.

Jurisdiction for FmHA business and industrial loans and grants extends to towns and cities of 50,000 population, with emphasis on communities of 25,000 or less.

Farmers Home Administration made a total of 188,587 loans and 417 grants for a total of $3,591,118,830 in 1974 for all purposes.

Tollas-Wimmer Exchange Vows

Arrangements of garden flowers graced the altar of St. Mary's church for the recent wedding of Jane A. Wimmer and Daniel A. Tollas.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Wimmer and Dr. and Mrs. Robert C. Tollas.

The Rev. Fr. R. Dale Magoon officiated at the single ring service on Saturday, Aug. 16. Mrs. Paul Donnelly, at the organ, played a program of traditional music and accompanied Vincent A. Chew who sang the processional, "Sunrise, Sunset" and the "Ave Maria".

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. She made for her wedding gown of white organza and taffeta fashioned with a high fitted bodice, scoop neckline outlined with a circular ruffle and short bell sleeves. Her full length veil, which she also made, fell from a band of garden flowers which matched her bridal bouquet.

Mrs. Stanley Warner of Charlotte served her sister as matron of honor and Debra Tollas, sister of the bridegroom as bridesmaid. They wore indentical gowns of light mint green double knit styled with empire waists with a half-belt in the back and V-necklines. They carried bouquets of garden flowers.

Robert Vance of Mt. Clemens assisted the bridegroom as best man. Fred Davison was groomsman and Christopher Wimmer, brother of the bride, and David Tollas, brother of the bridegroom, seated the guests.

Mrs. Wimmer wore a gown of pink bonded jersey for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Tollas, mother of the bridegroom, wore a light blue knit gown. The attendants' and mothers' gown were made by the bride.

After a wedding trip to the Upper Peninsula, the couple will make their home in Cleveland where the bridegroom is a student at the Cleveland Institue of Art.

On Friday evening Dr. and Mrs. Tollas hosted a rehearsal dinner at their home.

The United Methodist Church of Charlevoix was the scene Saturday for the late afternoon wedding of Jeanne Kay Smith and Gary Keith Hice.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Carlton H. Smith, Sr. of Charlevoix and Mr. and Mrs. Winton G. Hice of Newbury Park, California.

Arrangements of yellow and white pompoms, fuji and daisy mums and greens graced the altar.

White pompoms greens and white bows marked the pews.

A candelabra arrangement of lighted tapers accented by baby's breath and greens formed the setting for the candelight ceremony.

Miss Debra Smith at the organ played a prelude of contemporary selections, the processional, "Aria In F Minor" by Handel and the recessional "Trumpet Tune in D Major" by Purcell and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Lee Moreland, who sang "Sunrise Sunset" and "The Lord's Prayer".

Chris and Ginger Payne sang "The Wedding Song and "Poems, Prayers and Promises" with guitar accompaniment.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, chose a gown of white quiana featuring a Victorian neckline, Empire bodice with fabric covered buttons of the same material down the back of the gown and adorning the long sleeves. The A-line skirt extended into a directoire Chapel train with a flowing hemline. Venise lace trimmed the lace appliqued fingertip veil which was secured by a Juliet crown of matching lace. The bride chose a cascade bouquet of pink sweetheart roses and baby's breath accented with ivy greens.

Miss Pamela Miller of Hazel Park assisted the bride as maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Carlton H. Smith, Jr., sister-in-law of the bride, of Charlevoix; Miss Renee' Pergament of Southfield; Miss Jnnet McNish of Saginaw; and Miss Pamela Alspaugh of Raleigh, North Carolina. They wore identical gowns of apricot maracaine jersey styled with halter necklines, swirling skirts and matching Eaton jackets. The maid of honor carried three long stemmed talisman roses accented with baby's breath and greens. The bridesmaids each carried a single long stemmed talisman rose with accents of greens.

Lisa K. Lawrence, neice of the groom, was flower girl who wore a gown of pastel yellow which matched the bridesmaids' dresses. She carried a basket of miniature majestte daisies and baby's breath.

Ryan Smith and Wes Cumberland, nephews of the bride, attired in matching suits were ringbearers.

Christopher Bowditch II, of Ann Arbor assisted the groom as best man and groomsmen were Larry K. Hice, brother of the groom, of Flint; Larry Brooks and Richard Wiarda of Ann Arbor; and Michael Furquerun of Jackson.

Miss Smith chose a floor length gown of soft melon maracaine knit fashioned in an A-line style with a high neckline and long tapered sleeves for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Hice, mother of the groom, selected a floor length gown of yellow crepe featuring a sheer floral jacket with long sleeves. Both mothers wore white accessories. Their corsages were of gardenias and yellow roses.

Following a wedding trip to Canada, the couple will reside in Charlevoix.

A rehearsal dinner hosted by the groom's parents was held in the Harbor Springs room at the Holiday Inn in Petoskey on the eve of the wedding.

The bride and groom are both graduates of Eastern Michigan University and will be employed with Charlevoix Public Schools.

Blind Camp Now Opening

Charlevoix County blind children will be able to go to summer camp under a new program started by a national braille foundation.

Dan Paepke, a Michigan representative for the Christian Record Braille Foundation, says the camp will open up for a one-week session at a private camp ground near Grayling. The date is still to be set.

This year some 48 youngsters participated in the program that is now being made available to local children.

"There will be no cost to the family whatsoever," Paepke says.

"We do hope that parents can bring kids to and from camp, but we can even provide the transportation if they can't.

The national foundation operates the camp through a national foundation called the National Camps for Blind Children.

Nationals Camps attempts to offer blind children o camping experience at already established summer camps that may have its facilities available for a week or two.

Like most summer camps, it offers riding horses, swimming, bicycling, archery, baseball, crofts and boating.

Paepke estimates there are some 38 blind people in Charlevoix County.

His organization has been providing inspirational reading material to blind people for some 76 years.

"By law, the Library of Congress is not allowed to do this," he said.

The national foundation produces periodicals and religious materials in braille, as well as in large type and on records and tapes and then makes it available through both private and state libraries.

The nearest library in this area is the State of Michigan Regional Library in Traverse City.

Last year, the national organization spent an estimated $1.9 million nationally for program services to both the blind and physically handicapped.

Income is generated solely from private contributions.

Anyone knowing of a person who is in need of the free service should contact Don Paepke in Pierson, Michigan (1-636-8764).

4-H Achievement Day Program Changed

The annual Fall 4-H Achievement Day, usually held on Labor Day, has been set back to the following Sunday, Sept 8, Ed Rebman, Charlevoix county Extension agent, has announced.

In making the announcement, Rebman said many families take this last big weekend of the summer for a last outing before school starts and this was the chief reason for selecting a new date.

The event will be held at Whiting Park, as in the past. Exhibits must be in place by 10 a.m. Judging will start at 10:30 a.m. The event will continue until 3:30 p.m.

Families may enjoy a picnic at noon if they wish, Rebman said. Facilities will be made available and fires in readiness for those who might want to prepare hamburger or hot dogs.

Two Wheel Traveler
by Jon Hendra

Two major keys to safe riding are seeing and being seen. These are important basics of defensive riding and the foundation of collision avoidance riding technique.

Being seen by other traffic on the road is a difficult task for the cyclist. Automobile drivers, the biggest hazard to bikers, are unaccustomed to looking for the verticle profile that the rider presents. The problem then, is to make your unusual shilloette as noticeable as possible.

Increasing your visibility can be achieved in a number of ways. The easiest of these is to simply have your headlight on at all times. If the weather is bad und over-all visability reduced, use your high beam.

Choosing bright, light colored, clothing helps distinguish you from the road and surrounding landscape.

Your placement in the lane can have a great deal to do with other driver's ability to see you and their reaction to your presence on the rond. Riding near the shoulder, as many bikers do, invites trouble of the worst kind. In this position your small profile blends easily with roadside objects. You are easily overlooked. It also encourages unthinking motorists to pass without leaving the land, causing the rider to be sideswiped.

The remedy is to ride out away from the shoulder next to the center line. On interstate highways or other

COMMON COUNCIL

COUNCIL MINUTES — AUGUST 11, 1975
8:00 p.m.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Hansen presiding. Aldermen present: Plumm, McRae, Wood, Whitley, Timms, and Selph. Absent: None.

The minutes of the July 28, 1975 meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

Motion was made by Alderman Timms and supported by Alderman Wood to accept Ida A. Heise's resignation as City Clerk. It was never put to a Council vote. A discussion followed regarding the appointing of a City Clerk and the fact that no Deputy Clerk could be appointed without first appointing a City Clerk, as the City Clerk was not present to make the appointment.

Mayor Hansen then moved that the motion to accept Ida A. Heise's resignation be withdrawn, as it was out of order.

Motion was then made by Alderman Timms and supported by Alderman Selph to appoint Alderman McRae as temporary City Clerk for the purpose of this meeting only. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nny vote. Yeas: Aldermen Plumm, McRae, Wood, Whitley, Timms, and Selph. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Mayor Hansen recessed the Council to a Public Hearing.

A Public Hearing was held to re-consider the question of the Charlevoix Historical Society building a museum on City property which is located between Park Avenue and the water tower.

A museum fund drive was discussed and Mr. Jack Begrow is helping to plan the museum. It is to be attractive with many outdoor displays, and no parking except for the caretaker on this sight. Construction cost would be somewhere in the range of $150,000 to $200,000.

Location was discussed, and it was pointed out that a downtown location would be best for people to walk to, and it would be better protected by police than any location on the outskirts of town.

The Committee is to set up a meeting to review and study this request in depth.

Common Council reconvened, and Council listened to Step 1 Area Sewer Study by Mr. Robert Grant and Mr. W. Parker of Northern Design and Construction Engineers as to the cost and the townships which would come under this study. The Committee is to make a study of this in more depth and make their recommendation.

Council discussed and reviewed the operation of the City Airport at length, and the operation of Wilke Aviation, Inc. of St. James, Michigan. It was decided that the Committee hold a meeting as soon as possible to set up some fee for Commercial operation in and out of the Airport.

Council discussed re-appointing the building inspector per BOCA Code, and after careful consideration continued with the present inspector Alvin Ranger.

Alderman McRae moved to adopt a Resolution, supported by Alderman Plumm, regarding Intervention against Rate Increase by Consumers Power Company. The Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Plumm, McRae, Wood, Whitley, Timms, and Selph. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council discussed noise complaints and it was decided that Robert Wexstaff do some checking on a model noise ordinance to see what can be done about the problem.

The Finance Committee having examined the bills totaling $346,765.07 including a $2,093.90 add-on find them correct and recommend they be approved. Motion was made by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Selph that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for same. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Plumm, McRae, Wood, Whitley, Timms, and Selph. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council adjourned.

Labor Day Bridge Walk Promises Record Crowd

The 18th annual Labor Day morning Mackinac Bridge Walk promises to attract a record number of participants, if the current increase in vehicular traffic is any indication of Bridge walk popularity.

The walk is scheduled to start at 7:30 a.m. on Monday morning, September 1, 1975. For the past six years Governor Milliken has been at the starting line and he is expected to be there again this year.

More than 20,000 persons have participated annually in this extraordinary, once-a-year event since 1972. A record number of 23,500 walkers crossed over the Straits in 1972. Weather conditions during the 12 hours preceding the Bridge walk have an affect on the number of persons participating.

Bridge walkers are urged to make their arrangements for arriving at the starting line. The Fare Plaza on the north side of the Bridge. Buses from Mackinaw City will be available, but past experience indicates that the long lines of persons waiting for passage may result in as much as two hours delay. The fare is .50.

Bridge officials suggest driving a carload of Bridge walkers across the Bridge to the starting line and leaving the car at the Fare Plaza parking lot; then returning after the Bridge walk to pick up the car when the buses are now crowded.

Volunteers Needed

Volunteer coaches and referees are being sought for the flag football program open to boys in the 8-13 year ago group, Dwight Boss, recreation director, has announced.

A meeting for all interested persons will be held at the Recreation Department office at the City Hall at 7 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 28.

If interest is not shown, the flag football program will not be held this fall, Boss said.

SWIMMING TOTS. Charlevoix youngsters were able to take advantage of a new swimming program taught by Jill Washburn (center) this year. Particlpants included Shawn Putman, Kristi Pearsall, Eric Moore, Kallie Washburn and Daniel Clock.

Anyone can look good practicing before a net, but very few play well once the match begins. The reason is quite simple.

Learning the basic strokes of tennis is an easy mechanical process. playing winning tennis is totally another matter. All the beautiful strokes in the world will not make a winning tennis player.

Concentration and strategy do make a winning player. Concentration has to be developed; no amount of tennis lessons can develop it. Regardless of the importance of the match or even the next point the disciplined player must learn to concentrate totally on the job at hand. One has to learn to block out all extraneous thoughts.

Strategy, on the other hand, is a very teachable item. Before learning how to set a specific strategy for an individual match, one has to have an understanding of all aspects of tennis.

For instance, one has to know that hard drives should be countered with chops, a volley with a drive or a lob, a slice with a drive etc. General tennis axioms can always be broken, but one has to learn and understand them before applying any variations.

Further, one has to know how to handle angle shots, deep lobs, and just about anything he might encounter during a match. Once he does, he is then ready to employ a strategy which will give him a psychological and mechanical edge in the match.

Exploit the opponent's weaknesses while playing up your own strengths.

Knowing how to hit all the shots is a good first step, but before you can play winning tennis you must learn when, where and why to hit them.

A few idle thoughts: My congratulations go out to Ike Hoss, Drew Wachler, Craig Lieberman, and John Greene. These people were responsible for the efficient handling of the tennis courts, the clinics and the tournaments this summer.

I do not think that there is roads with more than one lane moving in the same direction, place yourself to the right of the line for the slow lane and to the left of it for the fast lane.

The only way to actually widen your profile, to increase your visability is to add a fairing to your machine. A light colored job with the light on looks more like a car going down the road than a bike. You get about ten times more respect, with the obvious safety benefits.
Seeing is a matter of conditioning, training, and experience. It involves looking far enough ahead for your speed and the ability to interpret correctly what you see. It also means a regular check in the mirrors. It is a never ceasing and continual process that keeps you in touch will all that is happening around you.
Besides being in a rested, alert condition you should take special pains to maintain your ability to see. Adequate eye protection is the rule. Make sure your plastic visors and windshields are as clean and clear as possible. Throw out the ones that look like shower doors and get something you can see through. If conditions merit use an anti-fog preparation to maintain vision even when the guing gets nasty.
Seeing and being seen don't happen by accident. Its oversight that's the accident.

Indoor tennis is definitely here in the great Northwest to stay. The tennis clubs in Traverse City and Petoskey are entering their second year while the Sugar Loaf indoor facility is entering its third. If all goes well, the proposed Charlevoix Athletic Club on Stover Road could become a reality in the spring of 1976.

enterprise is going to operate an income producing enterprise, city officials say they want to ensure that the taxpayers are commensated.
Presently, Joe McPhillips of McPhillips Aviation operates a commercial carrier to Beaver Island and in exchange acts as the city's airport manager. He also gets revenues from tie-down fees and fuel sales.
Mayor Ed Hansen says that he feels that Welke is in direct violation of the city ordinance and must secure a permit from the city.

Safety Concern
He added that the major concern of the council is safety. While not against competition, Hansen said he hopes the situation doesn't get so competitive that safety is sacrificed.
The mayor said it is now up to the city attorney whether or not the city will prosecute the aviation service.
City officials have been meeting the Michigan Aeronautics Commission (MAC) over the establishment of commercial landing fees.
The city considering establishing either a flat yearly fee for those making a certain number of flights into Charlevoix, as well as a user fee charged to any commercial operator any time he lands.
While Frank Sickelsmith, MAC depoty administrator, says most smaller airports charge for individual landings, some city officials urge that Charlevoix is unique in that Beaver Island is depedent on the service.

Thompson outboard motor boat he was operating after being thrown in the water when he veered to avoid hitting a buoy. Dr. Robert G. Martin was the Medical Examiner.
Born at Daytona Beach, Fla., Oct. 24, 1946, Mr. Ransom had resided here and in Kalamazoo. He had been coming to the Belvedere Club since childhood. Recently he had lived in Englewood, Colo., where he was associated with a real estate firm. He was visiting at the Belvedere Club home of his parents at the time of the accident.
He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Woodbury Ransom of Charlevoix and Kalamazoo; a brother, Woodbury Scelye Ransom of Strafford, Vt.; one sister, Mrs. Priscilla Ransom Blutinger of Princeton, N.J. and several nieces and nephews.
The accident in which Mr. Ransom was killed occurred shortly after 1 a.m. off Eastern ave. at Pine Point on the northern shore of Lake Charlevoix. A search was initiated at once by the Coast Guard including a surface boat and a helicopter from the Traverse City Air Station and the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department. The search was hulled at 4 a.m. when a severe thunderstorm with high winds hit the area but was resumed at daybreak when State Police divers, the East Jordan Rescue Squad and volunteers from Antrim county joined the search. The body was recovered at 10:45 a.m. Monday by State Police divers in 17 feet of water.
The body was taken to the Winchester Fuaeral Home.

for some time by Bob Hamilton.
"So we have definite improvements made on this property by Hamilton," Reibel said.
Most recently, Reibel said LeHavre developers offered to lease the property and maintain the property to avoid further court battle. At the same time, he said the agreed to grant a utility easement to city.

Don't Give Away
Ralph Shupton said he could remember as far back as 1933 when he used to park his car on the property to get down to the boat docks and said it has always been used by the public as a lake access.
He said the city shouldn't be giving away lake access.
Bill Supernaw added that if the property is going to be leased he would like a chance to bid on the project.
"The city voted to lease the property for 99 years," Mayor Ed Hansen told the audience.
"All I'm doing here on this council is trying to find an answer for these people."
As far as leasing the property, the mayor said he had no doubt the city could do it.
"As far as I'm concerned the city has to decide whether or not they want to enter in an agreement with this party," he said.
After further discussion, the council decided to meet later in committee with interested parties.
In other action, council:
–Agreed to lease the city's Park Avenue property to the Charlevoix Historical Society as a museum site.
–Announced they would advertise a request by Dave Phillips to rezone his property at the Grey Gables at a public hearing.
–Accepted sidewalk bid from Keystone of Charlevoix, $7,548.

The Charlevoix Courier expresses sincere gratitude for the assistance given in research for this first historical edition. Photographs throughout this edition are through the courtesy of the historical collection of Bob Miles. Research assistance by Mary Beth Wallick at the public library was invaluable.

Our heartfelt thanks to Willard A. Smith, Editor of 'The Sentinel', Charlevoix's first newspaper, published beginning April 24, 1869, for his forethought to include in that publication recollections of our city's early years.

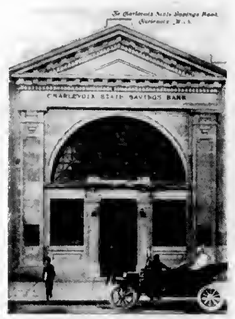
The Charlevoix State Savings Bank
1906

This is the original building which housed the bank. Built on Bridge St. (next to Levinson's--now Liebermans) around 1906, it was the first site the Charlevoix State Savings Bank occupied. The original board of directors included W. J. Rachow, W. S. Richardson, P. D. Campbell and G. C. Geiken.

This is a picture of the Charlevoix State Savings Bank taken from a 1 cent postcard, dating back approximately to the second decade of the 1900's. The facade had been changed considerably. The First State Bank, always proved to offer modern services to its customers was the first bank in town to install a drive-in window, although at a date later in time when automobiles were more numerous.



In November of 1968, the name was changed to the First State Bank of Charlevoix, and in 1969 the offices were moved from the location they had occupied for 63 years to the present site at 111 State St. to provide newer facilities and easier access through adjacent parking.

The present board of directors includes:

THOMAS A. DUKE
Chairman of the Board
JOSEPH T. BRENNAN
DONALD C. COULTER
DOROTHY DIXON
RUSSELL C. HENDERSON
LOUIS J. HOLLOW
EDWARD K. SHANAHAN

Professional beggars are thick in Charlevoix this summer. Some are afflicted with burns, and some with broken arms, and most of them are base frauds and should be run out or set to work on the stone pile. One of them with an "arm broken in the mines" struck Petoskey some time ago and the marshal took him to the city physician. the doctor broke the plaster of Paris cast on the arm and kicked the fraud to the street.

The Charlevoix Golf Club, which means practically the Chicago Summer Resort Company, for some time have been trying to secure the race track "40" to add to the domain of the golfers. Last Monday, at "town meetin' " it was voted to accept the proposition of $35 per acre, and the town is $1,575 ahead in the matter of cash, and short an excellent site for a fair ground and race track. But we will have the satisfaction of knowing that Charlevoix will have the biggest and best golf links in the state, and one of the best in the country. If there are any more forties lying around up that way it will be well to pin them down because the people have absorbed the spirit of expansion and won't stop short of Mt. McSauba and the railroad track.

The marshal gives notice that he will enforce this rule to the letter. Let the boys take due notice and govern themselves accordingly.

We cannot blame the north-siders for feeling a little above the rest of us. That they are "stuck on themselves" in a manifest fact, but their vanity is not without warrant. The north side is certainly the loveliest portion of Charlevoix the Beautiful. Of course it starts in with a balance to its credit in being most favored by nature. The Lake Michigan outlook along the curve of the "Petoskey Road" is enchanting, and the line of neat residences along the bend with their beautiful groves and well kept lawns, constitute a very reasonable excuse for north siders exhibiting their conceit. There is no more beautiful street in Northern Michigan than Dixon Avenue. It is a boulevard. Lindsay Park, the Mcech conservatories and the C. & W.M. grounds are the pride of Charlevoix. The homes of the north side arc among the best in our village and the improvements in the progress and those contemplated will throw the south side in the shade.

By the time the First World War had come to an end, the docks on the Round Lake waterfront were in deplorable condition.

Some spots had to be fenced off, especially on places where the water traffic was heavy and the danger of stepping through the rotting planks was the greatest.

Today, Charlevoix can boast of one of the finest yacht harbors on the northern Great Lakes.

Note the bridge in the background. To the far left, in shadows, would be the approximate location of our ladies and children's apparel shop today.

This building was to remain in this location until after completion of the new Memorial Bridge (as we know it today), at which time Earl Young built the now famous Weathervane Inn on this spot.

Today we can enjoy a delicious meal and beverage overlooking the Pine River Channel and watch the many beautiful yachts passing by, but only dream of the cruise ships that covered the Great Lakes.

The Fountain City House

From the Sentinel: This house originally commencing in 1867 was simply the boarding house for the men in the employ of A. Fox & Co., and consisted of the West Wing of the house which was then only one story and a half high. The growing popularity as a summer resort forced Mr. Cooper into enlarging his accommodation and the large 3 story upright was erected in 1877. Again last year the house was found to be insufficient in size to meet the requirements and a large 2 story addition was built in the rear of the upright. The house has a large number of rooms, occupies a sightly position, and is during the summer months crowded to overflowing, Mr. Cooper, the landlord, has an enviable reputation among tourists and sportsmen.

Even then, our town was popular as a resort community, and many of our visitors still enjoy the location of the Fountain City House, but the building has been updated a bit.

The Hotel Elston

Built in 1895, by R. W. Elston for his daughter. The Hotel Elston was located on the site where Oleson's Shopping Center now stands.

Mr. Elston had the town council declare Newman St. a dead-end so that he could build the structure across what would have been the right-of-way, had the street extended.

Fire nearly destroyed the Elston in the early period of the 1900's between 1915 and 1920. As a result of investigation, prison sentences were received by several local persons for arson.

The Elston had many different names through the years two of the better known were Lakeside and Hallet House.

In 1963 Oleson's Shopping Center was erected on the site and today you can still see many of the original stone from the mammouth fireplace of the Elston, reconstructed in the existing fireplace at Olesons.

Oleson's are currently in their 50th year of operation in Northern Michigan, and have been in Charlevoix for eleven years. Their newest addition is a store in Petoskey, just announced last week.

The Oleson family is determined to help preserve our area's heritage and in doing so have been a compliment to our community. They now own the largest buffalo herd, east of the Mississippi, over 200 head. There fore continuing a national emblem.

In 1868 Messrs. Crone and Dorman came from Mackinac and erected the Ingleside Boarding House. Mr. Dorman, a baker, conducted a bakery and grocery store in the lower front rooms. In 1892 the Ingleside changed hands and became known as the Noble Hotel. In 1895 it caught fire and was partially burned. In 1897 F.N. Chapel, using the undamaged part of the store, with offices and rooms in the two top floors. Chapel sold to B.A. Herman, who called his pharmacy the Central Drug Store. He sold out to Harley Ochs. In 1958 Mr. Ochs and his son, Frank, replaced the old building which was in sad state, with the present brick building.

By the time Captain Alexander retired after over 50 years service, he had traveled more than 25,000 miles - enough to circle the earth. Alexander operated the Ferry from 1883 to 1935 and during all that time no one paid one penny to cross on the Ferry.

"A Great Tradition"

A maritime style condominium is rising on Round Lake in Charlevoix. Known as LeHavre (meaning, The Harbor), the project is located on the site of the historic Hamilton Boatyard, which for 60 years serviced the big yachts sailing Lake Michigan.

Sailors and sailing vessels have sought Charlevoix as a safe harbor ever since sailboats first came to northern Michigan waters, and for the last 60 years of that time, the Hamilton Boatyard on the shore of Round Lake has continuously serviced these sailboats.

In 1853, the United States Government granted 80 acres of bounty land to army officer Abram Wadsworth, who in turn sold it in 1855 to John S. Dixon. Dixon was the son of a Yale graduate and a college graduate himself who bought a piece of this bounty land and moved his wife and children into a small log home.

John Dixon was one of the earliest Charlevoix settlers and held several public offices. He was at different times justice of the peace, county clerk, superintendent of schools and in 1863-64, he represented the Grand Traverse District in the State Legislature.

John S. Dixon was one of the original directors of the Harbor Improvement Company, which was established in 1869. He also surveyed and platted a large part of what is now the City of Charlevoix. One of the most beautiful streets in Charlevoix bears his name.

Another former owner of the LeHavre properties was M.J. Stockman who was born in Loraine, Ohio in 1833.

In 1857, he moved to Charlevoix, and began a fishing business that was quite successful. In 1862, he left Charlevoix and enlisted in the Ohio Volunteer Sharpshooters, but returned to his home after the war.

In 1872, he opened the first hardware store in Charlevoix. He became a leading businessman in the growing little community and acquired more property, including part of the LeHavre piece. Stockman owned two steamers which engaged in passenger traffic on the lakes. In 1858, he became the first town clerk.

Owners of the present LeHavre site have been taking care of such sailboats for over 70 years. Around the turn of the century, Sam Hamilton went into the boat business when he began to rent sailboats and row boats. The row boats were used to row across from the Belvedere Bayou to the Charlevoix business district and to the Chicago Club. Originally, Hamilton had only 40 feet of property on the water and there he established the first commercial boatyard in Charlevoix.

After Sam Hamilton's death his son Ray S. Hamilton took over the business and it prospered, hosting and servicing large sailboats that plied the Great Lakes.

In 1960, Robert Hamilton, grandson of the founder, took over a business in which he had been well grounded. Bob Hamilton was only nine years old when he began working. After that he worked on sailboats for every summer of his life, with the exception of the war years when he was in service.

Many sailboats have changed hands over the years, but some of the most noble have called Hamilton's Boatyard "home" for over 30 years. It is true also that the same old families have been coming to the boatyard for sailboat service for as long as 50 years. Old and distinguished Charlevoix resort names are listed with Hamilton's Boatyard, such as John P. Wilson, Tom Adler, Bill Witherspoon, Fred Schaub and Henry Stein.

Many of the famous old boats of the past have called the Hamilton Boatyard, home. More recently, the boatyard has been a traditional stopping place for some of the famous Mackinac Island Race boats, including the Matina, Fortuna, Esbrow, Blitzen, 8th Girl, Bangalore, Gypsy, Aria, Wind-Song and Windigo. Dock hands at the yard will continue to throw out the welcome lines for visiting yatchsmen and provide a permanent home for residents of the stylish, new condominium.

The occasion was the visit of a governor to Charlevoix. This picture was taken by the bridge looking south. On the corner of Bridge and Main, (now Park Ave.) stood a mercantile business, now the location of Hess Furniture. In later years Adams ice cream parlor and lunch counter occupied the site. Western Union was also located there for about 25 years. Many of the residences and business establishments from this period have been razed, completely remodeled or lost to fire.

Hess Furniture undertook their business in 1949 and have been a standing symbol of quality furniture and friendly service.

The above picture was taken from the Dixon Avenue home of Mr. John Nichols in 1884. Mr. Nichols was owner of the lumber mill and had interests in many other enterprises in the area. He was a leader in banking circles and his was the controlling hand in the local commercial arena.

Many old landmarks dot the above landscape. To the far left in the J.L. Hurd Co. dock, later Wilbur's dock, now the city dock. To the left of the mill smokestack, in the distance, is the old Court House. In the center of the picture is the Lewis Grand Opera House. Between the Methodist Church and the Congregational Church can be seen the wooden school house that burned in 1886. To the right is the old Roller mill, and spanning the channel the first of the steel, swinging bridges.

Corner of Bridge & Park Charlevoix

In the early 1800's Charlevoix and the surrounding area was largely dependent on the lumber trade. Pine River was dredged time and again to make way for the steam ships to pass through Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix) to have access to the various lumber mills in the region. The area grew and prospered quickly. In 1869 Charlevoix was a community of a half dozen homes, and after 11 years had passed it was a proud village boasting 450 inhabitants; Pine River instead of a stream with a foot bridge, and growing popularity as a resort.

THE UPRIGHT RESIDENCE

Built in 1882 by Mr. Adelbert R. Upright, this three story home was located on the N.W. corner of State and Hurlbut Ave. A tragedy in the family was the cause of it being known as the Haunted House.

At the turn of the century every small town with any civic pride at all had at least one genuine honest-to-goodness HAUNTED HOUSE, and Charlevoix was no exception. It is very doubtful that a more imposing haunted house ever existed anywhere. It was three stories high. From its lofty perch at the top of the hill at State and Hurlbut, overlooking the bluff, it cast its haunting eye in every direction, and could be seen from almost any part of town.

In the middle eighties the house was occupied by a prominent Charlevoix family, the Uprights (from whence Upright St. got its name). The Uprights had a daughter, of High School age, very lovely and popular with the young people of the town. One day in the early part of summer she became ill and was confined to her bed. She remained so all during the summer and early fall. No one seemed to know the nature of her illness, which was not too surprising in those days. Sickness was taken care of in the home, for Charlevoix was without a hospital at that time. About the middle of the month of October, Dr. Lewis, in charge of the case, had to leave town for a few days. He left instructions with Mr. Hines, the druggist, concerning the girl's medication during his short absence. Mr. Hines said that from the start of the girl's illness he had delivered medicine to the Upright home several times a week. Shortly after the doctor left town Mr. Upright sent word to Mr. Hines to stop sending the medicine, as they had no more need for the drugs. A few days later Mr. Upright called the livery stable and ordered a rig sent to the house. He and Mrs. Upright drove to the depot, got on the train, and were never seen in Charlevoix again. To this day no one knows what happened to their daughter.

In May, 1890, Will E. Hampton moved to Charlevoix with his wife and daughter.

His brother, Charles Hampton had purchased the Charlevoix Journal from Charles Strang, who had become ordained as a minister, and felt he needed Will's assistance with his work load as he owned another paper in the area.

In 1894, Will bought the Charlevoix Journal from his brother and changed the name to the Charlevoix Courier. He operated in the basement of M.A. Levinson & Co. (now Lieberman's).

In 1908 Hampton sold out to A.J. Usher, and successive owners have been: Spanolio, Oliver, Totten, and Albert Schaller.

The First Airplane Flight to Beaver Island

A young man on Beaver Island, Jesse Cole, was helping in a log loading operation when he was struck on the head by a "jammer" that tipped over, causing a skull fracture. A desperate call for medical help went out to the Charlevoix Coast Guard, who immediately got in touch with Dr. Robert Bruce Armstrong. It being in the dead of winter the only transportation would be by air, a very hazardous undertaking, since no flights had ever been made to the Island, even under more favorable conditions. However, Dr. Armstrong said he would go if a pilot and a plane could be found. In a very short time Selfridge Field had been contacted and a plane was on its way. But engine trouble developed and the pilot had to land in deep snow at Gaylord. A second plane, the Dspray II, was sent out, the pilot Russell L. Meredith, Lt. in the Air Force. After a flight of two hours and forty minutes and a distance of 241 miles he landed his plane safely on the ice of Lake Charlevoix adjacent to the Belvedere pier. Late that afternoon, February 7, 1923, with Dr. Armstrong aboard, the plane landed gently on the snow covered ice of Lake Geneserth. There is no doubt the guardian Angel that attended the airplane and its passengers stayed near by to attend to the stricken boy, for after a touch and go battle the young Jesse recovered. This eventful flight showed the need of air service, a need that in a few years was to result in the Island's own airport.

McPhillips Flying Service and the Beaver Island Boat Co. have supplied this interesting portion of historical information.

Charlevoix County State Bank

Established in 1884 as the Farmers & Merchants Bank, with a capital of $33,000. John Nickols, President; John Saveland, Vice-President; Archie Buttars Cashier.

In 1885, the name was changed to Charlevoix Savings Bank, with re-organization in 1889 and opening January 2, 1890 as the Charlevoix County Bank.

1903 - the old Chamberlain Building on the corner of Clinton St. & Bridge was purchased by Nickols, Buttars & Bridge and "the Bank on the Corner" was completed on the site in 1905.

February 24, 1934 marked the date the bank officially became Charlevoix County State Bank with all deposits insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

The pre-dawn hours of February 8, 1924, with 28 degrees below zero weather, saw a fire totally destroy the bank building.

The bank vault in the basement remained intact, so valuable papers and records were not lost. Tenants in the building were not so lucky. The J.L. Crane Co., in the north and west sections downstairs burned out. The second floor offices of a Harveys, Lisle Shanahan & A.L. Fitch were completely destroyed, as was the recently remodeled Knights of Pythias Lodge on the 3rd floor. The following day, the bank reopened in a "summer shop" 3 doors north of Van Pelt Place, and advertised in the Charlevoix Courier that they moved because "the corner of Bridge & Clinton had gotten too hot for us". A new building was erected on the same location later in 1924.

In 1964, the Charlevoix County State Bank bought 2 buildings to enlarge its downtown banking facilities. The remodeling was completed in July, 1965. This was the last major building project until the Robert Bridge Branch Office on M-66 was erected in 1972, and the interior remodeling downtown in 1975.

STAIRWAYS TO second stories of public buildings are among those barriers most disheartening to the handicapped.

Handicapped Face Ups and Downs

EDITOR'S NOTE: Courier reporter Frau Martin covers local news happenings from a different prospective. She is one of the thousands of Americans who are confined to a wheelchair. Despite this enormous handicap, Miss Martin has never hesitated to cover any breaking news. Here is her report on the obstacles she must often overcome to get the news.

By Fran Martin

Nobody is briefed ahead of time about what it is like to be handicapped.

Only the handicapped are aware of the barriers they face every time they venture out of the security of their homes...barriers never seen by the average person.

For instance, that a person in a wheelchair can't get a simple thing like a drink of water though there are water fountains up and down the street and in many Charlevoix buildings.

. . . Or that the handicapped person can't go to the bathroom because there are no toilet facilities wide enough for a wheel chair or equipped with grab bars that allow him to utilize public toilets.

. . . That one can't make a telephone call from a public telephone...existing facilities won't allow it.

. . . That if you want to go shopping, get your hair done, go to the offices of dentist or even a doctor you're met with curbs, steps or chairs that make these things "no-no's".

. . . That a handicapped student would find that just going to school would be a hardship. He could enter the new elementary and high schools but Charlevoix's middle school is filled with barriers beginning at all but two of the buildings 10 entries...and these two limit one to a small area of the sprawling building.

He would find no desks he could use though Supt. James A. McKimmy said that such desks would be provided for the handicapped.

The elementary school is the only one of the three that provides toilet facilities for the handicapped or a parking area where he can park and be sure of space to allow him to alight from his car.

Barrier Free

These and countless others are among the reasons the State of Michigan has taken the lead in the nation in providing a "barrier free design" whereby the handicapped will eventually be able to utilize all facilities open to the public. "Barrier free design" is spelled out to mean those architectural designs which eliminate the type of barriers and hindrances that deter physically limited persons from having access to the free mobility in and around a building or structure.

It also defines "facilities used by the public," as any structure used by a public for educational, business, religious or housing purposes other than privately-owned one and two family dwellings. This also includes transportation and recreation facilities.

Who are the members of society who are seeking the "barrier free design"...the right to get about in their already limited world?

He's the person injured in an automobile accident; the farmer injured when his tractor overturned; the youth who dived off a dock or diving board into shallow water; the professional man or the housewife who has suffered a stroke; war veterans; persons with birth defects, adults as well as children; athletes...skiers, gymnasts, football players and others; persons who have encountered polio, multiple sclerosis and similar diseases...the list goes on and on.

How many people are there who come under these categories? Would you believe one out of every 60 across the nation, according to national statistics? And the number is growing as statistics reveal that 83,000 Americans, about 4,000 of them from Michigan, join the ranks of the handicapped every month.

Downtown Ramps

The ramping of curbs in the business district this summer by the city of Charlevoix has brought to the attention of area residents to what can be done to make the life of a handicapped person easier. However, this is just the beginning of what can be accomplished.

Facilities for the handicapped who do any traveling are limited. In larger metropolitan areas the larger chain motels and restaurants have been installing these facilities for some time. However, here they are almost non-existent. Some units can be reached with ease but there are none with toilet facilities designed for the handicapped.

Restaurants are another thing...a few are accessible but not all of these welcome handicapped as patrons, perhaps because of the awkwardness of a wheelchair or, perhaps as one person said, "because seeing a handicapped person in a wheelchair is repulsive to some people. I know it is to me."

Another area resident, handicapped not too many years ago from an automobile accident, said: "It sure raises havoc with your social life. I couldn't believe that it's as bad as it is. There aren't too many restaurants you can get into and when you do find you can't go to the john if the need arises...and it does.

"At the movies there are no seats that can be used by the handicapped unless you want to sit in your own wheelchair almost under the screen and crane your neck.

"And the majority of homes are built with countless steps. Unless you invite people to your own home, your social life, I find,

Here are your responses to the question asking whether or not the city should lease property, known as Alice Street, to a local condominium.

Shouldn't Lease

I don't think you should lease Alice Street to the condominiums.

No Way

I do not think the City should lease Alice Street to LeHavre. I do not!

No Lease

I do not think the City should lease Alice Street to anybody.

Not the Same

Look around, what's happened? Everybody has stopped caring. Charlevoix just isn't the same anymore. Why don't we start thinking and start caring for our town. When you see trash, pick it up, pick up your share and maybe a little more. Show that you care. The trash cans are nicely painted. Let's make Charlevoix as good as new.

Don't Lease

I don't think Alice Street should be leased at all.

Keep Public Property

I don't think the City should lease any public property to anyone, and that includes Alice St. or any property at all. The City should not lease any property to any private concern.

Trash!

Look around you and what do you see - trash! Let's keep Charlevoix beautiful. Two years ago it all started. Condominiums blocked the view of Lake Michigan. Tourists didn't care. Kids painted trash cans to help. So the next time you see trash put it in one of our newly designed trash cans. That's what beauty is all about.

Susie Parker, age 10.

No Way

Regarding Alice Street, the stretch from Belvedere to the Lake was always considered city property. I know the Hamilton's and was employed at their yard for many years. Ray Hamilton was a fine man and often said he would like to own that strip. As to improving it, he never did. The tool shop he owned was for his own convenience not to improve the property. He often said he hoped he would not get kicked out of it. The strip should be open to the public, as was originally intended. It is the last public access on that side of the lake. For the love of heaven, don't strip away land we home folks need, so that LeHavre will eventually sell it for many thousands of dollars. Let's keep Charlevoix as Charlevoix should be.

FORGET IT

Charlevoix City Council better forget leasing any more property to private groups. I'm getting tired of seeing downstaters run everything up here. They may have the money, but they shouldn't be able to have the public property too. This lease proposal is one of the worst things I have ever seen. Why is it taking city council so long to decide? In my opinion, there's nothing to decide.

City Reconsiders Alice Lease Monday

Charlevoix City Council is expected to decide Monday whether or not it will lease Alice Street to a private condominium development.

City fathers have been mulling over a proposal to lease a 27-foot-wide parcel of property to LeHavre Condominiums, but so far have been unable to reach agreement.

The slender undeveloped strip of property that runs between Round Lake and Belvedere Avenue has been the center of controversy for several weeks.

City Council met again last Thursday for several hours in committee and were still unable to make a decision on whether the property should be leased to the private development for 99 years at $500 a year.

I think we are close to coming up with something that will please everybody," Acting City Administrator Robert Wexstaff told the Courier.

"It will probably be some type of lease for a shorter term."

City officials said the major problem has been over whether or not the condominium association would allow pedestrian traffic on the property if it was under lease.

In earlier meetings, the association said they would be willing to grant public utility easements, but was not interested in public traffic.

During a public hearing last Monday, many city residents argued that the property should not be turned over to the condominium development under any type of agreement.

They argued that the city council had no right to relinquish any of the city's public lakes access.

Developers argued that the property is virtually useless as it stands now because it is so narrow, but would provide easier access to LeHarve. The property lies between phase one and two of the development.

Under the proposed lease agreement, the condominium would pay for the maintenance of the property.

The property question had earlier been in court, when former owner Robert Hamilton attempted to get a clarification of who owned the property, but was dropped when the city agreed to grant a building permit for the condominium. The ownership question had never been resolved because the land strip does not appear on original land plats.

New Environmental Group Forms

A new group organized here Labor Day to protect Charlevoix from what it termed potentially hazardous threats to the local environment.

Calling itself, "Keep Charlevoix the Beautiful Association," the group hopes to focus public awareness on environmental threats, as well as take direct actions against local problems.

Some 40 residents met over the holiday weekend to lay out groundwork for attacking pollution problems threatening the Charlevoix area.

"A number of people are concerned about the problem of Medusa," a group spokesman said.

"Everybody has his own complaint."

Residents near the Charlevoix cement company have complaining bitterly over foul smells and dust, they allege is coming from the Medusa Cement located just outside of Charlevoix on the Lake Michigan shore line.

"We were rather shocked and disappointed that no government levers have been pulled," the spokesman said.

The spokesman said the

THIS MOSQUITO has just come out of the freezer-- a bit woozy and weak-legged. (Photo by Norris Ingells)

Smile, You Blood Thirsty Buzzer

How do you make a mosquito say "Cheese?"

First you freeze it, then thaw it, then give it a nice big drink of blood.

To get closeup pictures of some of the little stinkers I caught several in jars, then stashed them in the freezer for about 20 minutes.

By then they look dead, but aren't.

Before they "thaw out" you put them in front of your closeup equipment, then sit back and wait. Pretty soon they move a little – then some more -- and finally stand up.

Like drunken sailors, they'll sometimes fall over once or twice before finally getting straight. You can help them regain their "sealegs" with a pair of tweezers or a long needle.

Once they are standing normally you have about a minute to shoot your pictures before the buzzers recover enough to fly away.

Of course you can delay their departure by having them wake up on your finger. They'll usually take a long drink of blood before launching into the wild blue yonder. yonder.

When you've got your pictures, the biggest remaining problem is explaining to the family why there are mosquitos flying all over the kitchen.

Even worse, you have to think up a good answer when your wife – with an icy edge in her voice – asks: "What's this jar full of bugs doing in my freezer?"

Pesky Skeeters Show in Force

Expect more mosquito bites from now until cooler weather, warns Michigan State University entomologist.

"Aedes vexans", a tough mosquito capable of flying up to a mile, may become serious pests of humans and animals at local fairs and other outside activities scheduled the rest of this summer, says Dr. H. Don Newson.

Vexans differ from the woodland mosquito which is usually most intense during early summer months.

"Vexans are a flood water mosquito that lay eggs in almost any moist or water-filled depression. Where the woodland mosquito requires several weeks from egg to flying adult, the vexans, when weather conditions are suitable, can hatch within eight to ten days," Dr. Newson reports.

Their flying ability and resting habits usually make spraying of the immediate grounds of a public area unsatisfactory. "They rest in high grass, in tall vegetation and wooded areas during the day, becoming active at dusk and continue biting through the night," Newson says.

"It's just about a typical year for mosquitoes in Michigan – unbearable."

There are only a few measures that can be taken to ease the nuisance of mosquitoes: use a good repellent, put up good screens, use a spray, keep bushes trimmed, clear out blocked eaves and anything around the house that might hold large quantities of stagnant water.

Mosquitoes do more than bite. They carry certain viruses which can infect man and animals. Among these are heartworm in dogs and malaria in humans.

Dead Atlantics Still a Mystery

DNR BIOLOGIST Steve Swan examines one of the dead Atlantics found at the Boyne River.

By TOM DAMMANN

BOYNE CITY--An international expert on the effect of pollution in the Great Lakes on fish endocrinology joined three Michigan State fish biologists on the banks of the Boyne River in mid August to initiate new research into the cause of the mysterious mortality of Atlantic Salmon planted in the river during the last four years.

He brought with him the suggestion that these deaths may have implications for the public health.

According to the expert, Dr. Ronald Sunstegard, a research scholar in the Department of Microbiology, University of Guelph, Guelph, Ontario, this area of Michigan is the only one in the nurth American continent in which Atlantic Salmon have been planted in fresh water recently and are presently living, although there are land locked Atlantic Salmon in lakes of Maine and some of the eastern maritime provinces of Canada.

In 1972, 20,000 Cascapedia strain Atlantics in the smolt stage (stage in second year of growth when salmon prepare to leave the stream) were trucked here from Domtar Hatchery on the Gaspe Peninsula in Quebec Province. Half of them were released in the Boyne River, the other 10,000 were released in the Au Sable.

Clear Streams

Both rivers are fast, clear streams in which Rainbow, and Steelhead Trout thrive.

In 1973 another 15,000 smolt were trucked to the Boyne River from Domtar. In 1974 15,000 more smolts were raised in Michigan's Wolf Lake Hatchery from fingerlings imported from Domtar earlier.

This year 7,500 smolt raised from fertilized eggs in the Wolf Lake Hatchery were planted in the Boyne River together with another 9700 raised from eggs taken at Domtar.

Also this year the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) experimenting with a Swedish strain of fresh water Atlantic Salmon called Gulspang, planted 3430 smolt raised from fertilized eggs flown from Sweden.

All swam safely down stream to Lake Charlevoix soon after they were planted.

Adult Salmon

Last summer adult salmon began returning to the Boyne River which has been limited to fly fishing only with successful sportsmen required to return their catch to the water.

Some fine specimens were landed by fishermen casting lures along the shores of Lake Michigan and Charlevoix as well as by fly fishermen in the river. The record breaker weighed more than 16 pounds. But no matter the size, fishermen were unanimous in their praise of the Atlantics as the most thrilling fighters they had ever encountered.

This was welcome news to the DNR which had embarked on the program with the hope of establishing an exciting new summer sports fishery in streams and near the surface of lakes, as opposed to the already highly rewarding deep water Coho and Chinook Salmon fishery established in released. They had been the last decade.

But soon after the Atlantics entered the Boyne they began dying. Of the 250 that started upstream, only 16 survived and they were all males, thus terminating any hope of getting eggs with which to start a local brood stock, according to Steve Swan, DNR Fish Biologist directly in charge of the experiment.

This year only a few more than 50 made the run, far less than the more than 300 Swan anticipated. The compound the problem the run was inexplicably sporadic.

All the fish either had small red spots on their sides and heads when they entered the river or they developed suon after. These became lesions or open sores, the fish turned dark, grew lethargic and finally died.

Dead Fish

Swan said that DNR fish pathologists found the presence of a bacteria, virus or fungus common to them all. Dead fish were sent to the federal laboratory in Geneva, Wisconsin, which specializes in fish viruses, but scientific sleuths there fared no better at solving this mystery.

Dr. Sonstegard brings the aspect of public health to the problem Wurking under a grant from the Canadian National Cancer Institute, he has been studying tumors found in Great Lakes fish from Montreal to Duluth, eumparing those found in polluted waters with those found in unpolluted waters.

A specialist in fish endrocnology, one of the first things he noted in the ten live Atlantics he performed autopsies on was their enlarge pituitary and thyroid glands.

[illegible]'s chief pathologist John Hnath have suggested before, that the Atlantic Salmon is a species that has a rapid gonad development at this time of year, which places great stress on its system. If this is aggravated by an environmental stress caused by an unsult from such o pollutant as PCB (a chemical used in plastics which is thought to cause cancer) it might prove too much fur the fish tu stand.

"We are concerned with the environmental impact on the fish because of the implications for higher animals, even man," Dr. Sunstegard said. "We are concerned about the cumulative effect of these insults, not merely the one shot insult.

DNR Expert Reveals Hot Spots

Charlevoix Fall Fishing Looks Bright

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

As cooler winds stir the lakes, dropping water temperatures, fishing thoughts replace summer daydreams for many Charlevoix residents and tourists.

Lake Trout and some Coho and Chinook are still swimming in the summer depths of 115 to 130 feet, keeping them accessible to "deep-sea" type rigs only.

But, within weeks, if the weather maintains its usual schedule, the Lake Trout will begin moving to shallower water and masses of Coho will start schouling, according to Myrl Keller of the DNR's Charlevoix Fisheries Station.

As trout and salmon move up, Keller predicted good sports fishing to continue through November.

An exact schedule is as predictable as the weather. However, Keller made some general propheeies.

Warm Waters

Lake Trout prefer water temperatures around 50 degrees F., while salmon, Steelhead and Brown Trout opt for water about 56 to 60 degrees F.

Therefore, deep water trout fishing should be good through the end of September, with the fish gradually moving up.

Coho, Steelhead and Brown Trout will begin congregating at the end of the Charlevoix pier heads, in Lake Michigan at the end of the month.

Keller predicted by the third week of September, pier fishermen will see "The best salmon fishing ever in Charlevoix."

He says this year's salmon run in the Pine River Channel should be far bigger than anything anglers saw a few years ago at Advance in Lake Charlevoix.

"We planted 130,000 Coho in the channel in the Spring of 1974. Those young salmon spent a long time jumping around Round Lake, so they should be well imprinted to this system," Keller explained, referring to the "homing instinct" of salmon.

Salmon Spot

Noting that the current alternates between flowing into Lake Michigan and Round Lake, Keller confirmed that since a salmon's instict is to run up stream, fishermen will find fish at either end of the channel, depending on the current.

Prior to running, the Coho will school at the channel mouth in Lake Michigan. Fishermen should troll between North and South Points.

Lake Trout will follow the Colu into the channel, by mid-October. During the Coho run, Keller expects anglers to catch Steelhead and incidental Brown Trout as well.

Trollers are advised to use Manistee Wobblers, Herring Dudgers and flies, with downriggers when they persue the Lake Truut or schooling salmon.

Little cleos, spinners and spawn are recommended for casting in the channel.

Nine Mile Point

Stray Chinook Salmon, Keller hopes will also be found in the channel. They will be wanderers from Nine Mile Point.

In an experiment, two years ago, the DNR planted 100,000 young Chinook in open water off Nine Mile Point.

"If they do 'home'," Keller said, "some will end up in the channel. They'll be about five to seven pounds.

"The Coho should weigh from eight to twelve pounds," he thought.

Downstate anglers have added to the weekend fishing crowds on the piers in past years. At times, enthusiasm abetted by beer has made the atmosphere somewhat competitive. Keller acknowledged.

It is hoped that improvements to the revetment on the north pier will dissipate the crowds, relieving the pressure on the south pier.

DNR Law Enforcement officers will again patrol to deter snaggers and foul-hookers, and other unfortunate problems arising from the bountiful fishery. Keller assured the Courier.

Water Wheel Maker Fights Red Tape

By PEG OHLE

When you have seven children and are faced with today's rising cost of living what do you do about it?

William Hanson of Wilson Township has an idea but it is caught up in government red tape.

Hanson lives in a five-bedroom house on Deer Creek. The house is heated with electricity which last year averaged him $97 a month. This year's estimate is $176 a month.

Last April Hanson conceived the idea uf harnessing the current of Deer Creek to generate electricity. He drew up his own plans for an undershot waterwheel then proceeded tu get the necessary permission to construct the waterwheel.

Wilson Township officials didn't quite know what to do about it but they did say he would need a Zoning Permit, for which Hanson paid $10 "for paper work." Then it was decided that since the waterwheel was to be placed in an inland waterway, Department of Natural Resources permission was needed.

Hanson started his trip up the DNR ladder at the Boyne City office. He paid $25 to file his application for the waterwheel, complete with drawings of the wheel and a map showing its location on his property. That was on June 26.

The application found its way to the DNR Roscommon office, from which notices of the application were sent to the Charlevoix Soil Conservation District, the Wilson Township Clerk and the Charlevoix County Clerk. The notices were dated July 17 and read:

"When an application is received for a permit to authorize work in, or over, the inland waters of Michigan, the statue (Public Act 346 of 1972) provides that a notice regarding the application shall be sent to the Director of Public Health or Local Health Department designated by him, the city, village or township and the county where project is to be loented, the local Soil Conservation District, the local Watershed Council, if any, and the local property owners association or Port Commission, if any.

"Those persons objecting to the issuance of a permit may request a public hearing, by writing, to this office not later thin 20 days from date of issnance of this notice and clearly stating their objections. The dermination as to whether a permit will be issued, or a public hearing held, will be based on an evaluation of all revelant favors, including the effect of the proposed work on navigation, fish and wildlife, conservation, pollution, and the general public interest. Comments on these factors will be accepted and made oart of the files and will be considered in determining whether it would be in the public interest to grant a permit. Objections should be factual and specific in describing the reasons upon which the protest is founded."

Last week when the Courier contact the DNR Roscumnon office it was learned that no public comments regarding the project had been received and that the application had been sent to the Gaylord office for investigation.

A spokesman for the Gaylord office said they had the application but that they were behind in their work and would proralaly make an inspection "next week."

In the meantime, Hanson, who raises cattle and hogs on his 120 acre farm which lies on both sides of the creek, awaits some word about approval of his project. Even if he does receive DNR permission to go ahead with it, it is not clear what other local permits he will need.

"Winter is coming and I have to get it built," snys Hanson, who is also a construction worker in the summertime.

Outhouse Debate

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has taken one step backwards with a proposed act that would allow the disposal of boat refuse into the nation's water if it is chemically treated.

The act has sent shock waves through Lansing and several Northern Michigan communities to the point that they are asking for Michigan to be exempt from the act.

Michigan, unlike other states, has its own requirement that boat refuse from holding tanks be disposed of at pumping stations.

Gov. William G. Milliken has already asked the EPA to adopt a requirement like Michigan's. Since the EPA's recent refusal, the Governor is looking at different options and is expected to go back to the EPA.

We find it difficult to believe that the EPA would take a position of having lower standards when it involves the quality of our water.

Traverse City has already gone on record opposing the move and we hope Charlevoix and other coastal communities make similar moves.

A national sailing publieation this month viewed the ban as only a grim thought and could hardly believe the country considering a ban on discharge wastes.

They have said that senior officials of the Environmental Protection Agency appear to have accepted privately what they call a common-sense approaeh and are asking them to do it publiely.

The publieation indicates that the most uniform and most practical solution is onboard treatment and subsequent overboard discharge consistent with modern-day technology.

They say there should be a long-term plan for subsequent upgrading to a point where marine toilets would eventually produce effluent equal to drinking water standards.

While we agree with the need for a long-term plan, we find the pragmatic solution of dumping chemically treated affluent into our lakes absurd.

It is already difficult to understand why the EPA allowed communities like Charlevoix and Petoskey to use waste water treatment facility designs that allow for dumping of treated wastes into Lake Michigan.

A more logical solution would have been a lagoon system like the one used by East Jordan, where solid wastes are sent to large holding ponds far away from large bodies of water.

When it comes to the quality of our water, we feel there is no compromise.

If pumpout stations are not available in communities for boaters to use, the EPA should be encouraged to embark on a new program to insure that they are installed.

Lake Erie should be a living testimony of what happens to an area that takes on an attitude that a little effluent isn't going to harm a large body of water.

Apparently, Lake Erie isn't enough.

Container Controversy

State Representative Ralph Ostling has taken an attitude toward non-returnable bottles that we find distressing.

In form letters sent to his constituents inquiring about the proposed bottle ban, Ostling questions whether the banning of returnable bottle is the answer.

He says that many items strewn along highways, parks and beaches have not contained beverages.

He says household aluminum foil is particularly bothersome, as well as a stream of olive and pickle containers, mayonnaise jars, plastic eating utensils and food cartons left by picnickers. He adds that candy wrappers, cigarette packages and plastic wrappings abound.

Ostling says he seriously doubts that the recovery of a deposit would deter littering to any great extent.

"People are as careless over a few cents as they are about disposing of their trash," he writes in his letters.

Our state representative thinks a massive education program directed at the taxpayer illustrating the monumental cost of cleaning up recreational areas would prove more effective in the long run.

Ostling has apparently missed the point behind the proposed ban on non-returnable bottles.

The bill, which is presently in the Committee on Agrieulture and Consumers Affairs in the Senate, is not designed to be a cure all for the state's litter problem.

Senate Bill 223 is only one step toward curbing litter. More importantly the bill encourages people to think more about recycling rather than throwing out containers.

While a widespread anti-litter educational program might theoretically appear sound, we feel it offers more weaknesses than strengths.

We hope Mr. Ostling reconsiders his position when the Senate Bill reaches his Chambers.

Every litter bit hurts.

Beaver Island Politics

by DAVID S. BRODER

BEAVER ISLAND, Mich.--Before leaving Washington, the usually reliable source hinted that Bill Seldman, economic advisor to the President, might be visiting Beaver Island this week on his hiking tour through the Great Lakes. So far, he has not showed up.

That is not unusual. Rep. Jim O'Hara, D-Mich., who is running for the Senate seat Phil Hart is vacating, said he might try to get here for last weekend's homecoming festivities but he didn't make it either. No transportation available from Marquette, he said.

No one was surprised or, quite frankly, much disappointed. There is a casual air of engagements involving Beaver Island. It's an out-of-the-way place and those who come here are not in search of company. Unless you're building a house and the contractor fails to show up, as happened rather frequently this year to some friends from Massachusetts, non-appearances are an accepted part of the island ritual.

Still, we could have used Bill Seidman the other morning. Down at McDonough's store, the Sunoco gas pump had mutinied at the latest change in prices. It's not like the pump that had stood there for years - with a hand crank to push the gas up from the storage tank in the ground and a simple clock-like dial to measure how much was going into your car.

This is one of those magnificent modern contraptions, offering five different grades of fuel as ascending octane-ratings and prices, depending on the horsepower of the car. But on this morning, it appeared to be a wounded beast, its decorative pelt spread on the ground and its inside, looking like a demented dreamer's idea of a pinball machine, naked to the world.

Three of us were peering at the thing and trying to puzzle out the latest bulletin from Sunoco. The instructions were prepared by an executive who had trained, after the Wharton School, by writing those handy instruction sheets to accompany the "easy-to-assemble" toys you give kids for Christmas. The kind that keep you up until 3 a.m. on Christmas Eve, drinking and cursing.

"IT'S TOO MUCH for me," said Bud, who had been poking at the pump for some time before this paper's Beaver Island correspondent arrived at the scene, to be handed the set of instructions. "Set tabs 2, 3, 4, 5, and 7 on the intermediate position, it read. "Use tabs 1, 6, 8, 9, and 10 as shown."

We tried our best to comply, occasionally experimenting a gallon of 200 or 210 octane into a bottle, and checking to see what the price was. We never got it right. The pump had adopted its own anti-OPEC policy, and seemed to know in advance, that the oil inport duty would be ruled unconstitutional. It simply refused to make people pay what Sunoco wanted to charge.

In the course of the experiment, it was also discovered that the pump was delivering a bit more-liquid per gallon than Maxbauer's Creamery delivers in milk - which is either a refutation of all Ralph Nader's theories about big oil companies or a sign that the rebellion in this particular pump lies even deeper in the system.

It was the kind of problem a presidential economic advisor and certified public accountant like Bill Seidman could have solved in five minutes. But this correspondent thought it best to slink away from the scene, for it seemed clear that the Sunoco pump was about to be kicked hard where it counts. Like so much else in our technical society, it is hard to believe in what you have seen what really makes it work.

Except for the spastic gas pump, inflation has eased noticeably here. The barbecued chicken dinner served to the reunion guests at Holy Cross parish hall last Sunday (complete with mashed potatoes and gravy, fresh corn, cole slaw, homemade pie, and beverage) was priced at $3.50 - the same as last year.

THERE WAS NO visible impact from the Russian wheat deal. The chicken sold out before the announced 5 o'clock closing time, and yielded a nice profit for the parish.

The energy crisis is reflected at the cabin mainly in the breakdown of the chain-activated switch on the bathroom light. It is now necessary for each visitor to the john to tighten the light bulb in the socket, if he or she wants light. Should Frank Zarb care, this is a very effective device for reducing energy use.

Employment around the cottage seems steady - which means there is enough work to keep kids busy, but not too much to interfere with the fishing. The biggest yacht anyone has seen in some time came into the harbor at St. James last weekend. Questions about ownership produced the information that it was the property of the Continental Bank of Chicago. No one is sure

By BOB CLOCK

Before the Courier goes on the press this week, the nation will have embarked on a do-or-die energy program which could mean a new lifestyle for all of us.

At midnight Sunday, price controls on old oil expired over the objections of Congress and all domestic oil is now free to find its own level. The price, of course, isn't about to go down, since oil not under control costs more than twice as much.

A month from now, the nation is in for another bluw in the petroleum department when foreign oil exporters meet to decide on the amount of their Oct. 1 price increase. Earlier this summer, the sheikhs and emirs were batting around an increase of from 10 to 30 percent. Lately, however, most of the experts have zeroed in on an increase of about 10 percent. I think it will probably come in slightly higher, based on the United States new rate of inflation -- currently pegged at 14.4 percent.

What does all this mean to John Q. Public?

For one thing it means the era of cheap power is finally over. We've known it for quite some time now, but we don't act like it. We drive just as far, just as fast, and with just as many empty seats on our automobiles, we keep our thermostats at home pretty much where we want them and few serious efforts have been made on the home front to conserve energy of any kind.

But those days are over.

Higher fuel prices are certain, in time, to effect every American to some degree -- unless he lives in a grass hut in the Everglades, weurs fig leaves, grows all of his own food, cooks his meals over a wood fire, goes to bed when the sun sets and doesn't travel any further than he can walk.

If you want something a little different, you're going to have to pay for it.

One legislator has estimated that the decontrol of old prices alone will cost the average American family $445 a year. The biggest share of that increase, of course, will be in higher costs for gasoline and fuel oil. However every item a fellow buys that must be transported -- and that includes just about everything -- is bound to reflect the steeply higher costs of transportation. Such costs cannot be absorbed by the shippers and they won't be.

No one has calculnted how much an increase in the price of foreign oil will cost the Amerlean consumer, but it will probably match the domestic increase -and then some.

Although President Ford's decision to let oil controls expire has earned him the wrath of Congress, I am convinced he is on the right course. Something has to be done to curb the wreckless consumption of petroleum products in the United States. Rationing would probably be a more equitable means, but there are enforeement problems in any rationing system that Mr. Ford would just as soon avoid.

As a result, we are all going to have to pay more for everything that is moved by petroleum or is made of petroleum, in addition to the cost of the petroleum we use to heat our homes.

It is going to be an exciting winter.

Erma Bombeck

A woman in Texas wrote that she stopped reading the column for awhile because frankly she was worried about me.

Not only was I whimpering about washers that ate one out of each pair of socks, but I had publicly stated there was a Loch Ness washer monster that scrambled everyone's laundry and you often ended up with a pair of shorts you had never seen before in your life.

Last week she wrote, "For several weeks my husband has been forced to wear a pair of women's support pantyhose, size medium although he is six feet tall and weighs 175 pounds. They were with my pantyhose I had washed on gentle cycle, but THEY WERE NOT MINE AND WHO ELSE'S COULD THEY BE?"

Good grief, woman, get hold of yourself.

I could take the easy way out and put you in touch with a reader in Portland, who last December, lost a pair of women's support pantyhose and in its place got a maternity top (she's 73) and contact the woman in Palo Alto who lost her maternity top and ended up with a Marine jumpsuit, but it's time consuming and it's futile.

The plain and simple truth is washers were never meant to be domesticoted.

I never see a Frankenstein movie but that I don't visualize a washer on a table in a laboratory...with lights flashing, test tubes bobbling and slowly the washer begins to pulsate and the dial turns slowly to pre-soak, the lid begins to jiggle, and a monster is born.

A monster with a mind of its own who can fade things pink in an all white load, put lint on socks that are washed alone, and knows the exact day when the warranty expires.

Day by day I see the washers of this country getting smarter and smarter. I saw one the other day that is programmed to pre-soak, release the bleach, add the soap, and cut loose the softener. The only thing it needs is human for is to tear the machine apart looking for the mates to all the socks.

I haven't told this to a living soul, but a friend of mine who always enjoyed a wonderful relationship with her washer, dropped in a cross-your-heart garment last week that came out with only one side left.

Her husband (a practical man) suggested if half of it was missing, that's all she put in. Her washer repairman didn't want to talk about it.

Moral of the story: Never turn you back on your washer. You never know when they'll go native!

Take a Bunker Bath, Tony

It would perhaps be a fine thing if Tony would go take a long bath with Gloria Stivec, nee Bunker, the Meathead's wife.

Tony is my most troublesome brother-in-law. More about him later.

If you watch TV Saturday nights, you know Gloria is Archie Bunker's daughter. And you will notice, as the new TV season begins, that Gloria will not appear in several shows. When Archie asks where's Gloria, Edith will simply answer: "She's in the bathtub."

This explanation will be meekly accepted and the Bunker plots will roll on without Gloria. The Meathead will express no concern that maybe his wife has been flushed into the Hudson River via the Bunkers' noisy plumbing. Archie will not blame the Jewish bankers because he hasn't been able to use his own bathroom for 4 weeks.

Not even nervous Edith will be worried about Gloria's prolonged absence. Because the whole family knows Gloria isn't stuck in the bathtub drain, she's on strike.

Gloria didn't think she was getting enough money for shrieking and bouncing her chest around the Bunker house every Saturday night. She refused to show up until the producer agreed to her terms. This took 4 weeks.

There was no thought of replacing Gloria with another high-pitched chest. There was no chance of dropping 4 shows, replacing them with public-service programs aimed at stamping out forest fires with astrology. Gloria simply took a long bath.

Isn't that marvelous? Ah, for the magic world of TV. Real life is a lot different. Which brings us back to Tony, who is always there.

He is married to my baby sister, Linda, who is bigger than my oldest sister, Terrible Jean. Linda is sister number 4. I left home and joined the army soon after her birth. World War 2 seemed safer.

Anyway, Tony is one of those husbands who "takes over." That's my wife's expression. When the baby cries, Tony gets him up and feeds him. When food is needed, Tony prepares it. When an ash tray is full, Tony empties it. When the house is too small, Tony builds a new one. When Linda burps, Tony exenses himself.

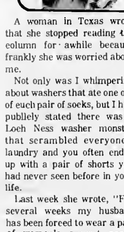
The other day my family wntched ns Tony loaded his family into a station wagon. One by one he carried out 4 small sons and their toys and inserted everything in its assigned place. Not until then did Queen Linda appear. She is pregnant and it looks like quintuplets.

"If he carries her to the car 1 am going to scream and pound the ground," I told my wife.

But my wife was busy instructing our teenage daughter. "Marry a man like Tony and you'll be happy," she advised. "He doesn't mind helping out around the house. He doesn't even have to be asked. When something needs doing, he just does it. He pitches in with the kids. There are not many husbands like Tony (at this point she knocked me 2 yards with a stare). He is the type of man every woman wants to marry..."

This is the type of abuse I suffer whenever Tony is performing near my wife. If it were only TV, he would surely strike for better pay. And perhaps disappear for a long, long bath.

I would give a rare do-it-yourself display by bricking up the bathroom door.



Meet Charlevoix

Jim Shepard

School is startiag again this week but for the staff of the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District it is not the end of a summer vacation. Here the Courier talks with James Shepard, superintendent of this school body that works year around.

COURIER: What is the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District?

SHEPARD: It is the school district serving Charlevoix, Emmet and part of Antrim County, from Mackinaw City to Central Lake and Beaver Island to East Jordan and Boyne City.

COURIER: "Intermediate" sounds as if you're concerned with Middle Schools.

SHEPARD: No, we work with all schools in the area. We are "Intermediate" because we are the liaison group between the State and local school districts. There are 11 different school districts with about 12,500 students in our area. Intermediate School Districts were created in 1963 throughout the State to take the place of the County School Districts.

COURIER: What is the main purpose of the Intermediate School District?

SHEPARD: Our job is to help kids function in society to the best of their ability - to help them grow into productive members of society.

COURIER: How do you go about this?

SHEPARD: Through the many programs we have to offer.

COURIER: Tell us something about them.

SHEPARD: We have a Media Center from which we loan various types of teaching materials to schools. For instance, last year we loaned 8,000 film strips. We have a cooperative agreement with other Intermediate School Districts as well as with the State so we have a large inventory to draw from.

We provide leadership and help schools with their Career Education and Vocatinnal Education programs and coordinate them throughout the area.

We secure help for schools from Federal programs. We work with new school superintendents to help them become acquainted with their districts.

We have In-Service Training sessions for administrators and staff in all subject areas.

We work closely with colleges and universities to develop programs that meet the needs of the area.

COURIER: What is your most important function?

SHEPARD: Most of our staff is involved with Special Education, that is assistance for those persons from age 0 to 25 who have physical or mental impairments requiring special attention.

We have Learning Disability Counsultants who help students who can't function properly in a regular classroom. We have School Psychologists who work with teachers and recommend prescriptions for problem students. We have teachers for hospitalized or homebound students. We have Social Workers for students having problems in or out of school.

Our Speech and Hearing Thcrapists teach students with those inpairments. We have a Teacher-Counselor for the deaf and hard of hearing with a formal program at Petoskey High School and a modified program at the lower levels.

In the Media Center we have a Curiculum Resource Consultant who develops and puts together materials to use in teaching students with learning problems.

We operate fuur Trainable Programs for students who are physically or mentally retarded, underdeveloped, deaf, dumb or blind -- those who are severely physically handicapped. We try to get as many of these into regular schools as soon as possible.

There will be a vote for a $980,000 bond issue on October 7 to build facilities for the Trainable Program. Except in Irunton, where we are using the old schoolhouse, we have been carrying on the programs in houses and church basements.

Another one of our services is an In-Home Trainer who works with very yuung handicapped children and their parents. Sometimes this starts as early as eight to ten weeks of age.

On the non-teaching side, we are overseers of such things as lunch programs and bus routes. In general, we do things that it would be difficult for individual school districts to do.

COURIER: How many people does it take to provide all these services?

SHEPARD: We have about 60 employees, 30 of whom are teaching staff.

COURIER: What is your background and how long have you been with the Intermediate School District?

SHEPARD: I grew up in East Jordan, graduated from High School there then went on to Michigan State University for Bachelor's and Master's degrees in Education. I also studied at the University of Michlgan und Central Michigan University. I came to the District in 1969 as a Vocational Consultant and was appointed Superintendent in 1972.

COURIER: Who are the members of the Charlevoix-Emmet School Board?

First Japanese Exchange Student Arrives

CHARLEVOIX'S NEWEST resident, Hideki Yamazaki, 17, of Tokyo, Japan, who has arrived to spend the school year with the Walter Hufford family. He is pictured here with the Hufford's daughter, Sandy, as she attempts to explain an English expression to him.

Charlevoix will be hosting its first Japanese exchange student during the coming school year.

He is Hideki Yamazaki, 17, who has arrived from Tokyo to spend the 1975-76 school year with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hufford and family under the sponsorship of the Youth for Understanding program. He will attend the Charlevoix high school as a senior. He will remain in the community until July 1976 when he will return to his homeland.

Hideki is the son of the Kazao Yamazakis of Tokyu where his father operates the Mitsubishi Company, an importing firm which distributes merchandise of every discription.

He says he has been studying English since Junior High school and that one of his chief reasons for coming here is to learn to speak the language more fluently.

Asked of his first impression of the United States, he answered, with a motion of his hands, "so wide", meaning the expanse of the country and its open spaces that one does not find in Japan.

At the Hufford household, Sandy, who spent the summer of 1974 in another part of Japan, is trying to make him feel at home as she attempts to translate for him though this is difficult for she speaks a different dialect. The rest of the family is busy acquainting him with such American activities as picnics, fishing, hoating and other family doings while the weather is good and before everyone is busy with school.

Bandsmen Fill Northern Woods

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

"If the trumpets would stop gazing off into the woods, it would help."

Joseph Patterson, Band Director at Livonia's Bentley High School, shouted. His competition was Charlevoix's Camp Seagull's woods and waterfront.

One hundred and two members of the Bentley Marching Band were winding up four day's intensive drill.

When Camp Seagull's regular summer season ends, downstate high schools use its facilities to whip their marching bands into performance shape.

Camp Seagul is owned and operated by the Lewis Schulman's of West Bloomfield. Mrs. Schulman said the Livonia group arrived on Friday the 22nd and left for home the afternoon of the 26th. Preceeding them, the 265 piece marching band from Flint's Common School District spent six days refining their manuevers, fine tuning their music.

Patterson shouted instructions to his band as he grabbed a folding camp chair and raced ahead of the approaching marchers to a new position. He dropped the chair, clambered up on the seat.

"Sophomores, if you don't know the tune, don't play, concentrate on learning the steps."

Patterson leaped from the chair and raced for the sidelines of the field, which was marked by cardboard signs designating football field yard lines.

Later he explained, "This is the first time our sophomores have marched together."

In order to gain maximum effect from the four days, the band and attendant band booster-counselor parents maintain a marathon schedule.

"We get them up at 7:15," Patterson explained. "Breakfast at 8 a.m., then the first rehearsal on the field from 8:45 to 11 a.m. We take a recreational break - mainly swimming in Lake Charlevoix, from 11:15 to noon, then lunch followed by field rehearsals until 3:15. From 3:15 to 5:30 they have recreation, again mostly waterfront activities. Supper's at 5:30. After supper, until 8:30 we hold music rehearsal in the camp's recreation building. We serve a snack at 9 p.m. and then we have projects."

Projects, with the exception of one trip to the Emmet County Fair in Petoskey, have also been musical.

A device to beef up sophomores, marching abilities was a "sophomore auction," in which upper classmenbers bid to have sophomores on marching squads. The upper classes were divided into six marching squads, to be filled out with sophomores.

"The bids were not money, but a pledge to march so many lengths of the football field," Patterson explained. "Then one night's project, of course, is squad marching competition."

Patterson concluded, "By the time we leave everyone is completely worn out."

One sophomore, Pat McDonald, a tuba player agreed," Our lack of sleep is by choice, however," he quickly added, grinning. "When our work is over we horse around a lot."

President of the Bentley Band Booster, David Cameron, said boosters act as counselors and raise funds, for the trip. The students pay their own room and board (about $9 a day).

"Along with providing counselors, we brought our own nurse, in case there were any health problems. So far we have had one bee sting and an injured toe," Cameron laughed. "The injured toe was the band director's. The kids threw him in Lake Charlevoix."

Another counselor-parent, enthusiastically watching and commenting on the rehearsal chimed in," If you weren't thrown in, you'd feel bad. Shows the kids accept you."

As Patterson called a ten minute break, some kids collapsed in place, others formed small groups to practice a few difficult measures.

"It's not as complicated as it looks," he observed. "You remember the steps by counting, but it's supposed to become instinct."

Cameron added later, "We have the first game program all outlined, and they've performed it already. It's just a matter of refining now."

Patterson was back on his chair shouting for the kids to regroup.

"And now, ladies and gentlemen, the Bentley High School Marching Band. Tumultuous applause, please, from the sidelines," he shouted over his shoulder at the boosters.

'Show and Tell!'

A feature of the September 2 meeting of the Charlevoix Historical Society will be a "show and tell" period when members and guests are invited to bring an item or picture of historical interest and present a brief history of it as part of the program.

A similiar program at the August meeting indicated a wide interest which could be reflected in an historical museum.

The Society will meet in the Community Room of the First State Bank at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 2.

Area residents interested in the history of Charlevoix County are invited to attend the meeting.

"COLOR TV AND APPLIANCE GIANTS OF THE NORTH"

Two Wheel Traveler
by Jon Hendra

Mistakes happen and even the best riders may someday find themselves in a situation that requires that they lay their bike down.

There are two basic reasons for laying a motorcycle down. The first involves the bikes inability to remain vertical due to malfunction or loss of traction. The second involves a decision on the rider's part, were puttin' her down in the lesser of two evils.

The rider's problem in these instances is how come through with as little personal injury as possible. What defeats most bikers is their attitude towards their machine. They care more about a new paint job or hunk of chrome than they do their own skin. So, forming a survival frame of mind is a prerequisite to handling these emergency situations. Skin first; bike last is the rule.

In order to react properly you first have to know when to react. Even a seconds notice can be sufficient if you're prepared. For this reason you have to acquire the feel of a bike that's lost it. You don't do this by waiting for disaster. Find a clear area of wet grass and practice dropping your machine in first gear. After a few times you'll have an idea of what it feels like when all is lost. It's easy to do on that surface and you won't even scratch the paint.

When dropping a bike the object is to remove all parts of your body from beneath the machine. Skidding along the pavement is one thing. Skidding along with several hundred pounds of motorcycle on top of you is quite another thing.

If you drop at high speeds you run the risk of having the cycle flip end for end once it's down and sliding along. To keep from being slammed around by your own bike in a high speed drop, you should try to hit the pavement behind the cycle so that it precedes you in your slide.

When you hit the pavement don't stick out your hands or feet. They break really easily. Instead try and slide on your back, distributing the pressure over a wider area. You'll lose more skin but less flesh and will come to a stop much sooner.

Dropping at slow speeds is much different. If done right you can come through without a scratch. It is mainly a matter of climbing on top of the downed bike and riding it to a stop as best you can.

Putting your machine down can be a life saver whether done by choice or inadvertently. Think ahead about it and remember the basics.

1. Get out from under it.
2. Don't stick out your feet or hands.
3. If collision is unavoidable, have the bike precede you.
4. Distribute the pressure when you slide.
5. Pick a soft spot if there's time. A grassy median beats the pavement.
6. Save yourself and let the insurance company take care of the bike.

First Game of Season

Rayders Set for Kalkaska

The Charlevoix Rayder football team, coached by Don Carey, will return to the gridiron next Friday against a non-conference foe, Kalkaska, at Kipke field.

Making up the 1975 squad will be only a few of the experienced players who led the Rayders to a third place finish behind Petoskey and Gaylord in Michigan-Huron Shores competition as the season ended. The team had a 5 win-2 loss record in league competition.

However, with only seven regulars returning, Coach Carey and his coaching staff find themselves with the task of re-building the team. In commenting on the team, Coach Carey said "they're light, we luck any great speed and they're inexperienced". He estimated that his line would average no more than 170 pounds and would have many new young and unseasoned players filling the positions vacated bigger, more experienced gridmen.

Bob Alger will be returning as quarterback; Doug Smith, who saw a lot of action in the backfield last season, will likely fill the fullback position and Ed Russell will be returning as a defensive halfback.

In the line there will be Kirk Lieberman and Steve Michael as tackles; John Cinnamon as center and Jim Marsh as defensive guard. From there on, all positions are up for grabs, Carey said.

Among the candidates who are bucking for starting positions are Matt Doan, Kip Cinnamon, Casey Culbertson, Bucky Bradley, Kevein Speer, and Bob Sweet, candidates for end positions; Danny Oliver, Bill Bellows, Ed Bourke, Tom Jones and Joe Healey, all trying for assignments in the guard positions; Gary Probert, George Baldwin and Barry Potter, possible tackles; Joe Setdl, out for football for the first time and a candidate for a line position along with Chris Passehl.

Working hard for starting spots in the backfield are Ed Mann, Randy Williams and Hud Klooster seeking the nod as halfbacks; Terry Drew, John Greene and Brian Williams as slot backs; Scott Ross as fullback behand Smith and Mike Way and Ralph Muma as substitute quarterbacks.

A total of 86 candidates turned out for the team, Carey said. Many are freshmen and sophomores and will be seeing action with the J-V squad.

How does the team look at this time? "We'll have to wait and see" Coach Carey said. He went on to say that though he had called two practice sessions daily, many of the candidates were unable to attend both practices during the day because of summer jobs.

"This week they're showing up regularly and I'll have a chance to see what I have. We have a lot of key positions to fill" Carey continued.

On Thursday, Coach Carey had not named a starting team.

Ford Takes Honors

L.J. Ford

L.J. ford, owner of Fox & Hounds, Gun & Train Shoppe in Charlevoix, won his second major trap shooting championship recently. He competed in the Fred Bear Trap Shooting Championship at Grayling, the largest shoot held in Northern Michigan.

Sharon Loucks Marries Jack Coleman

St. Mary's Church was the scene Friday evening of the wedding of Sharon Darlene Loucks and Jack Calvin Coleman.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Norman W. Loucks of Charlevoix and Mrs. Helen Coleman of Boyne City.

The Rev. R. Dale Magoon officiated at the double ring rites before an altar graced with arrangements of white pompom mums and gallioli. Ms. Marilyn Lehman, at the organ, played a program of traditional music including "Bridge Over Troubled Waters", "A Time for Us", "Because", the processional, Wagner's "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin" and, during the service, "We've Only Just Begun" and "Somewhere, My Love."

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, chose a bridal original of dacron polyester fashioned with an empire bodice, high neckline, bishop sleeves and an A-line skirt that extended into a chapel length train. French imported Chantilly lace embroidered with pearl and crystal pleating accented the bib front, neckline, sleeves and hemline of the gown. Her fingertip lace-edged double illusion veil and high pearl-embroidered Chantilly lace crown was fashioned by her mother. She carried a bridal bouquet of white pompom mums, white roses and English ivy.

Mrs. Kenneth R. Mousseau as her matron, of honor and Mrs. Delaney W. Givens and Constance A. Joles of Detroit as bridesmaids were identical floor length gowns of polyester organza over soft blue taffeta. White Venice lace accented the empire waists, necklines and cuffs. Their headpieces were of blue ribbon and illusion veiling. Their bouquets were of white pompom mums and white roses.

Jeannine Marie Fisk of Traverse City, as flower girl, wore a blue flowered organza gown over blue crepe with a matching illuston headpiece fashioned by her grandmother, Mrs. Jeanette Loucks. Paul Wesley Louck of Hadley was ringbearer.

Rodney P. Pittman assisted the bridegroom as best man and Paul W. Loucks and Michael W. Smith were groomsmen. Seating the guests were Thomas E. Roof and Michael S. Reynolds of Boyne City and John A. Loucks and Ernest Putman of Charlevoix seated the guests.

Mrs. Loucks selected a floor length gown of champagne polyester pique with embroidered chiffon eapelt for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Coleman, mother of the bridegroom, wore a full length gown of soft pink polyester organza over taffeta trimmed with Venise lace at the neckline and cuffs.

A reception hosted by the bride's parents followed at the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club for more than 200 guests. Assisting were Mr. and Mrs. John Loucks who cut the wedding cake made by Mrs. Melvin Poet of Wayne. Paul Loucks and James Sherman also assisted. Music for dancing was by a live band. Constance Joles, Mrs. Kenneth Mousseau and Mrs. Paul Loucks did all the decorating and art work.

Local Planning Department Attempts to Plan for Future

By PEG OHLE

"Planning" is an all-inclusive word which denotes orderly procedure.

The Charlevoix County Planning Department is engaged in just that kind of work. It is a body serving the county and the individual townships in matters pertaining to the future development of the area.

Almost every aspect of what life in Charlevoix County will be like in the years to come is studied by the Planning Department and recommendations made to meet the challenges of that life.

Of paramount importance to the Planning Department is Land Use, and through its efforts land use plans and zoning ordinances have been adopted throughout the county. Not only have living spaces been considered, but farmlands, recreationul areas, lakes and rivers and streams, industrial facilities, commereial districts and many other uses of land.

Population forecasts for Charlevoix County through the year 1990 have been made by the Planning Department with the help of the Census Bureau, Michigan Department of Commerce and studies of immigration trends. Copies of this 22-page document are available to the public ot the Planning Department office.

Study Economy

A study of economic-conditions in Charlevoix County made by the Planning Department will be available shortly. To get up-to-dnte information, a telephone survey of employment by all local industries was made, sales tax figures analyzed, state equalized land values studied, and information from the State Department of Highways ond Transportation digested.

What to do with the county's solid waste matter both now and in the future was considered by the Planning Department and a plan for its disposal devised. This plan was presented to the County Board of Commissioners und is now in the hands of the State Department of Natural Resources for approval.

When the State Building Code went into effect last year, the Planning Department studied it, advised the County Commissioner of their responsibilities under it, then set up the new Building Code Department.

The State Soil Erosion and Sedimentation Control Act became law last January and the Planning Department wrote rules for local enforcement and set up that new ogency.

Transportation Alternatives

For some time the Planning Department has been studying what effect the discontinuance of railroad service would have on the urea. Other transportation matters such as the proposed expressway through the county have been considered and recommendations made. The need for and use of airports has also been discussed.

A Junk Ordinance to control the littering of the countryside with old automobiles, refrigerators, stoves, farm equipment and other hard-ware is being written by the Planning Department.

The list of Planning Department activities goes on und on, including working closely with township and city governing bodies and other county agencies on many matters. It is, in effect, a study and advisory department for them all.

Bill Mercer is the Charlevoix County Director of Planning, appointed by the County Board of Commissioners. He is a graduate of Michigan State University with a degree in Community Planning. Before coming to Charlevoix County to take the Planning position in 1971, he had worked for the county for two yeors as u planning consultant. When it became obvious that thernany state laws pertaining to land use, building and other allied subjects would require a local administrator, the Charlevoix County Planning Department was formed.

Commissiou

Mercer works directly under and with the Charlevoix County Planning Commission, a ten-man body with representatives from every area of the county. The Planning Commission meets at least once a month to discuss and approve work programs of the planning Department.

Present members of the Planning Commission are Walter Thorsen, East Jordan, chairman; David Stolt, Bay Township; Ed Rehman, Boyne City, secretary; Edward Wojan, Beaver Island; Thomas Wieland, Charlevoix; Arthur Steinbrecher, Boyne City; John Buick, Walloon Lake; Donald Berlnge, Charlevoix; Dennis Jason, East Jordan; and Dale Carpenter, Boyne falls.

In oddition to serving on the County Planning Commission, three of the above persons ure on advisory committees of the Northwest Regional Planning and Development Commission with headquarters in Traverse City.

Arthur Steinbrecher represents the county on the Regional Housing Advisory Committee; Thomas Wieland is a member of the Regionul Transportation Advisory Committee; and Dennis Jason serves on the Recreational Advisory Committee.

Working with Mercer in the Planning Department office are Borbara Fels, assistant to the director, and Mike Bonar, draftsman.

SEPTEMBER BIRTHSTONE - SAPPHIRE

John Reusch

An ancient writer claims that when a head of a ram or of a bearded man is engraved on a sapphire it has the power to cure a person of many ailments, to free one from poisons and demons. At one time it was credited with the power to relieve all impurities and foreign matter from the eyes.

In ancient German lore it believed that sapphires have been used to cure boils and have a magnetic force to draw all forms of poisons.

Come see for yourself--the magic of a set SAPPHIRE.

Charlevoix Educational Planners Look at Year 2,000

Developing an educational system is like living in the year 2,000.

At least that's what Supt. Jim McKimmy keeps in mind when he attempts to chart a direction for the Charlevoix Public Schools.

No one is really sure that the year 2,000 will bring, but local school districts will be expected to edocate people so they can cope with the next decadc.

McKimmy won't be pinned down on whether or not the local school district is doing the job. He can only speculate.

The school superintendent, who has been in Charlevoix for two years, relates the difficulty in developing an educational curriculum by relating the story of what will happen to a student who enrolls in school this year.

"The child who enrolls in the fall of 1975 will gradoate from school 13 years later in 1988," McKimmy says as he begins to reveal his tale.

"He then takes four years of college preparotion and gets in a couple of yeors in the military which takes him to 1994."

Then he gets four to six years of pre-professional and is just beginning to assume his responsibilities as a professional or a wage earner in his community and taking on leadership roles by the year 2,000.

"Very little is known and very little has been written in terms of whut our communities will be like in the year 2,000," McKimmy continues.

From reading and his own imagination, McKimmy says the biggest problem that will be facing that child will be the demand of having to make constant choices.

The youth will have to make choices in his recreation, in his lifestyle, the kind of family relationship he will want to establish, as well as o lot of pressore on his religious and philosophical groundings.

"Every day that he wakes op, he will have to make a decision," McKimmy explains.

"How's going to be like standing in front of a candy counter and choosing between a dozen things that appear good to him."

Unless he knows himself, why he reacts to these choices, what appeals to him and what is good for him based on some philosophical, often religious, orientation, he isn't going to be able to chose consistently along a pattern and will literally destroy hunself if he goes in too many different directions.

"For each person, I see there will be a future, but also for each person will be a choice between many futures," McKimmy says.

"And trying to get into too many different directions will be self-destructive."

The question then is, what does that mean for K-12 edocation today?

"I think it means that he will have to have the basic exposure to the 3-R's as we have traditionally thought of it, and he will have to be exposed to an understanding of own value system," he answers.

McKimmy says the youth will have to be taught and understand that there are values and he will have to be aware that other families and people have different values--some will even be living next door to him.

While it seems a little philosophical, McKimmy says this is what he anticipates the seniors to be able to do--survive in the year 2,000.

As the superintendent of schools, he has to be aware of that long range goal and be aware of the resources which are not only finaneial, but also the people resources we are using today to get ready for that."

When asked if he thinks the seniors today will be able to live up to that expectation, McKimmy says he thinks many will be frustrated by it.

While McKimmy says he doesn't think the school system can assume all of the responsibility for it, he believes it is a responsibility we will have to face as a challenge.

"If I have some responsibility of failure in it, it is the inability to have the skills necessary to help those people who are working directly with the student to appreciate that responsibility," he says.

One of the major changes that has occurred in the last two years to achieve that goal has been a switch in management style, McKimmy says.

Instead of the superintendent making a decision on every situation that comes through the schools, McKimmy said the responsibility is being spread to more people who help in the decision making process.

"Rather than to try to establish the office of the superintendent as the "yes and no" communication for all activities in the school district, we've tried to make decisions on operations, funds, program development on a broad base in our central office and with the board," he said.

"Then we try to get the people involved with the activity and down to decision making."

McKimmy says that it's just not advisory, it's giving them some authority with the comensurate responsibilities.

Delegating that responsibility, McKimmy says frees him more to do curriculum planning.

Some other changes that bove taken place in the last two years are the hiring of teacher aides through federal funds, establishment of Indian education programming, opening up of school facilities for public-use (gym facilities), computer services for accounting and the establishment of a scheduled building maintenance program.

Church Offers Elderly Aid

By Frun Martin

Sister Anthony Therese Pasek of the Dominican Order has orrived ut St. Mary's Convent here and will be working with the elderly in the community, the Rev. R. Dale Magoon, pastor of St. Mary's church, has announced.

In making the announcement, Father Magoon said: "There are programs designed for the youth of the community.

"They have school and school related programs and others especially designed for them. However, there seems to be little attention given to the elderly, many of whom live alone, do not have the proper nutrition, often have no one to call on them and spend some time with them.

Sister Anthony Therese comes to Charlevoix after four years in this type of work among the elderly of Vero Beach, Florida.

A kindly, energetic person with snapping brown eyes and an infectious smile, she is full of plans that she hopes to initiate among the residents of the Charlevoix area.

A teacher by vocation for 37 years, she is no stronger to northern Michigan and has no qualms about coming to the area at a time when winter is approaching.

"I spent six years on Beaver Island some 25 years ago and since then have taught at Alpiena so I know what winters here are like, she says.

They don't frighten me though they may be a little hard on my arthritis."

Born in Saginaw County, she was raised by her father following the death of her mother when she was three-years-old. She helped them in the sugar beet fields until she entered the convent at the uge of 16 years.

She attended school at Marywood in Grand Rapids, Mother House of the Dominican Order and received her teaching degree at Aquinas College, also in Grand Rapids.

Since then she has done graduate work at Kent State University.

Her other teaching assignments were ot schools in Grand Rapids, North Dorr, Saginaw and several communities in New Mexico.

She has always had great compassion for animals as well as her fellow men and recalls rescuing a mother and her litter of six kittens that had been abandoned in a bag in a ditch, taking them home and nursing them antil they had recovered from their experience.

Her father later sold them all to a warehouse as "rutters" and used the money to buy her high-topped shoes for school.

An ardent organic gardener, she as already taken over the small garden at the convent here and promises great things another summer.

She feels her strong point is the nurturing of man, beast and plont.

Figuratively speaking, she has already rolled up her sleeves and is prepared to do just that, not only in St. Mary's parish here but any place in the community she might be needed.

Anyone wishing to call Sister Anthony Therese may do so at 547-2242 or at the convent at 104 West Garfield ave.

Charlevoix Car Sales Look Healthy

Car ownership stands at a high level in Charlevoix County, the figures show.

Despite the fact that purchases of new cars have dropped far below normal in the last year or two, locally and in all other sections of the country, the actual number of cars in operotion in the area is greater than ever.

The answer is, in part, that more families are retaining their old cars, when buying new ones, than was the case a few years ago. Other families, who were not in the market for new cars during the past year, have taken to fixing up their present models to keep them going longer.

As a result, the average age of today's passenger cars is close to 5.8 years, as against 5.5 years in 1969.

The data on automobile ownership and distribution comes from the American Automobile Association and from market reports issued by the Standard Rate and Data Service.

They show that there wos u total of 8,790 cars in operation in Charlevoix County as of the beginning of this year. Five years ago there were 7,290.

It was an increase of 20.5 percent, which was greater than in many communities. The rise in the United States was 17.8 percent and, in the State of Michigan, 17.6 percent.

The figures indicate, as would be expected, that car ownership is closely linked to earning capacity. As family income rises, as it has appreciably in the Charlevoix County area in the five-year period, the number of ears in operation goes up proportionately.

Related to the local population, there are now some 153 cars in the county for every 100 famllies.

Ambulance Aid

Members of the Torch Boy Ambulance group have been busy learning how to operate their vehicles properly, how to care for patients in an ambulance, and in rnising money to pay for ambulance equipment.

Dr. Reed Freidnger, Charlevoix physician, recently spoke to the group about how to handle cardiac arrest patients and Lois Girard, safety officer for the Michigan State Police, advised them on safe umbulance driving procedures.

Last weekend the ambulance group held a Harvest Day sale in Torch Lake Village to raise funds for equipment.

Cancer Society Makes Goal

The Charlevoix County Unit of the American Concer Society has reached its 1975 goal of $11,750.

"We would like to extend our heortfelt thanks to the generous citizens of Charlevoix County who, year after year, support the crusade against this dread disease," says the crusade chairman.

Based on county population, the per capita contribotion was almost 68 cents compared to a statewide average of about 30 cents.

The County Cancer Society Unit also reports that it has completed its most active year of education and service to county residents. Twenty-four cancer patients in the county were assisted by the Unit with over $3,000 in aid. Nursing scholarships of $150 each were awarded to five girls and public education and service programs such as the Reach-to-Recovery Program and the Breast Self-Examination clinics were most successful.

Officers of the local Cancer Society Unit were re-elected last week. They are Mrs. Harvey Yurtmun, president; Mrs. Jeffrey Porter, vice-president; Mrs. Maurice Dixon, secretary-treasurer; and Dr. Harry R. Custer, medical chairman.

COMMON COUNCIL

COUNCIL MINUTES — AUGUST 11, 1975
8:00 p.m.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Hansen presiding. Aldermen present: Plumm, McRae, Wood, Whitley, Timms, and Selph. Absent: None.

The minutes of the July 20, 1975 meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minotes Book.

Motion was made by Alderman Timms and supported by Alderman Wood to accept Ida A. Heise's resignation as City Clerk. It was never put to a Council vote. A discussion followed regarding the appointing of a City Clerk and the fact that no Depoty Clerk could be appointed without first appointing a City Clerk, as the City Clerk was not present to make the appointment.

Mayor Hansen then moved that the motion to accept Ida A. Heise's resignation be withdrawn, as it was out of order.

Motion was then made by Alderman Timms and supported by Alderman Selph to appoint Alderman McRae as temporary City Clerk for the purpose of this meeting only. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Plumm, McRae, Wood, Whitley, Timms, and Selph. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Mayor Hansen recessed the Council to a Public Hearing.

A Public Hearing was held to re-consider the question of the Charlevoix Historical Society building a museum on City property which is loeated between Park Avenue and the water tower.

A museum fund drive was discussed and Mr. Jack Begrow is helping to plan the museum. It is to be attractive with many outdoor displays, and no parking except for the caretaker on this sight. Construction cost would be somewhere in the range of $150,000 to $200,000.

Location was discussed, and it was pointed oot that a downtown location would be best for people to walk to, and it would he better protected by police than any location on the outskirts of town.

The Committee is to set up a meeting to review and stody this reqoest in depth.

Common Council reconvened, and Council listened to Step I Area Sewer Study by Mr. Robert Garant and Mr. W. Parker of Northern Design and Construction Engineers as to the cost and the townships which would come under this study. The Committee is to make a study of this in more depth and mnke their recommendation.

Council discussed and reviewed the operation of the City Airport at length, and the operation of Wilke Aviation, Inc. of St. James, Michigan. It was decided that the Committee hold a meeting as soon as possible to set up some fee for Commercial operation in and out of the Airport.

Council discussed re-appointing the building inspector per BOCA Code, and after careful consideration continued with the present inspector Alvin Ranger.

Alderman McRae moved to adopt a Resolution, supported by Alderman Plumm, regarding Intervention against Rate Increase by Consumers Power Company. The Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Plumm, McRae, Wood, Whitley, Timms, and Selph. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council discussed noise complaints and it was decided that Robert Wexstaff do some checking on a model noise Ordinance to see what can be done aboot the problem.

The Finance Committee having examined the bills totaling $246,765.07 including a $2,093.90 add-on find them correct and recommend they be approved. Motion was made by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Selph that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for same. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Plumm, McRae, Wood, Whitley, Timms, and Selph. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council adjourned.

Lake 26 Road Hearing Held Last Week

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

The recent petition to designate Lake 26 Road in Marion Township os a Michigan Natural Beauty Road was the focus of a public hearing in the township building last Tuesday, August 26th.

Lake 26 Road is a dirt and gravel narrow one-way road, running between Marion Center Road and Phelps Road. It travels between East and West Twin Lakes, through pasture and woods, both hardwood and pine, and is irregularly dotted by year-round and summer homes.

While it has not been stated for immediate improvement, the Grover Everts, who live on the road, feared that the township would soon include it in its road improvement plans.

Predicting that improvement would mean large scale widening, cutting of trees and destruction of the rustic qualities, unique in the midst of Charlevoix county's burgeoning real estate development, the Everts initiated the petition to the Charlevoix County Road Commission.

In accordance with Michigan Law allowing for designation of Natural Beauty Roads, a public hearing was called by the road commission, to assess public opinion.

Some 15 people attended the hearing, plus three township officials and representatives of the Charlevoix County Road Commission, including Irv Sturm, Road Commission Engineer.

According to the Everts, and Sturm, the attendees were divided about evenly on the issue. Several letters were read into the record, also divided on whether the road should be improved or designated as is, as a Natural Beauty Road.

"Most people wanted the road up-graded so water would drain and so forth, before the designation," Mrs. Everts said.

"However, my impression of the road commission is that they can only think big," she continued.

"We can see fixing up the bad areas for drainage, but we oppose cutting trees and widening the road."

Mrs. Everts said, she was disappointed with the outcome and small attendance at the hearing.

The Everts and their supporters hold some hope, she said, that minor improvement could be made to the roads.

If the road is designated now as a Natural Beauty Road, the law states it must be maintained in its present condition.

Several people ot the hearing, according to Mrs. Everts, expressed coneern about the road's impassability during spring thaw as well as winter plowing problems.

Sturm reported that "Some want a Natural Beauty Road they can travel on in all parts of the year." In its present condition the road is not always open in winter. In Spring, parts become a morass of mud.

In a telephone interview, after the hearing, Mrs. Everts acknowledged the need for minor improvements to the road, but expressed hesitancy about compromising with road commission standards.

"We want to keep Charlevoix as environmentally healthy as possible," he said.

Members of the new association will be contacting local community leaders during the next few weeks to establish a broader-based community effort.

Those belonging to the group now consist primarily of Boulder Park residents who have been upset with Medusa.

Handicapped

all but disappears."

Church Problem

Among the buildings one would expect to find accessible to everyone are churches, yet only four of the 11 churches in the immediate area are open to those in wheelchairs. In fact, one local church which has been completely remodeled and enlarged within the past year has three steps leading to the church proper where it would have been possible to ramp the entry for the benefit of the parishioners.

It is not only the handicapped confined to wheel chairs who will find the "barrier free design" beneficial. There are those with visual problems, the elderly who have problems with stairs, arthritis with knee and leg problems, heart disease patients and people with empbysema.

Barrier free building design promises to make life easier for many, many people with or without impairments, for living in barrier free places leaves everyone unencumbered and comfortable.

Richard Mayhew, Charlevoix County Building Code Inspector whose department is delegated with the job of administering Act 177 under the Construction Code Commission, is optimistic about the "barrier free design".

"The day when the handicapped is further handicapped by barriers is over. New construction and or extensive remodeling of buildings will take enre of that. It's been a long time coming but it's here to stay," Mayhew said of the act.

Meanwhile, the handicapped wait patiently for doors they can open, buildings they enn enter, offices they can reach, telephones they can manage and, yes, even johns they enn use.

Beaver Island

if that is a joke about the mortgage-holder, or if the bank is living up to Wright Patman's fantasies and taking its prime-rote borrowers on cruises of unimaginable luxury.

Lynn Williams also showed up Sunday in the lovely racing yacht which he has twice won the Chicago-to-Mackinac race. Most of the islanders were astonished to learn that the man who owns the skippers such a ship is a Democrat - and an anti-Daley reform Democrat in Cook County, at that. If a Democrat can own a boat like that, then the song from "Nashville" is right: "We must be doing something right to last 200 years."

THE REAL BEAVER ISLANDERS, 175 or so who live here year-round, are Democrats by heritage and tradition. But Mr. Ford is surprisingly popular here, for a reason you would not guess.

The water level in Lake Michigan, which rose steadily from Lyndon Johnson's escalation in Vietnam in the mid 1960's until the fall of Richard Nixon last year, has finally begun to subside.

The beaches are three feet wider this summer than they were when Jerry Ford beeame President. Ron Nessen has told the Beaver Beacon's editor that no previous President added more than 18 inches to the median beach mensure in his first year in ofllee.

The threat of cottages toppling into the lake has ended, and everyone is beginning to relax. If the trend holds through 1976, the Ford-Rockefeller ticket could well win on a slogan of "Broader Beaches and Less Bother." They would be a cinch if they could just get Bill Seidman to drop by and fix that Sunoco pump at McDonough's.

Charlevoix City Wholesale Power Up 30%

Retail Rates to be Discussed Monday

Charlevoix electric bills could be increasing as much 30 percent next month, according to city officials.

All will depend upon how much of the 30.7 percent wholesale rate increase city fathers want to pass on to their retail customers.

The city learned last week that the Federal Power Commission has granted Consumers Power, the city's wholesale power supplier, a 30.7 percent rate increase effective September 30.

"In committee they have talked about something less than 30 percent," Acting City Administrator Robert Wexstaff told the Courier.

"Our whole rate is based on the wholesale price from Consumers so something will have to be done about."

City Council is expected to meet Monday to discuss proposed rate increases.

If the entire wholesale rate was passed along to Charlevoix electric customers, the average 700kwh household user would see his rate go from .002849 to .003724 cents a kilowatt hour.

Michigan Public Power Rate Payers Association members, a group of Michigan municipalities who buy wholesale power, were unsuccessful in their bid for a five-month suspension of the proposed hike last week.

Northern Michigan REA customers earlier learned that their utility bills will be soaring upwards this year with no apparent end in sight.

Top O' Michigan General Manager Roger Westenbroek told members two weeks ago that rates will be going up, primarily because of increased wholesale power rate increases.

Average costs to REA residential users have jumped some 38 percent in the last four years.

The general manager blamed the increases on cost escalation, declining earnings, higher interest rates and public distrust.

The Rate Payers Association, which Charlevoix belongs to, are expected to fight Consumers Power rate hikes.

Alice Street Still in Limbo

Charlevoix City Council decided Monday not to lease Alice Street to a private condominium development, but the battle isn't over.

City Council rescinded its earlier motion to lease the 27-foot-wide parcel of property to LeHavre Condominiums, but is expected to meet in closed session with the developers within the next few weeks.

The undeveloped strip of property that runs between Round Lake and Belvedere Avenue has been the center of controversy for nearly a month.

Originally, city council agreed to go along with a proposal to lease the undeveloped street for 99 years at $500 a year, but after a recent public hearing changed its mind.

At Monday night's meeting, four local attorneys bantered for some 30 minutes over the merits of considering a lease with LeHavre.

After attorney Thomas Pointer asked city attorney Don Berlage about the advisability of the move, Mayor Ed Hansen interjected that the committee of the whole indicated it was no longer in favor of the lease.

The Charlevoix mayor suggested that any further discussion of the lease be taken up in committee.

Councilman Ralph McRae then offered a resolution that the city maintain control and declare ownership of the property until proven otherwise. The resolution also included the removal of a small workshop now located on the strip.

City Attorney Don Berlage advised Council that if it adopted the resolution, it could expect litigation.

He added that the city could expect a long expensive court trial that could last for two years.

The city attorney said the matter was a policy question and it would be up to the council to decide what it wanted to do.

Attorney John Michael suggested again that the property be improved by the developers for their use, but be kept in city hands for public use.

If the public access was not allowed, Michaels suggested the city had no alternative, but to not let the development use the property.

LeHavre attorney Arthur Reibel told council that all it had to do was pass McRae's resolution and litigation would be started.

Pointer suggested that interested parties meet again to discuss the facts they have found through research and see if an agreeable solution could still be made.

After further discussion, council tabled the motion.

Bell's Bay

I would like to echo the sentiments recently voiced by readers concerning conditions at Bell's Bay Campground and its immediate environs. The area appears to attract some of the worst elements in our society, and has become a disgrace to the county and the city which calls itself "the beautiful."

A campground should be a retreat for folks and their kids to escape the noise and hazards of modern cities; to breath fresh air; to enjoy the beauties of nature and especially to relax in an atmosphere of peace and quiet.

Not so in the Bell's Bay area. Drunks, dope addicts, cars without mufflers, motorcycles roar up and down the road, bumper to bumper, all night. Traffic seems to be heaviest from 3:00 to 4:00 a.m. No wonder decent people tend to shun the place and leave it open to exploitation by hooligans.

Peace and quiet? Forget it. Go out some time and count the beer cans and trash that litter the area. Charlevoix the Beautiful? Bosh!

Disgusted.

Serene Summer

Would you believe after reading about your "serene summers" in northern Michigan in Town & Country magazine I insisted that my husband bring us up here. After all we keep running all over the country and here is this "paradise" just five hours away. Well my husband says we could just as well gone to Mt. Clemens if we wanted to inhale rotten eggs all day long. What is it?

Carolyn Lang, Dearborn

Appreciates Help

I just wanted to say that our auxillary policemen have been doing a great job for Charlevoix. I have seen them at many events this summer and assisting our policemen during night patrol. I understand they do all this for no compensation. I hope our city fathers will at least have a special thank-you banquet at the end of their first year. I think our police chief would be commended for his efforts in creating our force and again my thanks to those volunteers.

Alice Street

If it's not too late, I want to add my two cents worth about Alice Street. The city has no right leasing the property to anyone. Lake frontage property should stay in the hands of the city.

Close Call

Nicholas John Reid, 24, East Jordan, tried to stop but he knew he couldn't as the big southhound C&O freight train approached the crossing of M-66.

So Reid jumped from his car and escaped injury.

The automobile continued into the path of the train and was totaled.

The accident occurred at 4:15 p.m. Wednesday at the C&O crossing about one-half mile southeast of the city.

Reid told Charlevoix County sheriff's deputies that he was attempting to fasten his seat belt when he suddenly looked up and saw the train. He said he didn't hear the train whistle or see the flashing crossing lights.

He said he applied his brakes, but when he saw a collision was inevitable, he jumped.

Donald E. Strang, 44, Grawn, C&O engineer, said he saw Reid's car wouldn't make it and applied the brakes just before impact.

Reid was driving from Charlevoix to East Jordan.

Governor's Veto Blocks PBB Loans

The veto by Governor Milliken of House Bill 5033 which would have guaranteed low interest loans to farmers whose animals have been affected with PBB poisoning is still another blow to these farmers.

The Paul Burks of East Jordan were hoping the bill would be signed so they could start rebuilding their herd of 165 cattle which was destroyed because of the poisoning.

"We sent a telegram to the governor urging that he sign the bill," Mrs. Burks told the Courier, "but it did no good."

The Burks' borrowed money at ten percent interest this spring to have their barns and lots steam-cleaned to remove PBB traces, and to get their crops started.

They have received no settlement from either the Michigan Farm Bureau or the Michigan Chemical Company. Their claim is number 367 and the companies' insurance pool of $15 million ran out of money at number 360.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Britton of Charlevoix, who also lost a large herd of cattle, were also hoping the bill would be signed. "It certainly would make a difference to us," Mrs. Britton says.

No Settlement

The Brittons have not received a settlement yet, either. Their claim is number 404.

The polybrominated biphenyl (PBB) problem has been a serious one for many Michigan farmers for over a year and a half. Some time in the fall of 1973 a batch of PBB, an industrial chemical, was supplied to Farm Bureau Services, Inc. instead of a feed supplement that had been ordered. The PBB was mixed with feed and sold to farmers.

The resultant poisoning has brought about the destruction of thousands of heads of beef and dairy cattle, hogs and sheep and over a million and a half chickens. Financial losses to farmers have soared into the millions.

House Bill 5033 was the first major piece of legislation to offer financial help to the beleaguered farmers. It would have set up machinery whereby farmers whose animals showed any detectable level of PBB contamination would be eligible for low interest (3½ percent) loans up to a maximum of $250,000 or a maximum of $1,500 per dairy animal.

In announcing the veto of the bill, State Senator Jack Welborn, chairman of a special committee investigating PBB, said:

False Hope

"I am aware that though the intent of 5033 was excellent, the bill was not. 5033, as it passed both houses, was a poorly written piece of legislation, containing many flaws. These flaws would have had to be corrected upon the Legislature's return in October before loans could have been made. Thus, the signing of 5033 might well have given Michigan farmers nothing more than a false hope. For this reason, I recognize and respect this veto."

Welborn was also critical of the fact that the bill was held up until the last minute, making for a poor piece of legislation.

One weakness of the bill was that it did not specify where the money for loans would come from. Another measure approved as part of an appropriation bill just before summer adjournment authorized the Department of Treasury to take the money from the $50 million Veterans Trust Fund.

However, aides to Milliken questioned whether this could be done legally, which was one reason for his veto.

House Bill 5033 was sponsored by Representative Donald J. Albosta of St. Clair Shore, who acknowledged that "the language of the bill is not as clear as it could be."

Critiques Governor

However, Albosta is most critical of the Governor's veto, calling it "irresponsible and misleading."

"This bill would have made it unnecessary for farmers to sell contaminated meat on the market," Albosta said. "Now they're going to have to do it just to keep their heads above water."

State health officials have been unable to determine what effect the chemical has on humans who eat the meat or products from contaminated livestock.

"Yet, this meat is now and will continue to be sold and consumed by Michigan residents," Albosta said.

Senator Welborn, in a recent news release, has promised farmers his continued efforts to get equitable settlements for thier losses. "To the Legislature and Governor – I pledge to continue to push for equitable legislation that recognizes the problem that hundreds of farm families are facing – the problem of total economic loss with little, if any, help from anyone."

Charlevoix Area Hospital Plans Annual Meeting

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Association will hold its annual meet at the Community Room of the Charlevoix City Hall at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Richard Krueger, Hospital Administrator, has announced.

Purpose of the meeting will be to elect three directors to the Hospital Board, present reports on the hospital's operation and to transact any other business that may come before the board.

The terms of three board members expire at this time. They are Glenn L. Kenney of Charlevoix and Bernard Hammond of East Jordan, who will be candidates to succeed themselves and Jack Grubaugh, presently serving as board president who has completed nine years on the board who has announced that he will not be a candidate for re-election. William R. Sherman of Charlevoix and East Jordan has announced his candidacy for the post being vacated by Grubaugh.

Kenney, who has completed a three year term on the board of directors and who is seeking re-election, is owner of the Kit Carson Lumber Co., having come here in 1959 from South Haven. He is presently president-elect of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club, has been a member of the club since coming to Charlevoix and has served on its board of directors. He also has served as a director of the Charlevoix Board of Education, the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and the First Congregational church.

DNR Plans Test For Medusa

A state pollution expert said Friday he will be making a stack test at the Medusa Cement plant here later this month.

Arden Toland of the Department of Natural Resources said his department had scheduled the testing to verify the status of stack emissions.

Late last month, residents complained to the state that a foul smell was apparently coming from the plant located just outside of Charlevoix.

Toland said he had not detected the odor when he visited the plant last month, but would investigate it closer.

The DNR official surmised that the order was a sulfur compound that might have resulted in a temporary imbalance of gypsum, limestone and coal being fed to the kiln to make clinker.

"Medusa has a real concern about the complaints and wants to get the problem nailed down," Toland said about the cooperation Medusa had shown about the complaints.

Eye Doctor Arrives

Dr. Schaperkotter

Dr. Thomas J. Schaperkotter, an optometrist, has opened offices in the Portair Plaza on Highway 31 sooth of town. His office hours are 9 to 5 o'clock each weekday except Thursday.

Dr. Schaperkotter is a graduate of Grand Valley State College und received his doctorate at the Illinois College of Optometry. Optometry is defined as "the tutal examlnution and diagnosis of the eyes and prescription of lenses, but no surgery."

Mrs. Schaperkotter is the former Kris Lieberman of Charlevoix.

SCHOOL NURSE Marge Davenport (top) and secretary Marge Coleman were among the busiest school employees at last Wednesday's opening of school.

First Day...

Many Charlevoixans won't forget this year's first day of school, especially school employees.

All it took was forgetting to set the clock alarm back an huur to adjust to the new school starting times.

Or sending children oot to the bus stop and having them come back to tell you there was no bus.

Even the weatherman didn't feel like cooperating as he dumped buckets of his nasty rain on the hundreds of Charlevoix youngsters heading back to school.

Perhaps the center of pandemonium was at the Charlevoix Elementary School, where parents and children were wandering aimlessly through the halls looking for classrooms.

"Daddy forgot to bring your card," said one mother to her daughter as they stood in line at the principal's office trying to find out who the child's teacher was.

At the other end of the line, school secretary Marge Coleman was frantically searching through lists of names trying to associate teachers with students.

Next door, school nurse Marge Davenport was busy scrutinizing the hundreds of health sheets turned into her office, while also getting last minute instructions from mothers about their children's medicine.

Just outside her office, another school employee was breathing a sigh of relief that she had gotten her own children settled and could attend to others.

"The bus was earlier," cried one child to her father who apparently had to drive her to school on his way to work.

"You'll just have to be there earlier," he replied.

While parents were busy saying goodbye to their children, elementary principal Ralph Raymer tried to help several lost souls find their classrooms.

When asked what he thought about the rain greeting the first day of school, Raymer said: "It's better that way, it makes the kids want to go to school instead of playing outdoors."

School cooks were busy trying to cook lunch for an unknown number of children. No one ever seems to have the exact count the first couple of days.

"It's a little nerve racking," said Verna Swanson about her first day as the elementary school cook.

"I still have a lot to learn."

Ellen Copeland and Sandy Smith were busy helping her cook hot dogs and carrots.

Farther down the hall, teacher aides Anne Fidler and Bev Anderson were busy sorting out school books for classroom use.

And while parents breathed a sigh of relief while they drove away from school with empty cars, school teachers had a variety of perplexed looks.

There was only one consolation. The rain quit the minute school started Wednesday morning.

Reception Planned for Miles

All arca residents are invited to a reception this Thursday at 8 p.m. at the library to help honur one of Charlevoix's most generous citizens, Robert C. "Bob" Miles.

The Friends of the Library and the Charlevoix Historical Society are co-hosting the gathering to say "thank you" for his gift to the library of seven large volumes of pictures depicting the history of Charlevoix.

Mr. and Mrs. Miles, together with Mr. and Mrs. William Garten of the Great Lakes Shipwreck Company, have also donated a beautiful case made of shipwreck lumber to hold the volumes of pictures.

Miles began taking pictures when he was in high school and has continued to the present time. Added to Miles' own pictures are some taken by the late local photographer James Gaskins, given to Miles by Gaskins' widow.

The pictures date back to about 1920 and show the city changing from that time on. The books in which the pictures are placed are nicely bound volumes, befitting the subject matter.

The book case was made by Garsten of lumber from "The Sunnsyside" which sank off Fox Island in 1883, when Charlevoix was a fledgling town.

Humane Society Starts File System

By PEG OHLE

It will now be easier for the County Dog Control Officer and the County Humane Soclety to find the owners of lost or strayed dogs.

The Humane Society has indexed the over 1,000 dog license numbers so that owners can be immediately identified. According to Robert McKown of the society this is the first time such a cross-index has been made.

When a dog is taken to the County Animal Shelter and if it is wearing a license tag, the owner is called. If the owner does not claim the dog within five days it is either adopted out or destroyed.

The Dog Control Officer does not pick up cats and the County does not provide cure for them in the Animal Shelter. However, the Humane Society will soon have some cages for cats which will be placed in the Shelter and the Society will pay for their food until they can be placed in homes or must be destroyed.

The Humane Society is also working on a project whereby all applicants for dog licenses would indicate their dogs are being "natural" or "unsexed". Heretoforc licenses have been based on a male or female description, with licenses for males costing less than for females. The result has been the issuing of many licenses for the wrong sex of dog.

The Humane Society is also purchasing a shell for the back of the Dog Control Officer's truck complete with cages in which to place picked-up dogs. This facility will make it easier for the Officer to transfer dogs from one place to another.

Persons taking dogs direct to the Animal Shelter are advised that they must sign a statement indicating it is either their own animal or to the best of their knowledge, a stray.

The Charlevoix County Humane Society offices are located in the County Animal Shelter on the grounds of the County Sheriff's Department in Charlevoix. They are open from 1 o'clock until 5 o'clock each weekday afternoon and are manned by volunteers from the Society. Anyone wishing to donate time to the cause is invited to call the Society at 547-9711.

City Takes Action On Condo Lights

Charlevoix city fathers took the only logical recourse in handling LaCroft's utility bill.

The city turned off the condominium lights last week after being unable to get satisfaction on $31,939 owed the city for installation of sewers, tap-ins and electrical utilities.

After meeting with Circuit Court Judge Martin Breighner last week, LaCroft agreed to pay the city $6,505 for electric bills with the remaining portion being paid as the units are sold. A six percent interest rate will be charged against the amount until it is paid in full.

It was unfortunate that an escrow account wasn't set up for the tap-ins ahead of time. Under a new city policy, escrow accounts will be a matter of standard procedure.

Taxpayers should never be put in a position where their tax dollars are being used to finance private industry.

The steadfast stand taken in this particular instance should be a demonstration that the city will not stand for an abuse of tax dollars.

The city should be encouraged to take this stand in similar cases.

While not being able to collect the entire amount owed the city, the present agreement will insure local taxpayers that they will eventually get their money back.

At the same time, the agreement will not hinder LaCroft from continuing its sales.

Governor Vetoes P.B.B. Legislation

Governor William Milliken's recent veto of a bill to provide loans to farmers affected with PBB poisoning should not be misconstrued.

House Bill 5033 had been sent to Gov. Milliken's desk in mid-August as the first piece of major legislation to aid the Michigan farmers plight.

But because of last minute changes containing many flaws, the signing of 5033 might well have given Michigan farmers nothing more than a false hope.

In a recent news release, Senator Jack Welborn, a long supporter of the Michigan dairy farmer, supported the governor's stand and blasted fellow legislators for not even being present when the bill was being considered.

He said that only half of Michigan's senators were present during the final hours of session when the redraft of the legislation was being considered.

As a result, a slipshod piece of legislation ended up on the governor's desk, leaving no alternative for the governor, but to turn it down.

If even half of what Senator Welborn says is true, the Michigan Legislature has done an injustice to the hundreds of Michigan farmers facing economic devastion because of PBB.

Farmers could care less about the Michigan Legislature being able to get a two-month vacation. Their concern is being able to get some hard cash so that they can rebuild their farms and support their families.

If the bill had been properly written, machinery would have been set up whereby milk producers whose animals had any detectable level of PBB contamination would have been eligible for low-interest loans.

It would not require that a producer be quarantined because of PBB contamination to be eligible for the loan. Any producer whose herd carried detectable levels of PBB contamination would have been eligible.

While we do not particularly endorse public money being used to support private concerns, it seems imperative in this particular instance.

Farmers are in a situation where insurance companies could take up to five years to settle claims leaving the farmer with no alternative but to declare bankruptcy.

This loan proposal would have taken that particular burden off the farmer's shoulders because the loan would not have become due until he received settlement on his damage claim.

Now because of sloppy work in the Michigan Legislature, local farmers will have to wait until October to see if anything new transpires.

This is a vital issue for Northern Michigan and could have been taken care of long ago.

We suggest that if farmers don't get quick action that they turn to their organized groups, like the Michigan Milk Producers Association, and start a massive campaign to make some changes in Lansing.

The farmers need help and equitable legislative help as soon as possible.

Letters to the editor

UnWelcomed Wagon

Gentlemen:

Again and Again we read about the friendly "WELCOME WAGON" that greets newcomers to this area, acquaints them with their new neighbors, events and merchants - a recent full page article was written on Charlevoix's welcome hostess. There are ads on Radio and in papers about "not wasting time wondering about a fast way to get your bearings - Call me, your WELCOME WAGON HOSTESS."

Well, when we moved to Charlevoix in the Fall of 1974, we did just that, called Welcome Wagon and anticipated a friendly "Hello" in our new neighborhood.

Nobody showed up. We called twice again (ridiculous, I thought, after all, WE WEREN'T advertising the welcome hostess' service) and, although the hostess said twice that she'd be happy to come by, she never showed up.

Now we moved to East Jordan and I called Mrs. Baer, the new Charlevoix Welcome Wagon Hostess, told about last year's disappointment - she said she'd be more than pleased to call the East Jordan Welcome Wagon Hostess for, us. Just the same, we got Mrs. Rison's number ourselves and called her - again she said how pleased she'd be to come by.

We have been here now four weeks and nobody showed up or called.

I would like to know: IF THE WELCOME HOSTESS DOES NOT intend to visit the newcomers, why doesn't she give the opportunity to somebody else who is more enthusiastic and would like to be called "Welcome Hostess" and who DOES enjoy meeting newcomers to the area?

It's a bit silly to have to call twice and practically BEG her to come, when it's THEIR idea in the FIRST PLACE and the ads everywhere lead the newcomer to this area to believe they really mean what they advertise.

Mrs. Chris Anderson

Erma Bombeck

You have to know before reading this that my husband gets little mail.

He gets very little mail because (a) he has not written anyone in eight years (b) he throws the envelopes with telltale windows into my sewing basket with instructions to "Do something with these!"

I was intrigued the other day when he got out his penknife and slit open an envelope addressed to him personally.

"Who's it from?" I ask.

"Norman Cousins."

"The editor of Saturday Review?"

"Of course, Who else would be writing me?"

He read the letter in its entirety, smiling and mumbling, "Imagine that."

"Imagine what!"

"Mr. Cousins says here...listen to this...'George Reeves, our circulation manager tells me that your subscription has just come up for renewal.' Do I know a George Reeves?"

"I thought George Reeves was the original Superman on TV."

"George Reeves...he must know me if he mentioned me to Norman."

"It's probably one of those form..."

"Son of a gun. I can see it now. George stopping off at the water cooler and spotting Norman says, 'Oh by the way, Mr. Cousins, Mr. Bombeck's subscription has just come up for renewal.'

'Mr. Bombeck?' puzzles Mr. Cousins. 'You know, the 9-75 with only three weeks left before expiration.'

'Oh! Bill!' he smiles in recognition. 'Listen, would it help if I dropped him a personal note?'

'Hey, that would be just super,' says George. 'Tell him there's no hurry, but we'd be sick if he didn't take advantage of our three-year subscription rate.'

'Right, Listen, George, how about lunch at one?' 'Where are the envelopes?" asked my husband. "And a nice piece of paper."

"You brought the personal pitch and you're going to renew, right?" I said.

"Right, I'll just write a note back to Norm and ask him to renew my subscription for three years and sign it Bill."

"Aren't you going to send in your old label so they'll know who you are? (He shook his head.) Or sign your last name so they can bill you properly?" (He smiled) "Nope. What are friends for?" he asked.

.You also have to know after reading this there is a mean streak in my husband.

Shrine of Jock Strap

The recreation director in my favorite town recently accused some parents of forcing their children to play baseball when the kids would much rather do something else.

Most Big 10 football coaches are angry because they are no longer allowed to put uniforms on 100 brutes for a game requiring 11 players.

There's a connection. It's called muscle worship.

Why would a father force his son to swing a bat at a ball when the boy would rather read a book? Dumb question. Did Mickey Mantle read books?

Why would a young man want to strap himself into several pounds of leather pads simply to sit on a bench in uncomfortable obscurity with no chance of getting in the game, short of a holocaust wiping out 15 other quarterbacks? Another dumb question. Do you expect him to swagger into Joe's Bar & Grill Saturday night and brag about the concerto he heard that afternoon?

This is a nation queer for jocks. Almost everyone adores at the shrine of the torn ligament. Our numbered gods are so securely heroic they can wear pantyhose on TV without casting doubt upon their supreme masculinity. But a little kid doesn't dare say no thanks, it is dumb to get knocked down and trampled while running with a stupid ball. His buddies would call him a pansy and his embarrassed father would ship him off to a muscle camp named after a million-dollar fullback where offseason coaches guarantee to make a superstar out of Junior (lights out at 9 p.m. for fear some little egghead might try to read something harder to spell than X and O).

That's the way it is in this he-man civilization, from before puberty to beyond senility. We are raised believing there is something special about athletes. They get all the girls, make all the money and get invited to the White House. Every father wants his son to make the team. If he can't, then Junior at least better be a raving fan, ready to worship batting averages and dunk shots.

I am as stupid as the rest. Over 30 years ago, when all the good players had gone to war, I won a city tennis championship. I still brag about it today, and I still have the medal. When I earned a college degree I didn't even go to commencement exercises to pick up the diploma and this will be the first time I ever publicly admitted I graduated with honors.

It's ridiculous, but it's a fact. We are a nation of saps who cast more votes for all-star teams than we do for President.

Taxpayers spend millions to build sports palaces in cities where the libraries must close early in the winter because there's no money for fuel oil.

U of M football coach Bo Schembechler makes headlines by sobbing his grief at not being allowed to reward his scrubs by letting them masquerade as varsity on Saturdays. Thousands of young people want to become doctors and lawyers but there is no room for them in the universities, Saturday or any other day. Who is sobbing loudly for them?

The recreation director reported telling parents their sons weren't interested in playing baseball and it was risky to force them because the bored kids might get hit by passing balls while daydreaming in the outfield. But the parents answered: "Oh, but he's got to play."

Why?

So Junior will grow up knowing the quickest way to heaven is through the locker room and the surest sign of success is the jockstrap.

Onward and Upward.

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

It could have been a different kind of weekend if Miss Lynette (Squeaky) Fromme, 26, of Sacramento had known more about guns.

It was on a Friday you'll remember, that President Kennedy was assassinated—the start of a long and tearful weekend for the nation.

And it was on a Friday that Squeaky Fromme dressed in the hooded red habit that marked her as a "nun" in the Manson clan hustled herself down to the California State House to murder President Ford.

Nothing but dumb luck saved him. Fortunately Miss Fromme knows less about guns than she does the value of human lives and the darn thing didn't go off.

"It didn't go off. Can you believe it?" Miss Fromme squeaked to Secret Servlee Agent Larry Buendorf as he wrestled the loaded Colt .45 pistol from her hand.

The President, of course, owes his life to Miss Fromme's ineptitude with guns, not Agent Buendorf's skill in wrestling 96-pound weaklings. If her gun had been loaded properly, the president wouldn't huve had a chanee.

There will be plenty of inquiries into the latest attempt on the life of a chief executive. Police and Secret Service agents will ask themselves why such an unstable person as Charlie Manson's "nun" was allowed to run the streets while the President was in town. But they won't be able to come up with any good answers.

As one official pointed out, there are so many strange people in California it would be impossible to keep them under surveillance every time the President paid a visit.

It should be obvious to the Secret Service that surveillance, or even "protective custody" for known screwballs when the President comes to call, are not the answer.

The problem lies in the fact that the President, thanks to the Secret Service, cannot travel anywhere anonymously. Wherever he goes, he is accompanied by ranks of Secret Service agents who are about as inconspicuous as elephants at a garden party. If the President had been accompanied by only one or two agents, he could have slipped into the California State House virtually unnoticed.

Furthermore, why should the Secret Service have allowed a rope cordon to be set up along the President's line-of-march through the streets of Saeramento? What better way to say, "Hey, folks! Step right up! Take a shot at the President of the Yew-nited States! Three rounds for a dollar—count 'em - three."

The news media also is to blame. Why must the people of the United States be constantly apprised of the daily moves of their President? Why must his every step be telegraphed weeks in advance, allowing crackpots time to work on all kinds of bizarre assassination schemes?

Although the President as a political animal must be a "visible man," there is no reason why he must be photographed every time he changes his socks. If we didn't know so well what Mr. Ford looks like, there's a good chance that with a pair of sunglasses and a fedora he could eat lunch at Leutheuser's Restaurant without attracting a second glance from anyone.

For many years Clockwise has lamented that our presidents must surrender their anonymity and their private lives while in office. I'm sure that most of them (Nixon excepted), like most of us, abhor the pomp that has been built into the office of President over the years. Two hundred years ago we delivered ourselves from the yoke of King George, but we certainly have not lost our taste for the trappings of royalty.

Perhaps Squenky Fromme will have done us all a favor if her aborted attempt on President Ford's life results in a more sensible approach to his protection.

1. The President's moves should be announced in advance only to those people who have an interest in where he will be, and this does not include assassins.

2. The number of Seeret Service agents accompnying the President on trips outside the White House should be minimal, so as not to attract undue attention to his whereabouts.

3. Travels about Washington should be made in a 1965 Chevrolet, with lots of body rust and a bad muffler. A beat-up Chevy would be a safer conveyance for the President than a bullet-proof Lincoln. Think about it.

4. If the president must travel in the executive limousine, he should be given a chauffeur's cap and allowed to drive. No one ever shoots the chauffeur.

5. The President should be encouraged to make the most of such casual disguises as sun glasses, different kinds of headwear and types of garb not usually assoeiated with the chief exeeutive.

The President in eut-off blue jenns? Why not, if they'll save his life?

Meet Charlevoix

George Plumm

COURIER: Whot is the purpose of The American Legion?

PLUMM: This is well stated in the preamable of our constitution. It reads: "For God and Country, we associate ourselves together for the following purposes: To uphold and defend the constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a one hundred percent Americonism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our associations in the Great Wars; to inculeate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of Justice, Freedom and Democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness."

COURIER: When was the local post founded, who wus it named for and how many members do you have?

PLUMM: We were chartered January 26, 1920 and named for Shapton who was the first person from the area killed in World War I. The first year we had 51 members with Frank Wilkinson the first commander. Now we have 253, a gain of about 30 over last year.

COURIER: What are some of the projects of The Legion?

PLUMM: This year we sent seven boys to Boys State, more than any other post in the District. This gives the boys an insight into government and how it operates. We donate the use of our hall to civic and charitable organizations such as the police and fire departments, the Ironton Crippled Children's Association, etc. In conjunction with the Veterans of Foreign Wars we sponsor the Memorial Day parade. We buy flags for the City of Charlevoix when needed. A few years ago we raised money to buy Fran Martin's wheel chair. When one of our members is in severe financial trouble we help him out. Recently we contributed to the Petoskey Drum and Bugle Corps to help send them to the national contest. In general, we do almost anything when asked to help benefit the community.

COURIER: Who uses your hall?

PLUMM: We have bingo games every Monday night and we also rent it out for parties. The bingo games help pay for additions and improvements to the hall and the hall rentals take care of mortgage payments. Our next improvement will be grass and landscaping. Since our last trouble about noise at the hall we have instructed our Rental Chairman that the orchestra must stop playing at 1 o'clock and the volume must be kept down.

COURIER: If someone wants to rent the hall how do they do it?

PLUMM: They should call Bob Nowakowski at 547-6925 or Bob Parsel.

COURIER: Is your chapter affiliated with other groups?

PLUMM: Yes, we are part of District 11 which includes Alpena, Bellaire, Boyne City, Cheboygan, East Jordan, Ellsworth, Harbor Springs, Mackinaw City, Mancelona, Rogers City, South Boardman and Wolverine. The District, of course, is part of the state unit. In the past several of our members have attended state conventions. The membership goal for Michigan this year is 76,000. Last year there were 71,000 members. Nationally we have more than 2,600,000 members in 16,000 posts.

COURIER: Who are the officers of the Shapton post?

PLUMM: Besides myself as commander, they nre Fritz Allard, first vice commander; Bud Coyne, second vice commander, Maurice Cudd, adjutant; Louis McKenzie, treasurer; Paul Steffens, chaplain; Bob Wasoski, service officer; and Don Willis, sergeant-at-arms. We meet the first and third Tuesday of every month and welcome all veterans.

COURIER: What about the Legion Auxiliary?

PLUMM: They have 76 members. Dorls Wasoski is president, Bertha Sterneman is first vice-president, Angie Bortlis is second vice-president, Lyda Johnson is secretary, Genevieve Smith is treasurer, Esther Shearer is chaplain and Josephine Bondi is sergeant-at-homcs. The Auxiliary is made up of wives, daughters and granddaughters of veterans and women who have served in the military themselves.

COURIER: What does the Auxiliary do?

PLUMM: They ure a service organization much os we are. This year they sent two girls to Girls State. They are in charge of Poppy Day sales. They make Christmas gifts for veternns' hospital patients and send Mother's Day eards and handkerchiefs for disabled veterans to give to their mothers, among other things. They also cook and serve meals for various occasions.

COURIER: When does the Auxiliary meet?

PLUMM: They meet the second Thursday of each month.

In Season Opener at Kipke Field

Rayders Down Kalkaska for First Win

The Charlevoix Red Rayders kicked off the 1975 high school football season with a rain soaked 20-6 victory over the visiting Kalkaska Blue Blazers last Friday evening at Kipke Field.

Munsoon-like rain poured down during the entire game, washing out the half time show and causing more than the normal early season mistakes.

Fans from last year will not soon forget the speedsters Martin and Streeter, however, the emergence of Randy Williams may help that memory subside. Williams rambled for over 155 yards through holes provided by good blocks from the offensive line.

Scoring activity got underway with Charlevoix's first possession. Mike Way returned the kick-off to the Kalkaska 36 yard line where Williams began his performance. Five plays into the game, Quarterback Way took the snap from center, rolled around left end, and rambled 38 yards into the Kalkaska end zone for the Red Rayders' first touchdown. The point-after attempt failed, and with less than three minutes of the game gone, Charlevoix led 6-0.

From that point, it began to look like that score would stand. Because of the rain, and the early season jitters, neither team was able to advance over the opposition's goal line. Both squads showed good defense, and a combined total of nine fumbles and one intersepted pass helped to keep the score stable.

Four plays into the fourth quarter, workhorse Williams was given the ball on the Kalkaska 2 yard line. After the players had unpiled, the Red Rayders had their second touchdown of the young season. The point-after attempt failed, and the score stood 12-0 with 11:35 remaining in the football game.

With less than 2 minutes remaining, Bob Alger dropped back and lofted a 3 yard pass to End Steve Michaels for the third Red Rayder touchdown. Randy Williams punched through for the point-after, and the score stood Charlevoix 20, Kalkaska 0.

The Blue Blazers of Kalkaska are a tenacious squad, and after returning the Red Rayder kickoff to their own 31 yard line, they marched downfield in 7 plays for their only touchdown of the evening. The score came on a pass from Quarterback Joel Guy to Gary Guy. The 16 yard scoring play brought the clock down to five seconds. The point-after kick was blocked, and the final score stood 20-6.

The Red Rayders showed good promise in their defeat over the Kalkaska Blue Blazers. Kirk Lieberman, Alger, and Terry Drew anchored a fine defensive effort by the Charlevoix eleven, while the offensive backfield of Williams Way, Alger, and Ed Mann providing excitement for the fans. This Friday's game with Benzie Central at Kipke Field should be a further test of the squad before entering battle with the traditional gridiron rivals in the Michigan-Huron Shores League.

Introducing the Rayders

This quintet of Charlevoix Rayder girdmen will be among those you will see in action at Kipke field and elsewhere this fall.

They are Casey "Coach" Culbertson, Ralph Muma, Bill Bellows, Kevin Speer and Brian Williams.

Culbertson, a senior, is playing his second year of Varsity football after two years with the JV's. He is 5'8", weights 155 pounds and plays end and defensive halfback. He is the son of Chief Warrant Officer and Mrs. Richard Ross who moved to Sitka, Alaska, with the U.S. Coast Guard recently, leaving Casey here to finish high school.

Muma is a junior and playing his first year of Varsity football. As a 'journeyman' quarterback, he will be an understudy of Bob Alger. He is 5'7", weighs 138 pounds and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Muma.

Bellows is another newcomer to Varsity ranks. He is a junior and expects to be playing guard. He is 5'8" and weighs 145 pounds. He is the son of Mrs. Joan H. Bellows and William Bellows.

Speer is a Varsity veteran and a senior who will be playing end and safety. He is 5' 10", weighs 145 pounds and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harland Speer.

Brian William is up from two years with the Junior Varsity team and will be seeking an assignment as flanker and defensive halfback. A junior, he is 5'9", weighs 145 pounds and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Williams.

Motorcycle clothing comes in a wide variety of forms, each of which perfurm slightly different functions. Determining the characteristics most suitable to your style of riding will help you get the most usable garment for your money.

Besides protecting yourself from wind, rain and cold, you may have a concern about sliding down the pavement and want something to protect your skin. Unfortunately, no one garment can remedy all these protection problems.

Leather is the most often thought of material for cycling clothing. It is the most durable and offers the best wind protection. Because of its high tensile strength it is the only material that stands half a chance while rubbing away at the highway.

The drawbacks of leather are that it doesn't offer any real warmth and only moderate rain protection. A leather jacket is all right for running through a brief shower but after hauling through an all day tour you end up with a piece of slime that takes days to dry.

Gaining popularity on the once king leather is the riding suit. These are either one or two piece units made of a waterproofed fabric. There are tremendous differences in the quality of construction, material, and design. This means there are also big differences in price. Shop around and get the best in your price range.

The advantages of these suits is their excellent protection from wind and rain and the fact that they are actually warm. My favorite is the heavy cotton job covered with the gooey wax coating. It does a real job of keeping everything out although it gets a bit messy at times.

A third general category of outer wear is designed with another purpose in mind. Clothing for skiing, mountaineering, snowmobiling and any other activity that puts man in the weather. By sale shopping you can usually save substantial amounts for gear that will work as well as more expensive motorcycle garb. Military surplus stores also hnve a wealth of well made and designed foul weather gear. I've used a pair of Navy winter flying pants, that cost me eight bucks new, tu go cross country in twenty degree weather. A lot of warmth for little money.

In any garment you might buy for use on a bike check a few details that will help you get the best service and value from your purchase. A functional garment should have:

1. Wind flap behind zipper.
2. Tight closures at wrists, neck and ankles.
3. Waterproofed seams (in rain gear).
4. Long enough arms and legs to keep you covered while in a riding position.
5. Extra seat room in pants.
6. Extra body length in jacket to fall well below waist.

Always check for fit by sitting on your bike. There's a big difference in feel and coverage between standing in front of a mirror and seated in your normal riding position.

So, decide what you really need and what your willing to pay.

Tax Allocation Question Goes to Fall Election

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners will consider a petition initiating procedures for the adoption of separate tax limitations at their monthly meeting today (Wednesday).

The petition was initiated last June by the County Tax Allocation Board in an attempt to stabilize the millage allocated within the County.

The Tax Allocation Board's request is that for three years the aggregate millage shall not exceed 15 mills and that it be limited to 4.9 mills for the County of Charlevoix, 1.0 mills for the townships, .20 mills for the Intermediate School District and 8.9 mills for other school districts.

The proposal will be put on the November 4 General Election ballot.

School districts are especially anxious to have a fixed millage because it will give them an opportunity to make long range plans rather than year to year plans based on the millage allocated to them.

This year, County millage was allocated at 4.7 mills for the County, 1.0 mills for the townships, .20 mills for the Intermediate School District and 9.1 mills for other schools

Big Rock Checked

If you have seen a low-flying blue and white plane in the area recently and wondered what it was doing, there is the answer.

The United States Nuclear Regulatory Commission and the Energy Research and Development Administration are making a routine environmental radiation survey over a 25-square mile area around the Big Rock Nuclear Power Plant near Charlevoix.

The survey is part of the federal agencies' on-going research and environmental monitoring programs. Flights map the natural terrestrial radiation profile of the area surrounding Big Rock.

The aircraft flies at a 500-foot elevation during daylight hours. Similar aircraft have been gathering radiological data around U.S. nuclear electric power plants since 1958.

Hayes Named Charlevoix Prosecutor

Judge Martin B. Breidiner of Petoskey announced his decison to appoint Roy C. Hayes, prosecuting attorney for Charlevoix County effective January 1.
Hayes is expected to take over the job on a full time basis. Charlevoix County has always had a part time prosecutor in the past.

Roy C. Hayes

Hayes was recommended for the position by Circuit Judge George R. Bowles, of Wayne County; Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson; Wayne County Prosecutor William L. Cahalan, and Detroit Police Chief Philip G. Tannian. He will succeed Horvey Varnum of Boyne City who announced his resignation.
Hayes, 35, is presently the director of the Wayne County Organized Crime Task Force. He was appointed to that position four years ago at the inception of the task force. This law enforcement unit is comprised of representatives from the Wayne County Presecutors' Office, Detroit Police Department, Wayne County Sheriff's Office Michigan State Police and other agencies. Ambulance chasing, arson fraud, police corruption, hijacking, cargo theft and political corruption are the major areas in which the task force has secured indictments and convictions.
Currently, Hayes is prosecuting the highly publicized 10th Precinct police drug conspiracy case in Detroit. He stated: "I am looking forward to assuming the challenging position of prosecuting attorney for Charlevoix County. Effective criminal prosecution helps to professionalize law enforcement which leads to safer and more livable communities."
From June of 1967 until December 1969, Hayes served as an assistant prosecuting attorney for Wayne County handling all phases of criminal prosecution. During this period of time, Hayes conducted more than 100 felony jury trials.

School Board Borrows Funds

The Charlevoix Board of Education voted Monday to apply for permission from the Michigan Finance Commission to borrow $180,000 for 135 days (Nov. 3-Mar.15) in anticipation of taxes.
Supt James A. McKimmy said that the district would be accepting bids before the last meeting in October.
He went on to explain that the payment of 50 percent of the school taxes by the residents of the City and Norwood township allowed the school district to cut its borrowing from $648,000 last year to $480,000 this year and cut the number of days interest must be paid thus altowing a 50 percent saving.
The board also heard from Gerald Johnson and Mrs. Mae Charbeneau who live on Sprigley Road in Hayes township and Mrs. Joan Jones and Mrs. Kay Britton regarding the new bus schedules, the hours their children leave for and orrive home from school and the distance they must walk to the bus.
The board voted to enter into a contract with the Texas Roofing Corp. fur repair of the roof on Building A of the high school with the understanding that the company would utilize approximately $800 in supplies on hand. The company's bid was in the amount of $3,290. Their representative in the area, Ron Root of Fife Lake will do the work.
In other uetion the board apprayed the employment of Mrs. Rebecca Berg as a regular substitute teacher from Sept. 2 until March 20, 1976 with her compensation to be pro-rated on the BA-1 step or $6,646 and benefits of a regular employed teacher.
Approved the altering of the Parent-Teacher conference schedule to the evening of Oct. 14 and all day and evening of Oct. 15 and the evening of March 2 and oll day and evening on March 3.

Senator Robert Davis Spending Less Time in North

By KEN WINTER

Northern Michigan residents won't be seeing much of their state senator any more, according to his top aide.

In fact, Senator Robert Davis (R-Gaylord) expects to spend only about 10 percent of his time wandering through his 19-county district.

The 43-year-old Michigan Republican apparently will be too busy politicking down in Lansing as the Senate Minority Leader--the third largest political post in the state.

"It's just that he's more involved in Lansing," says Rod Brown, Davis' administrative assistant.

The state senator has been noticeably absent from his district in recent months and Brown says it will probably get worse.

Republican Leader

"He's now the leader of the Republicans," Brown explained.

"We work every day with the governor, where we never did before."

Brown says while his boss may be physically absent from his district, the benefit Northern Michigan is getting from Davis' being minority leader is unmeasurable.

"We are in a better position to benefit the area," Brown says.

"Before he just had a vote, now he has input into the original draft and legislation."

The aide said the state senator's workload has almost tripled since he became a Senate leader last year.

No Complaints

While Brown says there have been no real complaints about the senator's absence, it has been noticeable.

"I think it's going to have to continue because his time will have to be spent on legislation," Brown says.

He said the Senator has been working hard on the new workmen's compensation bill after just spending a summer agonizing over teacher strike legislation.

While other Michigan legislators were able to go back home during their summer vacations to visit their districts, Brown said Davis spent most of his time in Lansing.

"We just don't have the time we used to have," Brown sighed during the telephone interview.

"There just aren't enough hours in the day."

Visits

Brown said his boss will be trying to visit every county once every three months and that he will have to "pick and choose" invitations sent him for local events.

Even this reporter was unable to get the senator to return a phone call made three weeks earlier.

The eventual reply came from his aide.

Breighner Appoints LaCroft Receiver

Ground was broken for the La Croft condominiums in Charlevoix in November, 1972.

Last week, less than three years later, an order appointing a Receiver for the housing development was signed by Circuit Judge Martin B. Breighner.

The petition for appointment of a Receiver for the 64-unit development was filed by the Heartwell Mortgage Company of Grand Rapids through its attorneys, Varnum, Riddering, Wierengo & Christenson, also of Grand Rapids.

Listed as defendants are La Croft Development Co., a Michigan limited partnership, Ralph V. Hess, Marjorie Hess, Richard D. Jeffery, Judith Jeffery, Clayton E. Scott, Daisy Scott, Roger Gust, Provad V. Gust, Gust Construction Company, TGL, Inc., d/b/a Continental Home Supply Company, Precast/Schokbeton, Inc., Davis Electric Company and John W. Campbell.

The Joe E. Norwood Company of Livonia was appointed Receiver in the action. Among stipulations in the Receivership order is the authority of the Receiver "To rent up to twenty individual condominium units for periods not to exceed one year."

Originally, the units were built for sale, but a local source says there are now only "23 units occupied by sale or lease." No breakdown could be obtained.

The Receiver is also authorized "To sell individual condominium units free and clear of the liens of all parties to this action."

La Croft was one of the condominiums named by the City of Charlevoix this summer as owing the city a large utility bill.

Michael A. Gibbons, Charlevoix attorney, is handling legal matters locally for the Receiver.

This is the second Charlevoix condominium development to have financial troubles within the year.

Several Commissioners Assail County Planner

Charlevoix County Planner Bill Mercer found himself being grilled by several County Commissioners last week during what might have otherwise been a routine report.

Commissioner Clayton Smith wanted to know if the county was paying the costs of members of the Planning Commission staying overnight on Beaver Island following the Commission's annual meeting there.

Smith also remarked that he thought the monthly meetings of the Planning Commission were too frequent and unnecessary and that the planners were taking over work that should be done by the Board of Commissioners.

When Mercer, on behalf of the Planning Commission, presented the name of a person to replace Commission meniber John Buick of Walloon Lake who has resigned, he was questioned about the right of the Planning Commission to make the replacement.

Board Appointment

Both County Commission Chairman Harry Griffin and County Commissioner Oscar Ward indicated they thought it was the prerogative of the Board of Commissioners to make the appointment from among any person whose names were presented to them.

When asked by the Courier about the questions and comments of members of the Board of Commissioners, Mercer made the following statement:

"For the past four years, and probably longer, the Planning Commission has presented to the Board of Commissioners names of one or more persons for appointment to the Planning Commission. The main reason for this was to save the Board of Commissioners time from running around the county to look for candidates. The names we submitted were only suggestions.

"About our Beaver Island trip. The Board of Commissioners was requested in 1972 to have a representative on the Planning Commission from Beaver Island, and one was appointed. Later, at the suggestion of the Islanders, as well as some Mainlanders, we started having an annual meeting on the Island to learn

Enjoys Paper

I am writing this short letter to let you know that I enjoy reading your paper for several reasons. Now and then a name is mentioned that I recognize. Someone I used to know. You don't know me as I left in 1924, but have always thought of Charlevoix as my hometown.

My oldest sister, Mrs. Rietkerk, receives the Courier and passes it on to me. I like to keep abreast of the football scores, also basketball. I read "Clockwise" and "If it Fitz". They write interesting articles, hitting the nail on the head, so to speak.

If you will please excuse this writing for I had a stroke going on 4 years ago and write with my left hand.

I used to attend Maple Grove School in Hayes Township. In fact, I was from about a mile from the school and have a lot of old memories.

Well, I had better close and make this short as promised. I though I'd let you know your paper was read here, too.--Respectfully and May God Bless, Custer Hayes Howe, 1706 Barer Dr., Kalamazoo, Michigan.

Smelly Situation

It would seem that the city police could find a better way of eliminating the skunk problem in the downtown business area other than shotting them. Several businessmen opened their shops last week to a terrific odor. If other customers reacted as I did, they didn't do much business that day. A shot in the head should kill the animal without any odor, but apparently not. Or is the marksmanship coming from a distance?

Appreciates Help

I just wanted to state that I think the Charlevoix Schools are providing my children with a good education.

We moved up here several years ago from Detroit and have found that my children are getting more personal attention than they ever got in Detroit.

I think the Charlevoix Elementary School is particularly good. The teachers seem interested and provide what I think is one of the best programs around.

Thanks again for a good job.

Sheriff Cleared from Unfair Labor Charge

By FRAN MARTIN

The Michigan Department of Labor has cleared Charlevoix County Sheriff Philo Sumner of unfair labor practice charges brought by Mrs. Gertrude Sandahl.

Administrative Law Judge Bert H. Wicking of the Employment Relations Commission recommended dismissal of the charges last week because he said Mrs. Sandahl failed to provide evidence that she was dismissed for joining a union.

Mrs. Sandahl claimed she was discharged as cook at the County Jail Dec. 21, 1974 for her union activities. The Sheriff, on the other hand, alleged she was discharged because the lack of prisoners did not warrant a cook when it was decided to go to a catering service.

It was brought out in the hearing conducted before Judge Wicking, that Mrs. Sandahl had been informed when she was hired in October under the Federal CETA program that the position was temporary. When the jail census was zero in December, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners elected to enter into a contract with a local restaurant for catering of meals when needed rather than maintain a full time cook.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Sandahl said she was asked to join the union (Teamsters Local 214) and that when she advised the Sheriff's wife of this, the sheriff discharged her.

At the time of her discharge, the Sheriff offered her a job in the office which she declined. Prior to this she had told the Board of Commissioners that the Sheriff was misusing public funds and keeping two sets of books.

In his decision, Judge Wicking stated that the evidence was not convincing that Mrs. Sandahl had been discharged because of her union activities; that the timing of her conversation with Mrs Sumner and the Sheriff's notification of the lay off was coincidental, in light of other events; that she had been informed that the job was temporary and that since there were no prisoners there was no justification for a full time cook.

Judge Wicking concluded his decision by stating that for these reasons he recommended that the Michigan Employment Relations Commission order that the charges be dismissed in their entirety.

Some Say Natural Resources' Hot Line Not So Hot

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

The DNR is employing a new weapon in its fight against the likes of deer shiners and trout snaggers.

A toll-free Hot Line has been installed at DNR headquarters in Lansing, so citizens may call in fish and game law violations.

DNR spokespersons hope this will reduce the percentage of success for the poachers and snaggers and other culprits, if ordinary citizens will cooperate.

A dream of the DNR's Chief Law Enforcement Officer, George Dahl, the toll free line has been designed to help alleviate the pressure on local conservation officers and meet the frustrations of citizens who wish to report law violations but cannot reach the conservation officer.

But, in an exclusive interview with THE COURIER, Dahl admitted all problems will not be solved by the Hot Line. The DNR law enforcement division is operating under an austerity program. The combination of lack of funds for adequate personnel in the field and enough phone lines, means fish and game law violators can still play their game of percentages, he said.

Dahl said he realized that deer shining does not occur during normal working hours -- the times currently manned by a warm body on the Hot Line.

Hot Line

For now, citizens using the Hot Line will be greeted by a person from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. On weekends, nights and holidays a recording device will take messages, which will be monitored when working hours resume.

"Therefore," Dahl said, "It will not be possible for us to get an officer on the spot right now."

"However," he continued, "If the line proves meritorious, we plan, as of October 1, to put personnel on the phone from 5 to midnight, and possibly until 4 a.m., during the firearm deer season."

Dahl indicated that more lines may be added, also, so that callers will not face endless busy signals (This reporter reached six busy signals over a period of two hours, before she got through to the Hot Line).

Local conservation officers echo Dahl.

Fall is an especially hectic time for officers in Charlevoix County. Game season and the best trout and salmon runs coincide.

Downstaters swell the ranks of local sportsmen and the officers acknowledge they cannot cover all the action.

Three Officers

Charlevoix County has three officers: Harley Burris, Boyne City; Julius O'Brien, East Jordan' and Al Mixter, who also covers parts of Emmet County.

DNR law enforcement spokespeople, Dahl included, expressed the hope that citizens try to contact their local officer first; the State Police in Petoskey, second; and then, if they still haven't been able to reach the proper authority, use the Hot Line for reporting a violation.

Calls to the Hot Line are logged, according to Frank Opolka, Law Enforcement Executive in Lansing. In turn, the DNR calls the local officer in the area, if necessary by radio, to get him to the scene of the complaint.

Dahl and Mixter said it was all but impossible for an officer to get to the spot of a violation in time to catch the culprit red handed.

In the case of deer shining, Mixter said, reports of violations would help him know where to keep watching, because poachers generally work specific areas.

Dahl and Mixter both said they hoped the Hot Line would help encourage people to report violations in situations where they might wish to remain anonymous. The DNR person answering the Hot Line will ask a caller if he wishes to give his name, address and phone, so the local officer can come talk with him, but if

The world is running slow

John Reusch

New Year was a little late this year. At the Royal Greenwich Observatory -- on the zero meridian where time zones begin -- scientists had to delay their atomic clocks for a full second to give the earth a chance to catch up.

It seems the earth's rotations are slowing down while atomic clocks never vary. So the earth's timekeepers, including the National Bureau of Standards in the U.S., periodically give the earth a "leap second" by stopping the clocks for a full second.

The New Year's eve leap second was the fourth since the system went into effect on June 30, 1972.

Family Planning Gets More Money

District Health Department No. 3 has received additional funds through the Michigan Department of Public Health to again enable it to provide Family Planning services to the residents of this area. Because of the heavy demand for such services, the program was discontinued in June when available funds were exhausted.

Family Planning Services, through the District Health Department, include counseling, educational, and referral services by a Public Health Nurse. These services are available to all residents of the area regardless of age, sex, or economic situation. Financial assistance for direct medical services, including the costs of physician visits, medical tests, and costs of medication, or surgery, if warranted, is available to individuals whose financial circumstances require such assistance.

As in the past, highest priority in the provision of all services will be given to those for whom an unplanned pregnancy would constitute a serious social, economic, or health problem including, but not limited to, those persons with large numbers of children, close intervals between children, those under 18 or over 35 years of age, or those with pre-existing physical and/or mental health problems.

Due to limitation of available funding, financial assistance will be limited to those individuals defined in the above groupings who report a financial or other access problem in obtaining desired family planning services.

These services are available at any office of District Health Department No. 3.

The Charlevoix County office is located at 203 Antrim Street, Charlevoix, phone 547-6523. A Public Health Nurse is available there for Family Planning Counseling and referring activities.

Fire Destroys Local Cabin

A fire followed by the explosion of a bottled gas tank at 5:25 a.m. Saturday completely destroyed a hunting cabin located five miles southwest of here near Clipperview off US 31 S.

The cabin was owned by Lawrence 'Slub' Swanson. Cause of the fire was unknown according to Benjamin S. Gill, assistant Fire Chief. The Charlevoix Volunteer Fire Department answered the call.

Several young men who were spending the night at the cabin escaped without injury.

The fire was reported by Coastguardsmen from the Charlevoix Lifeboat Station who witnessed the fire and explosion which sent flames several hundred feet into the air while answering a distress call from a 30 foot sloop that had lost its rudder in six foot seas.

The owner of the sloop, Sunshine, Norman a Kline of Traverse City, had called for assistance at 2:20 a.m. when the craft lost its rudder.

The sloop had anchored about five miles south of Fisherman's Island and had been taken in tow when the explosion and fire were sighted. The Coastguardsmen radioed the lifeboat station which, in turn, called the fire department. The 44 foot patrol boat and its tow arrived here at 8:13 a.m. Kline and his three passengers were uninjured.

Kit Carson Offers Reward for Flag

In the past 13 months, the company has lost five American flags, two Michigan flags and one bicentennial flag. The American flags measured 10 ft. by 15 ft. and the Michigan flags, five ft. by eight ft.

Kit Carson is now offering a $50 reward for information leading to the apprehension and prosecution of the person or persons responsible for the theft of the American and Michigan flags from its flagpole on M-66.

Persons with any information are asked to call Dick Meyer at 547-6521, or the Courier Hotline evenings, phone 547-6559. Hotline calls may be anonymous.

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce will host its annual Autumn Ball at the Belvedere Casino on Saturday, Sept. 27, Mrs. Jaquie Merta, acting director of the chamber, has announced.

The event will begin at 8:30 p.m. with music for dancing by Gary Stutzman's Steinmen.

Refreshments will be available. Hors d'oeuvres will also be served throughout the evening.

Despite Cold Labor Day

Charlevoix Economy Looks Good

By TOM DAMMANN

The economic future is beginning to look a little rosier in the eyes of local bankers, despite the cold water dumped by the weather over the Labor Day weekend, traditionally so important to the economy of the resort area.

This is thanks to the phenomenal tourist business, experienced not only during the three summer months but for the eight months ending on Labor Day, they observe.

And it may be a microcosm of what has been occurring throughout the state, notwithstanding an unemployment rate hovering around 14.5 percent both locally and statewide, in July, the most recent month of available figures.

Bankers are emphatic that tourism generated a great deal of cash in the area – that motels, restaurants, bars, filling stations and marinas all report the best business ever experienced.

"Our savings accounts are up 12 percent from last year, and checking accounts are up 30 percent," Louis J. Hollow, president, First State Bank of Charlevoix, said this week, adding that there are now signs that "people who have been delaying decisions to do things are now doing them. A half dozen builders have begun constructions of homes for future sale, building starts are up and real estate sales have begun to perk in the last few weeks."

Gordon Wellman, president, Charlevoix County State Bank, reports an increase of 21 percent in savings, with checking accounts remaining about level with last year. He also attributes the increase in building and real estate activity to the dollars and improvement in attitude engendered by the phenomenal tourist business.

"We have a good feeling," Wellman says.

John C. Linck, vice president of the First National Bank and Trust Co., of Petoskey, largest bank in northwest Michigan, points out that it isn't only the great summer business that is encouraging.

"This past winter was the second largest year of skiing since its inception in Michigan" (many analysts say it was the biggest ever) Linck says, "People are happy."

Mrs. Maxine Harrold, spokesperson at the Petoskey Regional Chamber of Commerce says that area stores were jammed all summer.

"For the first time we haven't had a single gripe," she says.

Kenneth L. Bayha, spokesperson for the Petoskey Bank and Trust Co., says regional retail business was up from five to 20 percent, that bank balances are up higher than expected.

"There is a lot more demand for mortgage money, there is some new housing going up and an increase in real estate sales," Bayha says.

Mary Feindt, president of Charlevoix Abstract and Engineering Co., says that a definite improvement in the real estate and home building businesses began in August and is still holding.

"Orders for title insurance, abstracts and land surveys moved up 10 percent above a year ago," she reports.

Eugene S. Steele, Charlevoix realtor, reputed for his objectivity, says "sales of resort homes which have been practically nil began picking up last month. There's been a strong comeback in vacant lots, cottages, residences and even a flurry of interest in condominiums."

But all these observers have their fingers crossed.

"Even though there is this throb of improvement, there is no dancing in the streets yet," Hollow says.

Schools Concerned About Health

Local schools are concerned not only with teaching children. The health of school children is also a primary concern of both teachers and the administration.

Each year the District Health Department furnishes schools with a booklet titled "School Health Service Guide Teachers References" which outlines health tests available through the Health Department, when various immunizations must be given, and the teachers' responsibility in observing any health problems.

Many immunizations are required by state law and each child enrolling in a public, private, parochial or denominational school in the state for the first time must submit one of the following:

(a) A statement signed by a physician that they have been immunized or protected against diptheria, tetanus, pertussis (whooping cough), rubella (German measles) and poliomyelitis, and tuberculin tested to determine the presence of infection from tuberculosis.

(b) A statement signed by a parent or guardian to the effect that the child has not been immunized and tuberculin tested because of religious convictions or other objection to immunization.

(c) A request signed by a parent or guardian that the local Health Department give the needed projective Injections and diagnostic tests.

In addition, the parent or guardian of each enrolling child shall submit a statement; (a) signed by a district, county or city Health Department director stating that the child has passed the department of public health preschool vision screening test; or (b) signed by a licensed medical, osteopathic physician or a licensed optometrist indicating that the child has had his eyes examined during the preschool years after age three and prior to initinl entrance. A vision test is not required if there is a statement signed by a parent or guardian to the effect that the child cannot be submitted to such tests because of religious convictions.

The "School Health Service Guide Teachers Reference" is broken down into several sections telling when the tests are given and what teachers should look for.

Vision Screening

All children in grades 1, 3, 5, 7, 9 and 11 and referrals from classroom teachers are tested each year by a trained vision technician. Failures in this screening program are referred to the parents with a recommendation to see the eye doctor of their choice. Follow-up is done by the public health nurse to determine if the child has had the necessary corrective treatment.

Teachers are asked to be observant of such things as squinting, cross-eyes, lazy eye, etc. so they can refer the child for a vision test.

Hearing Screening

Audiometric screening of all children in grades kindergarten, 2, 4, and 6 and teacher referrals is carried out by a Health Department trained technician each yenr. Any failure in the initial phase of screening is re-screened with a threshhold test. Those children who fail the threshhold test are urged to see the ear specialist or physician of their choice. Periodically, the Health Department sponsors an otology clinic in which children may be examined by an ear specialist.

Following an otology clinic children needing treatment are referred to their family physician or other recommended specialist. Health Depnrtment nurses follow these children to determine if the necessnry treatment has been started.

Dental Program

The application of topical sodium fluoride is offered to children in grades 2, 5 and 8. Pre-schoolers, three to four years of age, also may be included if requested by their parents.

Limited funds are earmarked for dental care for children who urgently need care and whose families are unable to provide the necessary care.

Immunizations

Immunizations are made available by the District Health Department in regular immunization clinics. Health Department nurses participate in the pre-school round-up held in the spring of the year. Parents are urged to take their children to their family physician or to the immunization clinic so that they may receive the required boosters.

Immunization clinics are held the second Monday of each month from 1 o'clock to 3 o'clock in the District Health offices in the County Annex Building, Charlevoix.

Exclusion from School

The teachers' and nurses' function is not to diagnose illness but rather to exclude children purely on the basis of certain symptoms mentioned below. Discussion concerning notification of parents about a child's illness requires judgment based on the child's

Time to Clean Up

Litter is not an appealing sight.

Nor are smoke-filled skies or monstrous billboards.

Yet, the remains of all three signs of an affluent society grace the waterways and wooded sections of Charlevoix County.

Any mile along the lakes area, parks or roadside nooks will illustrate the blemishes left behind by those who have traveled thousands of miles to visit one of the nation's most attractive vacation spots.

Not many sections escape untouched. In some cases, a pile of debris will be found only a few steps from an empty litter container plainly marked by the state.

One woman, in another paper, reported that over the weekend, a short distance from Grand Traverse Bay, an area of about a city block was strewn with 47 cans or bottles. And this was on only one side of the road.

In addition to unsightliness, some of the containers are hazardous to forest creatures who become trapped while seeking food. One of the common incidents reported by naturalists is the growing number of aquatic birds who become entangled in the plastic rounds holding six-pack cans together. Many of them are unable to work themselves free.

For another chapter, all you have to do is look above you.

In the crispy blue skies, you can see long streams of smoke coming from a half dozen sources.

Besides the black, belching smoke, long vapor trails can be seen from the scores of jets that fly over our area.

A drive down one of our many scenic roads will uncover yet another visual blight--billboards.

Time and time again, words have been written and spoken about eliminating all the visual blights in our country, yet very little has been done.

The Highway Beautification Act, established by Congress in 1965, has only been a stab in the dark toward eliminating ugly billboards and junk yards.

While states have been able to administer their own programs, state enforcement of the federal act has fallen short of expectations expressed by Lady Bird Johnson in the sixties.

Grand Traverse County township and city residents are urging their county board of commissioners to establish a county-wide sign ordinance.

If the pollution problems confronting Charlevoix County are expected to be solved, it is going to take more than what is being done now.

One positive step of local effort has been the discussion of forming an environmental watchdog group to be on the alert for potential threats to this area.

If the group does form, it hopes to inform residents of the resources they have available to fight pollution.

They claim that many local residents are not aware of the government tools that are available to curb environmental problems.

By organizing into a group, the residents hope to inform people of these tools, as well as keep people interested in environmental issues.

If the group gets off the ground, it will be taking what we think is the common-sense approach to fighting pollution.

Legislators can legislate all the laws they want, but unless grassroots interest is developed, nothing will be done.

Common group efforts seem to be the best way to develop interest.

Charlevoix has long needed this type of interest and we offer our support to any organization that takes an active interest in our local ecology.

Contempt for nature is not the mark of a civilized person. Unless the careless join the concerned, the striving for ecological balance so desperately needed will remain a long way off.

TWO BLOWS TOO MANY

Erma Bombeck

I overheard Mother talking recently and poked my head into the living room where she was watching TV. She was alone.

"Do you mind if I talk to you about...diarrhea?" asked the nervous little man on the screen.

"You bet your sweet bird I mind," said Mother. "I told you the last time to knock it off with the smutty stuff."

"Just two words," he insisted, ignoring her.

"No!" said Mother, flipping the knob to another channel.

On seeing me staring at her she said, "Served the turkey right. He doesn't know me that well," and sat back to watch a drain unclog.

"How long have you been talking to the TV set, Mother?"

"A couple of years now," she said. "I guess I started when Mr. Whipple began to squeeze the Charmin. I told him then, 'Whipple, you keep that up and they're going to put you in a home.' Besides, I don't talk to the TV set. I only talk back to commercials. You should try it sometime. Gets rid of all your hostilities. Like this one."

I watched a full-grown woman submerge a loaf of bread in six quarts of cooking oil. Mother cupped her hands around her mouth and yelled, "Five percent of Americans are on welfare, fathead, and you waste a whole loaf of bread to see how much grease you use."

"It looks fun," I admitted, "But I'd feel like a fool talking to a TV tube."

A commercial came on of a girl who weighed about 58 pounds saying, "I need girdle support here (over her stomach) here (on her hips) and here (pointing to her backside)." I went in for a closer look. She would have to have a fat transplant to keep breathing.

"You want to see a stomach?" I shouted at the tube. "I'll show you a stomach that's beyond a girdle. It needs a wise."

I sat back rather pleased with myself.

"You see," said Mother, "Doesn't that make you feel better?"

I had to admit she was right. In the weeks to come I released my hostilities on one commercial after the other. Then, one day I was on the phone and had just finished saying, "You're boring and don't hang up on me! You have never had an original thought in your life and don't worry...I won't call you anymore at the office!"

"Who was that?" asked Mother.

"The time of day recording."

"That's a relief," she sighed. "I thought you were talking to yourself."

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

Those of us who live in the Podunks of Amerlca can ill afford to snicker at the financial problems of New York City. Just as New York has always been ahead of the rest of the country in population, business, sports and the arts, she has also reached the brink of bankruptcy before the rest of us.

That is not to say that we will all suffer the ignominity of having the state step in to bail us out, but there are signs, even in northern Michigan, that our communities are in for some stormy financial weather.

Take the Electric Fund situation, for example. A few years ago, cities like Charlevoix and Petoskey matched what they collected in local taxes with hefty transfers from their Electric Funds to their General Funds.

I have long maintained that such transfers are grossly illegal, since they constitute a tax over and above fixed millage limitations of 10 mills in Petoskey and 15 mills in Charlevoix.

But city fathers look at the huge infusions of money merely as a means of taxing city-owned electric utilities. We do not tax the city garage, the cemetery, the water works or the street department. But we sure tax the Electric Fund.

Or we used to. Petoskey City Manager Richard Gorman served notice to his constituents last week that, after a big Consumrs Power fuel adjustment of 30 percent goes into effect Oct. 1, there will be no money left in the Electric Fund to transfer to the general fund or anywhere else.

The City of Charlevoix, which has been trying to cut back on its dependence on the Electric Fund generally, faces an identical situation. From here it looks as though there will be little money left in the near future to pump into city operations.

Gorman has suggested a number of different alternatives to his hard-pressed citizens. One is an increase in electric rates sufficient to meet the city's need for additional revenue.

Another is an increase in the millage ceiling, which will take a vote of the people. Still another is a temporary increase in the millage ceiling, say five or 10 years, which also will require a vote of the people.

Lastly, Petoskey may vote on a city income tax to be paid by everyone who works in Petoskey, whether he lives there or not. This also would have to go on the ballot.

Can the people of northern Michigan stand any increase in electric rates in lieu of taxes? Of course not. Can we tolerate higher taxes? Of course not.

But the only alternative is a drastic cut-back in city services that no one even likes to talk about. Economizing has never been as popular as Monopoly.

Does the city of Charlevoix really have to burn all of its street lights all night long, every night? From midnight on we could douse 95 percent of the public lighting in town and no one would even notice. The new channel lights are nice, but they're awfully bright. I don't think anyone would object if the city flipped them off after the bars close.

Over the years those of us with sidewalks have enjoyed the convenience of having the city make a sweep past our houses on snowy mornings with the sidewalk plow. I suppose the cost of the plow, driver and fuel is minimal, but it is a service we could do without if the city required homeowners to clear paths in front of their homes within 24 or 36 hours after each snow storm.

In every city department there must be plenty of ways to save money. If I had my way, I'd ask each department head for recommendations on how he could cut his expenditures 10 percent. I think some of their ideas would surprise you.

And then I'd put their suggestions into effect.

Belt-tightening of some kind is in order if we are to avoid the problems now besetting New York City. And the time to economize is now--before the bill collectors arrive.

LET'S CONSULT THE EXPERTS

A study of occupational backgrounds of members of the 94th Congress is revealing for Americans concerned—and rightly so—about improving the quality of our environment.

Out of 535 United States Representatives and Senators, only TWO—under one per cent—list "scientist" as their primary occupation before election to office. By comparison, 286—well over HALF—have legal backgrounds.

Among the many decisions they face this year is whether to amend the Clean Air and Federal Water Pollution Control Acts.

The issue is not primarily a question of money, although American industry spent billions for anti-pollution equipment last year alone.

What IS at stake are unrealistic and overly-rigid deadlines for environmental clean-up imposed by laws now on the books. Many of these goals are unattainable at ANY cost. Many more are so vaguely worded they cannot be implemented. Still others may actually have NEGATIVE impact upon energy supplies and our environment.

Hook or Club, Mr. Sportsman?

If you had your druthers, would you prefer a clout on the head or a stab in the throat?

Arnold Huizinga might well wonder. He went golfing in Grand Rapids the other day and came home with a 25-pound chinook salmon. He clubbed it out of a fairway stream with his 7-iron.

Arnold was pretty proud of his unique accomplishment. Did anyone ever make a hole-in-one – or even a decent putt – with a fishing pole? He posed for photos and his story made newspapers and TV shows all over the nation.

And that's when the fish began to smell. "Sportsmen" were not impressed with Arnold's feat. They were outraged. This must have confused Arnold who probably figured he was quite a sportsman himself. He had succeeded at one sport while playing another sport. How big a sportsman can you be? How many baseball players make touchdowns in centerfield?

But Arnold hadn't considered the hunter's definition of "sportsman." In such sports as hockey and football it is easy to be a sportsman. Just don't call the cops when your opponent maims you. Good sportsmen never go to court. Instead, they simply turn a noble cheek and keep a brave eye out for the chance to maim the guy back.

Hunters and fishermen have it tougher becoming sportsmen. To the outsider, it appears that the "home run" of hunting is to kill and the way to keep score is to count dead bodies. This is not a nice image to put before a sissy public brought up by Walt Disney. Could the killer of Bambi be a sportsman?

This is not fair, the outdoorsmen insist. They do not go into the woods and waters to kill. They do it to get off the freeway and breathe the clean fresh air of an all-night poker game in a Holiday Inn. They take their sons fishing because it is the American thing to do. If fish could talk, they probably speak Russian.

Hunters do not strap dead deer to their fenders and drive through town to show off. Did you ever try to get a 12-point buck into a glove compartment?

To improve their image as sportsmen, the hunters worked to get laws passed to make it tougher for them to kill. No machine guns allowed, for instance. No shooting pheasants until they are out of the gamekeeper's truck. No shooting within 15 feet of a waitress. No fair killing a female deer without first showing her your special permit. No fair bagging more than your legal limit – and the legal limit of everyone else in camp plus their relatives back home who cannot have been deceased more than 2 years.

This is what got Arnold Huizinga in trouble. He was mainly a golfer and he didn't know about the law saying it's OK to kill a fish by putting a hook in its mouth and yanking – but it's illegal to kill it by hitting it on the head.

Huizinga faces a maximum fine of $100 or 90 days in jail for being a lousy sportsman. The dummy thought a dead fish was a dead fish, no matter how it got that way.

After all, what makes a hook in the mouth more sporting than a knock on the skull? The idea is supposed to be to give the fisherman a bigger challenge and the fish a better chance to survive. But if I were an innocent fish hunting dinner below your boat, I think I would be better off if you were armed with a 7-iron rather than a hook and line.

Of course, if I were a fish – or a pheasant or a deer – you wouldn't know what I thought. Which certainly makes things nicer for armed sportsmen everywhere.

Meet Charlevoix

Charles Bentley

An important part of present day school staffs is the Counseling Department. This week the Courier talks with Charles Bentley, a member of the Counseling Department at Charlevoix High School.

COURIER: What are the duties of a school counselor?

BENTLEY: As I see it, our duties are divided into four sections: Services to Pupils, Services to Parents, Services to the Professional Staff and Services to the Administration.

COURIER: What do you do for pupils?

BENTLEY: We assist the pupil in understanding himself and to believe in himself. We provide him with information pertaining to his educational and vocational opportunities. We try to teach him to make his own decisions and to understand the relationship between freedom and responsibility. We try to identify each pupil's special abilities or needs and recommend appropriate programming. We aid the student in developing an understanding of his personal relationships with peers and adults. We try to motivate pupils to seek counseling of their own volition and provide a counseling service which they will recognize as personal and confidential. We also provide testing services and interpretation to help the individual pupil make a realistic appraisal of himself.

COURIER: What do you do for parents?

BENTLEY: We provide a counseling service to parents to assist them in understanding their child's social, emotional and educational needs, without violating confidentiality. We furnish parents with information about educational and occupational opportunities. We make parents aware of services provided by the Counseling Department, such as testing, referral agencies, tuturial programs, homebound instruction, counseling services and curriculum planning. Finally, we act as liaison between parent and school and parent and child.

COURIER: How do you help the professional staff?

BENTLEY: We identify special needs of individual pupils through consultations and assist staff members in understanding individual pupils. We provide assistance to teachers in pupil placement. We recommend curriculum revisions, innovations and deletions as they relate to the changing needs of the pupils. Essentially, we take the leadership role in the coordination of the total program of pupil personnel services through continued planning and cooperation with the whole staff.

COURIER: How do you serve the school administration?

BENTLEY: We implement a complete program of guidance services which complements the school's instructional program. We contribute toward curriculum development from our background of pupil understanding and our knowledge of the needs of pupils. We conduct and coordinate research studies in such areas as follow-up and pupil appraisal. We provide relevant information, without violating confidentiality, regarding individual pupils to assist the administrator in his work with pupils.

COURIER: This is just the beginning of the school year. What have you done so far?

BENTLEY: Most of our time has been spent balaneing out class loads for teachers and pupils. We have 35 more pupils this year and no increase in the teaching class. The senior class is our first responsibility. We must validate them for graduation and begin to talk with them about post high school plans, whether it be college, a technical school, the Armed Services, or work. This year we are going to try a life-style workshop to encourage seniors to create their own futures, to accept the idea they are responsible for their own lives. For those going to work right after high school we will set up an employment work shop to help them gain skills necessary to get jobs, how to apply and be interviewed and where to go.

COURIER: Don't you have a college and career night?

BENTLEY: Yes, it will be held October 14 at the Petoskey High School for all seniors in the area. There will be representatives from four-year colleges, two-year colleges, the military, nursing schools, armed services, academic-s, business and vocational schools. They will give both pupils and parents information about their instructions, including available grants and loans.

COURIER: Do you counsel both boys and girls?

BENTLEY: Yes Gayle Kaczynski, the other member of the Counseling Department, and I work on an alphabetical basis. However, if someone assigned to me would rather talk with Gayle, or vice versa, we do it that way.

COURIER: Do you plan anything new this year?

BENTLEY: Yes, rather than talking with parents only at Parent-Teacher conferences or when they call us, we would like to meet periodically with all parents. We will probably do this if we can generate enough interest.

Charlevoix County's Bill Parsons Will Never Completely Retire

It's hard to believe there's anyone who could travel as much as Jerry Ford or Henry Kissinger.

Charlevoix County's Bill Parsons runs a close second. He's a retired farmer, but his wife says its news to her.

The 63-year-old Norwood man hit just about every part of the country last year and was home long enough last week to pack his bags and head off for Indianapolis.

Unlike, Ford, Parsons isn't trying to run for President. He's only trying to make the farmer's voice heard through the dozen groups he belongs to.

"My Dad wanted me to run the farm with him, so I did," says Parsons about getting into farming after graduating from Ellsworth High School in 1931.

But, farming apparently meant more than tilling the land because Parsons has been involved in no less than a dozen activities.

If you ask him what he belongs to, he can pull a card holder of membership cards that stretches almost from Charlevoix to East Jordan.

"You name it, I've probably done it," quipped the broad-smiling farmer while sitting back in his living room chair.

Parsons is a little modest about the hundreds of hours he's put into public service work, but with a little nudging from his wife, Bertha, a fascinating history is revealed.

It dates back to the one-room Clark schoolhouse that he attended as a child and eventually served as the secretary-treasurer for when he became an adult.

From there, he began serving on the rural school board from 1935 until it changed to the county board of education and eventually the intermediate school district from which he just retired in June.

But Parsons has been involved in more than policy making boards. He done some grassroots education work, having have been a local 4-H leader for 26 years.

He used to take his box of tools down to the old Clark Schoolhouse and teach youngsters everything from woodworking to handicraft.

Education isn't the only area Parsons has been involved with over the years.

He's been serving as a director of Top O' Michigan Rural Electric Cooperative for eight years, as well as on the Northern Michigan Electric Cooperative and National Rural Electric Cooperative Association boards.

He has even been Norwood Township clerk for 35 years.

But despite all of his outside interests, farming has still been number one.

"I've never had any interest in anything else," Parsons says.

"I've always stuck to farming."

More than anything else, Parsons says farming has given him the independence and closeness to nature that he has always liked.

"I notice townspeople like to take advantage of our surroundings...especially during deer seasons," he says.

Farming is nothing new to his family. His grandfather farmed the area just before the Civil War and now his son, David, is continuing the century-old tradition.

Besides his son, David, who farms the 218-acre farm Parsons was born and raised on, he has three other sons--Dale, a Boyne City teacher; Ivan, a township supervisor and builder; and Floyd, an employee at Brumm's in Norwood.

The Parsons are also members of the Norwood Methodist Church.

Rayders Dump Benzie

Charlevoix's Red Rayders splashed to their second consecutive rain-soaked victory this past Friday evening. The 12-0 margin over the Benzonia-Benzie Central Huskies avenged an early season loss last year.

As in the Kalkaska game one week ago, the home eleven took the opening kickoff and marched down the field for a score. Featured in the scoring thrust was a fine 45 yard run back of the Kickoff by Randy Williams. This gave the Red Rayders possession on the Benzie Central 34 yard line.

Two first downs and a crucial catch by Matt Doan put the ball on the 1 yard line. Williams carried from there for the tally. The point after kick was blocked, and with 7:49 remaining in the first quarter, the score stood Charlevoix 6, Benzie Central 0.

Charlevoix was handed another scoring opportunity when they recovered a fumble on the Benzie Central 29 yard line. This fumble came on the Huskies' second play from scrimmage.

Though the opportunity for a score was presented, the Rayders were unsuccesful, and relinquished the ball to the visiting eleven after four plays.

Play during the remainder of the first half was ragged, as both squads had to deal with the slippery, rain-soaked pigskin. The half ended with the score still 6-0.

Second half action began to look like mistakes and the weather would win again. Charlevoix's defensive halfback Bud Klooster snared a wayward Huskie pass and returned the ball to the visitor's 42 yard line, but the Charlevoix threat ended when Benzie recovered a fumble.

At this point, the Huskie eleven began their most serious attack. After two line plays, Quarterback B. J. Lathwell connected on a pass to Dan Rockwell for 21 yards and a first down on the Charlevoix 47 yard line.

After a fine tackle by Charlevoix senior John Cinnamon, the Benzie Central squad picked up another first down on two successful screen passes. Another completed pass and a fine run by Benzie's Nate Roper set the stage for a crucial quarterback sack by Lieberman. This fine defensive play resulted in a loss of 14 yards, and, one play later Charlevoix was able to take over on downs on their own 20 yard line.

On the next Benzie Central possession, the Lathwell-Rockwell combination hit once more, and the Huskies had a first down on the Charlevoix 4 yard line. Two plays later a pass was completed which appeared to be a touchdown. The visitors, however, were penalized for being off-side, and the touchdown was called back. Three incompleted passes later and the Rayder eleven was able to take over on their own 9 yard line.

Exceptional defensive play by Lieberman, Cinnamon, Alger, Klooster, Tom Jones, Mike Way, Ed Russel, and Terry Drew accounted for this fine defensive stand.

Early in the fourth quarter, Way thrilled the crowd with a fine 69 yard runback of a Benzie punt for what appeared to be the second Rayder touchdown. As often happens in situations involving open field running, a clipping penalty brought the ball back.

Later in the quarter, Alger made his second intereception of the evening, which he returned 59 yards to the Benzie 6 yard line. It was a fine open field run by the Charlevoix backfield man.

The Huskies prevented a score with a stunning defensive stand. They took over on their own 1 yard line.

Benzie Central was unable to advance the ball, and with seconds remaining on the clock, attempted a desperation fourth down pass. The pass was incomplete, and Charlevoix took over with 40 seconds remaining on the Benzie Central 7 yard line.

Two plays later, Alger rolled around left end, after a fine fake into the line, and tallied the second Charlevoix touchdown. The point after attempt fell short, and with 11 seconds remaining Charlevoix led 12-0.

Following the kickoff the game ended with a fourth Charlevoix interception. Way pulled in an errant pass, and returned the ball to the Benzie 9 yard line. The clock ran out, and the Red Rayders had notched their second victory in as many weeks.

While the Red Rayders were victorious, unofficial statistics show that Benzie Central had more first downs, gained more total yards, completed more passes, and were in possession of the football longer than the Rayder eleven. The difference came in the fact that Charlevoix was able to intercept four errant passes and latch onto three fumbles. Each of these Benzie Central miscues gave the Rayders the ball at a crucial moment.

Praise should be given the defensive eleven. The visitors from Benzonia came to Charlevoix hoping to advance the ball via the air. Thirty-four passes were attempted by the fine quarterback Lathwell, but he was able to connect on only half, and four of those were picked off by Charlevoix receivers. The interceptions, as well as the sputtering performance of the Benzie eleven, were helped by the fine defensive line play.

Hopefully, the Charlevoix squad will be blessed by better weather when they travel to Cheboygan to meet the Chiefs in the first battle for Michigan-Huron Shores Conference supremacy.

The flag football season opened Saturday with the teams of both leagues seeing action for the first time.

The games, to be played at the softball field, will continue for five weeks (see schedule) beginning at 9 a.m. Saturday.

In last week's games the Raiders edged the Steelers 14-13; the Eagles blanked the Falcons 31-0 and the Patriots shut out the Packers 46-0 in the Junior League and Vikings won over the Cowboys 8-2 and the Lions defeated the Bengals 13-8 in the PeeWee League.

Raiders 14 Steelers 13

Curt Heckendorn put the Raiders on the score board in the first quarter when he pitched to Gary Drury for 33 yards and a TD. Heckendorn ran the conversion in for a 7-0 lead. Nick 'Anderson countered with six points for the Steelers on a 20 yard run in the second quarter and added a second in the fourth period plus the conversion point to put the Steelers nhead 13-7. It wasn't until late in the game that Jeff Drury went in from the five and Heckendorn ran the ball in for the point after that the Raiders posted the win.

Eagles 31 Falcons 0

Scott Morgan scored three TD's on short runs and added a point after to lead the Eagles to a 31-0 win over the Falcons. Jack Carlson scored early in the game and later passed 25 yards to Phil Morrison for the lopsided win.

Patriots 46 Packers 0

Jeff Daylong was the big gun for the Patriots as he passed for three TD's and two conversion points and scored two touchdowns himself as his tenm smothered the Packers 46-0.

Ed Russell scored first in the game on a three yard run before Daylong got into the act passing to Bill Fels and twice to his brother, Steve, to account for three touchdowns.

Two Wheel Traveler
by Jon Hendra

Keeping comfortable in the changeable temperatures of fall and spring is more of a problem for the touring cyclist than for a person engaged in any other activity.

Traveling cross country at this time of year, I have experienced fluctuations of as much as sixty-five degrees in one day and forth-five degrees in as little as one half hour.

It is not of the question for the tourer with his limited amount of space to carry a separate wardrobe for each of the varying conditions he may face.

By dressing in layers its possible to solve the dual problems of temperature adjustment and space allocation. It is easier to store several small articles than one large bulky item. And, it is a simple matter to adjust your clothing to the existing temperatures by the removal or addition of the appropriate layers.

Staying warm or cool is a condition dependent on the air near your body. To stay warm, you must trap air and insulate yourself agoinst heat loss. To stay cool, you must ventilate in an effort to eliminate excessive heat.

Maintaining the proper balance between insulation and ventilation is the secret of comfort in any temperature.

Removal of perspiration is another consideration in the problems of temperature control. A wet, sweat soaked, body chills easily. On even the coldest days you can work up a real steam trying to get your machine going. If you then place yourself out on a bike at sixy miles per hour you are going to get cold and stay cold unless your body can get dry again.

Because of the cooling properties of evaporation, perspiration elimination is the key to comfort in hot weather, too.

Of all the different clothing materials now available cotton and wool are still the best bets for temperature control under extreme conditions. The main reason for this is their ability to wick moisture away from the body. Synthetics just don't measure up to natural fibers in either wicking ability or air entrapment.

My typical garments for cold weather would consist of

The top seeded team of Denny Cavanaugh, of Detroit, and Hans Wiemer, of Charlevoix, won the Men's Invitational Doubles Tournament held at the Little Traverse Racquet Club recently, defeating Steve Baird, of New York City, and Gale Sheldon of Charlevoix in the finals 6-4, 6-4.

Cavanaugh's consistent power and Wiemer's precise volleying were just enough to hold off Sheldon's booming overhead and Bairds steady play. In every game served by Cavanaugh, a former mid American conference champion as well as the current Mackinac land doubles champion, the score went to deuce, but on the other hand, Baird who is the current New Jersey State doubles champion, lost his serve once in each set and each break decided the set.

Cavanaugh and Wiemer lost only one set enroute to the finish, and that was to Norm Fredericks of Birmingham and Bob Elcoate of Petoskey in a 5-7, 7-5, 6-2 victory. Baird and Sheldon never lost a set until the finals.

The consolation final was won by Mike Rahaley, head pro at the Little Traverse Racquet Club and Russ Langs of Petoskey. They over-powered Chuck Wrighl of Charlevoix and Dan Simmons of Harbor Springs 6-1, 6-1.

Our summer friends are leaving for their winter homes. We extend our very best wishes to them and look for them back next year.

Officially the summer will last almost another month but we all know that for all practical purposes it is over. School bells are ringing, Homes are settling down to a routine early to bed and early to rise and our young people are making plans and getting ready for college and vacations are now a thing to remember and perhaps wishing and thinking it could of been better.

And in our church things will also change. Choir rehearsals will again be held Thursday evening. Sunday school classes will begin again. Bible Study classes will be resumed and it's really not too early to think about Christmas, well perhaps that is rushing a bit but before you know it, we'll be wishing we had done just that.

So we wish the best of everything for each and everyone.
